Foreword

The 88th Edition of the CCH CANADIAN INCOME TAX ACT WITH REGULATIONS, ANNOTATED contains the consolidated text of the Income Tax Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.), the transitional provisions known as the Income Tax Application Rules, R.S.C. 1985, c. 2 (5th Supp.), and the Income Tax Regulations. This Edition consolidates all amendments made by legislation passed by Parliament and all regulations promulgated on or before the date of publication, July 10, 2009.

The "Fifth Supplement" version of the Act was proclaimed in force on March 1, 1994, replacing the former version of the Act (S.C. 70-71-72, c. 63). The former Act, which reflected the 1972 tax reform legislation, replaced the earlier Income Tax Act, R.S.C. 1952, c. 148, effective January 1, 1972. Information on the "Fifth Supplement" is included in this book at page lxxi. Also included, at page lxxiii, is a Table of Concordance listing sections of the Act that have been reformatted in the new version. For a record of all Acts that have amended the Income Tax Act, R.S.C. 1985 (5th Supp.), see page lxxxi.

Conveniently located at the front of the book for handy reference are several charts. These charts show the 2009 federal and provincial tax rates and personal tax credits, as well as prescribed interest rates, automobile rates and limits, annual average exchange rates for major currencies, capital cost allowance rates, tax calendar, lists of deadlines, offences, and penalties under the Act, and rates of withholding tax on selected types of payments under the tax conventions signed by Canada.

All pending amendments to the Act issued on or before July 10, 2009 are reproduced in place. Each proposal appears in a greyed box immediately following the provision affected. Similarly, all draft regulations outstanding at the time of publication are reproduced in place throughout the Regulations. Department of Finance Explanatory Notes to pending amendments are included as well. Federal Budget proposals not yet enacted, government press releases outlining proposed changes to income tax provisions, and Department of Finance comfort letters describing possible future amendments are also reproduced in greyed boxes following the provisions to which they relate. See the list of proposed amendments for the Act at page lxxxiii and for the Regulations at page lxxxvi.

Helpful, in-depth historical notes outlining the evolution of the Act and Regulations have been added by CCH at the end of each section. These notes are essential to the interpretation of the Act and Regulations in both current and prior taxation years. The notes begin with Bill C-15, which received Royal Assent on May 12, 1994 (S.C. 1994, c. 7) and implemented the amendments to the "Fifth Supplement" from November 30, 1991 to July 1, 1993. The full text of each provision as it read prior to an amendment is included in the history notes.

Many useful cross-references have been incorporated at the end of sections of the Act and Regulations. These cross-references direct you to a regulation, section of the Act, definition, form, guide, Interpretation Bulletin, Information Circular, Advance Tax Ruling, Technical News, SR&ED Application Policy, Registered Plans Directorate Newsletter, Registered Charities Newsletter, or to an article in TAX TOPICS, TAX PROFILE, CANADIAN TAX JOURNAL, CONFERENCE REPORT, or the CANADIAN PETROLEUM TAX JOURNAL that applies to the particular section. In situations where a reference applies to the section as a whole, it is noted following subsection (1) of the section, rather than for each subsection. If subsection (1) is a series of definitions, the general reference is noted in the charging subsection for that section. You will also find many case annotations throughout the book, which provide practical illustrations of how various provisions have been interpreted by the courts. Selected references to CRA technical interpretations and rulings have been added for certain provisions. These are listed under the heading TAX WINDOW FILES. As well, with input from members of the Editorial Board for CCH's INCOME TAX ACT WITH REGULATIONS, ANNOTATED, descriptive editorial notes have been added for certain provisions. These are generally located between the history notes and the cross-references.

The full texts of the Canada–U.S. and Canada–U.K. Tax Conventions consolidated with amending protocols and full-text history notes are reproduced in this book. Also included are the "Technical Explanations" of the Canada–U.S. Tax Convention and the Third, Fourth and Fifth Protocols issued by the U.S. Treasury Department and endorsed as authoritative by the Canadian Department of Finance.

Other features contained in this book include:

- a list of Department of Finance comfort letters that are reproduced throughout the Act and Regulations;
- a list of the tax conventions signed by Canada and those under negotiation;
- several relevant Remission Orders;
- a detailed sectional list of the Income Tax Act;
- a detailed sectional list of the Income Tax Regulations;
- the full texts of the Income Tax Conventions Interpretation Act and the Interpretation Act; and
- an easy-to-use, comprehensive Topical Index.

In the publication of this book, meticulous care has been exercised to set out an exact reproduction of the Income Tax Act and the Income Tax Regulations with all amendments incorporated in place. Some changes in printing style have been adopted, however, both for convenience and to improve readability. For example, marginal notes appearing in the official statute have been reproduced in boldface type in the first line of the section or subsection to which they apply, and in some places, where no marginal notes appear in the official statute, marginal notes have been inserted by CCH in square brackets. None of these changes affects the substance, punctuation, indentation, or wording of the statute.

Notes:

1. In Quebec, basic federal tax is reduced by the 16.5% abatement of basic federal tax.
2. Instead of provincial or territorial tax, non-residents pay an additional 48% of basic federal tax on income taxable in Canada that is not earned in a province or territory, so the non-resident rates are 48% of federal rates. Non-residents are subject to provincial or territorial rates (in this table) on:
   - employment income and business income earned in the respective province or territory; and
   - income and capital gains on dispositions of real property located in a province or territory.

   Different rates may apply to non-residents in other circumstances.

Personal Tax Credits — 2009

The two tables below contain information concerning select personal tax credits. The first table contains the federal and provincial/territorial rates used in the calculation of personal tax credits. The second table shows the value of the credits. Provinces and territories use their own prescribed amounts to determine their personal tax credits.

Factors at bottom of table increase value of credits to reflect surtaxes.[4]

Notes:

1. See below for Quebec's special credits and rules.
2. The general factor, multiplied by the federal (or provincial/territorial) amount, yields the value of the federal (or provincial/territorial) credit.
3. Eligible dividends are designated as such by the payor. They are grossed up by 45% and include dividends paid by:
   - public corporations or other corporations that are not Canadian-controlled private corporations (CCPCs), that are resident in Canada and are subject to the federal general corporate income tax rate (i.e., 19% in 2009); or
   - CCPCs, to the extent that the CCPC's income is:
     - not investment income (other than eligible dividends from public corporations); and
     - subject to the federal general corporate income tax rate (i.e., the income is active business income not subject to the federal small business rate).

   Non-eligible dividends are grossed up by 25% and include dividends paid out of either income eligible for the federal small business rate or a CCPC's investment income (other than eligible dividends received from public corporations).
4. For taxpayers affected by provincial/territorial surtaxes, the value of the credits shown will be higher by the factors indicated. For example, to a taxpayer in Ontario's top bracket, the $537 shown for the basic Ontario credit would be worth $838 (i.e., $537 × 1.56).
5. In Quebec, the federal EI amount is $584.
6. In Saskatchewan, commencing 2009, a refundable income tax credit provides up to $150 per child aged six to 14, for cultural, recreational and sports activity fees.

Quebec's Special Credits and Rules — 2009

Quebec's Special Credits and Rules — 2009

The following special rules apply to Quebec's non-refundable tax credits:

- the minimum basic personal credit, the Quebec Pension Plan (QPP), Employment Insurance (EI), Health Services Fund and Quebec Parental Insurance Plan (QPIP) credits are combined into a single basic personal credit equal to $10,455;
- employees, employers and the self-employed must contribute to the QPIP, from which maternity, adoption and parental leave benefits are paid. As a result, federal EI premiums are lower for Quebec employees than for other employees;
- an adult student can transfer the unused portion of the basic personal credit to a parent (but if this transfer is made, the other dependant (18 or over) credit of $561 cannot be claimed for that student);
- most non-refundable credits, such as the basic personal credit and the age credit, can be transferred to a spouse, if not used by the taxpayer;
- the age, pension and living alone credits are reduced if net family income exceeds $30,345;
- a person that lives alone or with a dependant can claim a credit of $245;
- a person that qualifies for the living alone credit and lives with an eligible student is eligible for an additional $304 credit;
- the maximum education credit of $386 per term (maximum two terms per year) can be claimed by a supporting Quebec parent (but is not transferable) for a child under 18 who attends post-secondary school full-time (part-time for infirm dependants);
- a student can transfer the unused portion of the tuition and examination tax credits to a parent or grandparent; and
- the medical expense credit is based on the amount by which qualifying expenses exceed 3% of net family income (see below for details on the refundable medical expense credit).

Select Quebec refundable tax credits are listed in the table below.

	Details
Adoption	50% of eligible adoption expenses (maximum credit of $10,000)
Child care	26% to 75% of qualifying child care expenses (limits apply)[1]
Caregivers	Maximum credit of $1,057 is reduced if the dependant's income exceeds $21,140
Respite expenses for informal caregivers	30% of eligible respite expenses paid for the care of a person who resides with the caregiver and has a significant disability; maximum credit of $1,560 is reduced if family income exceeds $51,180
Informal caregivers	Maximum credit of $500 for each care recipient can be allocated to a volunteer who provides home respite to informal caregivers of the care recipient
Home support for seniors	30% of eligible expenses; maximum credit of $4,680 for independent seniors, and $6,480 for dependent seniors, aged 70 and over, is reduced if family income exceeds $51,180; expenses eligible for this credit will not qualify for the medical expense credit
Medical	25% of medical expenses eligible for the non-refundable credit and 25% of amount deducted for impairment support products and services; maximum credit of $1,056 is reduced if family income exceeds $20,425

1. Commencing 2009, the limit on child care expenses paid for a child under seven at the end of the year (other than a child who qualifies for the disability tax credit) increased from $7,000 to $9,000.

Children's fitness	Maximum credit = $75 for children under 16; $150 for children under 18 who qualify for the disability tax credit
Disability — Basic	For individuals with severe and prolonged impairment	Spouse, parent, grandparent, child, grandchild, sibling, aunt, uncle, niece or nephew
Disability — Under 18 supplement	Reduced if child care expenses and attendant care expenses (claimed as a medical expense for child) exceed $2,459

These tables show combined federal and provincial (or federal and territorial) marginal tax rates – the percentage of tax paid on the last dollar of income, or on additiona income.

Each row contains marginal rates for:
- ordinary income and interest;
- the actual amount of capital gains; and
- the actual amount of dividends (eligible and non-eligible) from Canadian corporations.

(1) Provincial tax may be payable on taxable incomes below $10,320 for residents of British Columbia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Labrador, Nova Scotia, Ontario and Prince Edward Island, where the basic amounts are less than $10,320.

(2) When two dividend rates are indicated, the lower rate has a negative federal and/or provincial/territorial component. A negative federal component shelters other income from federal tax and a negative provincial/territorial component shelters other income from provincial/territorial tax. As a result, depending on the level of other income, the combined federal and provincial/territorial rate could be higher, but will not exceed the higher rate shown, which applies if the taxpayer has no other income.

(3) A non-resident who does not qualify for the federal personal basic credit of $10,320 will pay tax on taxable income below $10,320. Non-residents may claim the personal basic credit only if all or substantially all (i.e., 90% or more) of the non-resident's worldwide income is included in his or her taxable income earned in Canada for the year.
Non-resident rates for interest and dividends apply only in limited circumstances. Generally, interest (commencing 2008, other than most interest paid to arm's length non-residents) and dividends paid non-residents are subject to Part XIII withholding tax.

(4) The bracket relates to surtaxes levied by Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island or the Yukon, and assumes that only the basic personal credit is available.

Federal and Provincial Income Taxes Payable by Individuals at Various Levels of Taxable Income — 2009

This table shows the combined federal and provincial (or territorial) income taxes payable, including surtaxes, assuming only the basic personal tax credit is claimed (except for non-residents — see footnote 1, below), and that all income is either interest or ordinary income (such as salary). When income includes at least $1,044 of salary, the Canada Employment Credit, described under Personal Tax Credits — 2009 (see table), will reduce the results shown by $157 ($131 in Quebec). Depending on the types of income and deductions, the Alternative Minimum Tax may apply.

1 The table assumes the non-resident will not qualify for the federal personal basic credit of $10,320. Non-residents may claim the personal basic credit only if all or substantially all (i.e., 90% or more) of the non-resident's worldwide income is included in his or her taxable income earned in Canada for the year. The non-resident amounts apply to income taxable in Canada that is not earned in a province or territory.

2 Non-resident rates for interest and dividends apply only in limited circumstances. Generally, interest (commencing 2008, other than most interest paid to arm's length non-residents) and dividends paid to non-residents are subject to Part XIII withholding tax.

3 Taxpayers in top brackets (i.e., taxable income above $126,264) who receive Canadian eligible dividends can determine their tax by multiplying the dividend tax credit by the amount of eligible dividends (grossed up by 45%) and subtracting the result from the amount of tax shown in the table. For example, a Manitoba resident with $200,000 taxable income consisting of $185,500 salary plus $14,500 of grossed-up eligible dividends ($10,000 actual dividends) will pay the $76,757 tax shown, less 29.97% of $14,500, yielding $72,411.

4 Taxpayers in top brackets (i.e., taxable income above $126,264) who receive Canadian non-eligible dividends can determine their tax by multiplying the dividend tax credit by the amount of non-eligible dividends (grossed up by 25%) and subtracting the result from the amount of tax shown in the table. For example, an Alberta resident with $250,000 taxable income consisting of $240,000 salary plus $10,000 of grossed-up non-eligible dividends ($8,000 actual dividends) will pay the $84,378 tax shown, less 16.83% of $10,000, yielding $82,695.

5 When personal tax credits in addition to the basic personal tax credit are available, the results in this table are too high. For taxpayers in the top tax bracket of their jurisdictions, the amounts can be adjusted by subtracting the product of the percentage indicated (maximum value of additional credits) and the amount of each additional credit. Charitable donations over $200 have a higher maximum value.

6 Amounts do not include the Northwest Territories and Nunavut employees' payroll taxes or the Ontario Health Premium.

7 Taxable income may differ for federal and Quebec purposes, in which case the amounts shown in the table may require adjustment.

Notes:

1. The federal surtax was eliminated for all corporations on January 1, 2008, resulting in a 1.12% decrease in income tax rates. This overrides rules that would have eliminated or reduced the surtax on January 1, 2008, only for associated companies with taxable capital under $75 million.

2. Recent and planned changes to the general rate reduction and manufacturing and processing deduction are shown in the following table.

	Changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
General rate reduction and M&P deduction	7%	8.5%*	January 1, 2008*
	8.5%	9%*	January 1, 2009*
	9%	10%*	January 1, 2010*
	10%	11.5%*	January 1, 2011*
	11.5%	13%*	January 1, 2012*

* The general rate reduction and M&P deduction were originally scheduled to increase to 7.5% on January 1, 2008, to 8% on January 1, 2009, to 9% on January 1, 2010 and to 9.5% on January 1, 2011.

3. The general rate reduction does not apply to: M&P income; income benefiting from the small business deduction or the CCPC rate reduction; investment income of CCPCs; income of credit unions, most deposit insurance corporations, mutual fund corporations, mortgage investment corporations and investment corporations; and, until taxation years beginning after 2006, resource income. Income not eligible for the general rate reduction may qualify for special tax treatment.

4. Recent and planned changes to the federal income tax rate on resource income are shown in the following table.

	Changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Resource tax rate (including the 1.12% surtax, applicable before 2008)	27.12%	26.12%	January 1, 2005
	26.12%	24.12%	January 1, 2006

	19%	18%	January 1, 2010
	18%	16.5%	January 1, 2011
	16.5%	15%	January 1, 2012

* Commencing January 1, 2007, the resource tax rate is the same as the general rate.

 The resource tax rate was originally scheduled to decrease to 20.5% on January 1, 2008, to 20% on January 1, 2009, to 19% on January 1, 2010 and to 18.5% on January 1, 2011.

5. The small business deduction applies to active business income earned in Canada of associated CCPCs, up to a threshold. As a result of a clawback, the small business deduction is reduced if taxable paid-up capital employed in Canada, on an associated basis, exceeded $10 million in the preceding year.

Recent changes to the small business deduction are shown in the following table.

	Changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Small Business Deduction	16%	17%*	January 1, 2008*

* The small business deduction was originally scheduled to increase to 16.5% on January 1, 2008 and to 17% on January 1, 2009.

Recent changes to the threshold are set out in the following table.

	Changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$250,000	$300,000	January 1, 2005
	$300,000	$400,000	January 1, 2007
	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2009

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

6. A 7% rate reduction applied from January 1, 2001, to active business income between the small business threshold and $300,000 earned in Canada of associated CCPCs. It was eliminated commencing the 2005 taxation year when the general rate reduction was fully phased in, and therefore matched the 7% CCPC rate reduction.

7. A 6⅔% additional refundable tax on investment income applies to investment income (other than deductible dividends) of CCPCs. It is refundable through the refundable dividend tax on hand (RDTOH) mechanism.

Other Federal Corporate Tax Rates for 2009

	Rate	Corporations affected	Description	Special rules
Income not earned in a province or territory	29%[1]	All corporations	Income tax for 2009 is calculated as follows: Basic federal rate 38% Less: General rate reduction -9% General federal rate 29% Therefore, the federal rate is 29%, instead of 19%.	Corporate income that is not earned in a province or territory is neither: • eligible for the provincial abatement; nor • subject to provincial or territorial tax (exceptions apply).
Branch tax	25%	Non-resident corporations, except: • transportation, communications and iron-ore mining companies; and • insurers (except in special circumstances).	Applies to after-tax profits that are not invested in qualifying property in Canada.	The 25% rate may be reduced by the relevant tax treaty (generally to the withholding tax rate on dividends, which is usually 5%, 10% or 15%). Some treaties prohibit the imposition of branch tax or provide that the tax is payable only on earnings exceeding a threshold.
Part III.1 Tax on Excess Designations	20% or 30%	Canadian-resident corporations	Applies if: • a CCPC has designated as eligible dividends during the year an amount that exceeds the corporation's general rate income pool (GRIP) at the end of the year; or • a non-CCPC pays an eligible dividend when it has a positive balance in its low rate income pool (LRIP).	A corporation subject to Part III.1 tax at the 20% rate (i.e., the excess designation was inadvertent) can elect, with shareholder concurrence, to treat all or part of the excess designation as a separate non-eligible dividend, in which case Part III.1 tax will not apply to the amount that is the subject of the election.
Refundable Part IV tax	33⅓%	Private corporations and certain public corporations	Payable on taxable dividends received from certain taxable Canadian corporations.	Refundable to the corporation when it pays dividends, through the refundable dividend tax on hand (RDTOH) mechanism, at a rate of $1 for every $3 of taxable dividends paid.
Refundable Investment Tax	6⅔%	Canadian-Controlled Private Corporations (CCPCs)	Increases the total federal rate that applies to investment income of a CCPC to 34.67% (before 2008, 35.79% after federal surtax).
Large Corporations Tax (LCT)	Nil[2]	All corporations	Before 2006, imposed on taxable capital employed in Canada over $50 million. (The $50 million threshold was shared among related corporations; associated corporations in the case of CCPCs.)	A notional LCT, calculated as if the LCT rate and capital tax threshold were 0.225% and $10 million, respectively, is relevant for certain purposes (e.g., a CCPC's small business limit). Before 2008, the portion of the federal surtax liability that was the corporation's Canadian surtax liability reduced any LCT liability for the year or the previous three years (and, before 2006, the next seven years).
Part VI Financial Institutions Capital Tax	1.25%	Banks Trust and loan corporations Life insurance companies	Applies to banks, trust and loan corporations and life insurance companies with capital employed in Canada over $1 billion (before July 1, 2006, 1.25% rate for capital over $300 million; 1% between $200 million and $300 million; and nil below $200 million). The thresholds are shared among related corporations.	Reduced by the corporation's federal income tax liability (before 2008, net of any federal surtax claimed against the LCT liability). Any unused federal income tax liability can be applied to reduce Financial Institutions Capital Tax for the previous three years and the next seven. Unused income taxes that can be carried back from taxation years ending after June 30, 2006, are calculated using capital tax rates and thresholds that applied before July 1, 2006 (i.e., 1.25% for capital over $300 million; 1% between $200 million and $300 million; nil below $200 million).

Tax holidays may reduce or eliminate provincial tax.

In addition to income tax:

- financial institutions may also be subject to Part VI Financial Institution Capital Tax (see Other Federal Corporate Tax Rates for 2009); and
- most provinces impose capital taxes on corporations that have permanent establishments in the province (see Capital Tax Rates and Exemptions for 2009).

General and M&P Corporate Income Tax Rates (for December 31, 2009 year end) (%)

The percentages shown in the table below reflect the combined federal and provincial/territorial corporate rates (general and manufacturing and processing (M&P)) for a 12-month taxation year ended December 31, 2009, on income allocated to provinces or territories. For Canadian-controlled private corporations (CCPCs), this table applies to income other than:

- the first $500,000 of active business income; and
- investment income.

1. See the table, General and M&P Corporate Income Tax Rates, for the rates that apply to CCPC's on active business income above $500,000.

   The federal small business threshold increased from $400,000 to $500,000, retroactive to January 1, 2009. The $500,000 threshold also applies in:
   - New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Labrador, Northwest Territories, Nunavut, Ontario (see footnote 13 below), Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan;
   - Quebec, after March 19, 2009 (see footnote 15 below);
   - Alberta, after March 31, 2009 (see footnote 4 below);
   - British Columbia, after December 31, 2009 (see footnote 5).

   Manitoba, Nova Scotia and the Yukon have not harmonized with this increase.

2. See footnote 5 to the table, Federal Corporate Tax Rates, for:
   - recent changes to the small business deduction and threshold; and
   - a description of the federal small business deduction clawback and threshold.

   The clawback also applies for the purposes of the provincial/territorial small business deductions in the territories and all of the provinces except Ontario. Ontario's clawback is outlined in footnote 13, below.

3. Rates on investment income are 15.67% higher than the general rates for 2009 (see the table, General and M&P Corporate Income Tax Rates), because:
   - CCPC investment income does not benefit from the 9% federal general rate reduction; and
   - the rates on investment income includes a 6⅔% tax that is refundable when the CCPC pays taxable dividends.

   Generally, 26⅔% of a CCPC's aggregate investment income is added to its refundable dividend tax on hand (RDTOH). This amount is refundable at a rate of $1 for every $3 of taxable dividends paid by the CCPC.

4. Recent Alberta changes are shown in the following table:

	Alberta changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rate on over-integrated income*	3%	9.7%	January 1, 2009
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies	$400,000	$430,000	April 1, 2007
	$430,000	$460,000	April 1, 2008
	$460,000	$500,000	April 1, 2009

* Commencing January 1, 2009, an "over-integration tax payable" effectively increases Alberta's tax rate by 6.7% from 3% to 9.7% on income that is eligible for the Alberta CCPC small business deduction (SBD), but exceeds the federal SBD threshold. In general, this 6.7% tax applies only when this income is distributed as eligible dividends. However, because the federal SBD threshold increased from $400,000 to $500,000 retroactive to January 1, 2009, this tax in effect no longer applies.

 For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

As a result of changes to Alberta's CCPC threshold, the rates shown in the following table apply to active business income of a CCPC in Alberta in 2009:

	Alberta 2009 combined federal/provincial rates
	Up to $460,000	$460,000 to $500,000
M&P	14%	15.73%
Non M&P

5. Recent and planned British Columbia changes are shown in the following table:

	British Columbia changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	4.5%	3.5%	July 1, 2008
	3.5%	2.5%*	December 1, 2008
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies	$300,000	$400,000	January 1, 2005
	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2010

* British Columbia's goal is to have the lowest small business rate in Canada by April 1, 2012.

 For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

6. Recent and planned Manitoba changes are shown in the following table:

	Manitoba changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	5%	4.5%	January 1, 2006
	4.5%	3%	January 1, 2007
	3%	2%	January 1, 2008
	2%	1%	January 1, 2009
	1%	0%	December 1, 2010*
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies	$360,000	$400,000	January 1, 2005

* A discussion paper will address the concern that corporations that benefit from the 0% rate may be unable to claim Manitoba's non-refundable income tax credits.

 For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

7. Recent New Brunswick changes are shown in the following table:

	New Brunswick changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	2.5%	2%	July 1, 2005
	2%	1.5%	July 1, 2006
	1.5%*	5%*	January 1, 2007
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies	$425,000	$450,000	July 1, 2005
	$450,000	$475,000	July 1, 2006
	$475,000*	$400,000*	January 1, 2007
	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2009

* The CCPC small business rate reduction from 1.5% to 1% and the threshold increase from $475,000 to $500,000 that were scheduled for July 1, 2007 were repealed.

 For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

8. Recent Newfoundland and Labrador changes are shown in the following table:

	Newfoundland and Labrador changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$250,000	$300,000	January 1, 2005
	$300,000	$400,000	January 1, 2007
	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2009

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

9. Recent Northwest Territories changes are shown in the following table:

	Northwest Territories changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$250,000	$300,000	January 1, 2005
	$300,000	$400,000	January 1, 2007
	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2009

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

10. Recent Nova Scotia changes are shown in the following table:

	Nova Scotia changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$250,000	$300,000	January 1, 2005
	$300,000	$350,000	April 1, 2005
	$350,000	$400,000	April 1, 2006

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

11. Recent Nunavut changes are shown in the following table:

	Nunavut changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$250,000	$300,000	January 1, 2005
	$300,000	$400,000	January 1, 2007
	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2009

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

12. Corporations subject to Ontario income tax may also be liable for corporate minimum tax (CMT) based on adjusted book income. The minimum tax is payable only to the extent that it exceeds the regular Ontario income tax liability. For rates and thresholds, see the table, General and M&P Corporate Income Tax Rates (note 11).

13. Planned Ontario changes are shown in the following table:

	Ontario changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	5.5%	4.5%	July 1, 2010

Recent and planned changes related to Ontario's CCPC clawback, are shown below:

Ontario CCPC clawback* effective after December 31, 2004
Lower threshold	Upper threshold	Addition to rate (between thresholds) due to clawback		Effective
		Non-M&P	M&P
$400,000	$1,128,519	4.67%	3.57%	Before January 1, 2007
$500,000	$1,500,000	4.25%	3.25%	January 1, 2007
n/a	n/a	0%	0%	July 1, 2010

* A surtax claws back the benefit of Ontario's small business deduction when taxable income of associated corporations exceeds a specified lower threshold. The benefit is eliminated completely once taxable income, on an associated basis, reaches an upper threshold. The addition to the rate, due to the clawback, increases the rate that would otherwise apply.

 The changes apply retroactively to January 1, 2007.

The rates shown in the following table apply to active business income of a CCPC in Ontario in 2009:

	Ontario 2009 combined federal/provincial rates
	Up to $500,000	$500,000 to $1,500,000
M&P	16.5%	34.25%
Non M&P		37.25%

	$400,000	$500,000	January 1, 2009

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

15. Recent Quebec changes are shown in the following table:

	Quebec changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	8.9%	8.5%	January 1, 2006
	8.5%	8%	March 24, 2006
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	Nil	$400,000	January 1, 2006
	$400,000	$500,000	March 20, 2009

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

 Before January 1, 2006, there was no CCPC threshold in Quebec and the provincial corporate income tax was 8.9% on all active business income.

16. Recent Saskatchewan changes are shown in the following table:

	Saskatchewan changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	5.5%	5%	January 1, 2005
	5%	4.5%	January 1, 2007
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$300,000	$400,000	July 1, 2006
	$400,000	$450,000	July 1, 2007
	$450,000	$500,000	July 1, 2008

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

17. Recent Yukon changes are shown in the following table:

	Yukon changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
CCPC rates	6%	4%	January 1, 2005
Threshold up to which CCPC rate applies*	$250,000	$300,000	January 1, 2005
	$300,000	$400,000	January 1, 2007

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the original threshold applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

Capital Tax Rates and Exemptions for 2009

Capital Tax Rates and Exemptions for 2009

In addition to federal capital taxes:

- four provinces levy a general capital tax on corporations (other than financial institutions) that have a permanent establishment there; and
- all provinces except Alberta levy a capital tax on financial institutions such as trust and loan companies and banks.

The calculation of the tax base may differ from province to province. The territories do not impose capital taxes.

The table below sets out capital tax rates for a twelve-month taxation year ending December 31, 2009. See the table following this one for capital tax rates for financial institutions, which follow special rules not applicable to other corporations.

Corporations in General

		Rate (for December 31, 2009 year-end)	Exemption[1]
Federal Large Corporations Tax[2]		No capital tax
Alberta
British Columbia
Manitoba[3]	On first $20 million of taxable capital	0.2%	$10 million
	On taxable capital between $20 million and $21 million	2.4%	Nil
	On taxable capital > $21 million	0.4%
New Brunswick[4]		No capital tax
Newfoundland and Labrador
Nova Scotia[5]	If taxable capital < $10 million	0.35%	$5 million
	If taxable capital ≥ $10 million	0.175%	Nil
Ontario[6]		0.225%	$15 million
Prince Edward Island		No capital tax
Quebec[7]		0.24%	Up to $1 million
Saskatchewan[8]		No capital tax

Notes:

1. Exemptions are generally shared by associated or related corporations.
2. The Large Corporations Tax was eliminated on January 1, 2006. See the table, Other Federal Corporate Tax Rates for 2009, above.
3. Recent and planned changes to Manitoba's general capital tax are shown below:

			Manitoba changes effective after December 31, 2004 Taxable capital employed in Manitoba (before Manitoba's capital tax deduction)
			First $5 million*	> $5 million and ≤ $10 million*	>$10 million and ≤ $15 million	> $15 million and ≤ $20 million	> $20 million and ≤ $21 million	> $21 million

		January 1, 2010			Nil		2.2%	0.2%
	After 2010				Nil

* Manitoba's capital tax deduction increased from $5 million to $10 million for taxation years commencing after January 1, 2007.

 The rate reduction does not apply to Crown corporations.

 Manitoba's general capital tax is eliminated on July 1, 2008, for companies that use more than 50% of their labour and capital in Manitoba in M&P activities.

4. Recent changes to New Brunswick's general rate are shown below:

	New Brunswick changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
General capital tax rate	0.3%	0.25%	January 1, 2006

		0.1%	Nil	July 1, 2012

6. Recent and planned changes to Ontario's general rate and exemption are shown below:

		Ontario changes effective after December 31, 2004
		From	To	Effective
General capital tax rate	Manufacturing and resource companies*	0.3%	Nil*	January 1, 2007
			0.225%
	Other companies	0.225%	0.15%	January 1, 2010

General capital tax exemption		$5 million	$7.5 million	January 1, 2005
		$7.5 million	$10 million	January 1, 2006
		$10 million	$12.5 million	January 1, 2007
		$12.5 million	$15 million	January 1, 2008

* Retroactive to January 1, 2007, the general capital tax is eliminated or reduced for Ontario companies engaged in manufacturing or resource activities, as follows:

		Capital tax changes
% of salaries and wages related to M&P and resource activities	≥ 50%	Eliminated on January 1, 2007.(i)
	> 20% and < 50%	Reduced proportionately (straight-line) from January 1, 2007,(i) until July 1, 2010, when it will be eliminated.
	≤ 20%	Eliminated on July 1, 2010.

(i) Capital tax for manufacturing and resource companies was originally scheduled to be eliminated on January 1, 2008. It was made retroactive to January 1, 2007, for corporations that have employees reporting to a permanent establishment in Ontario on March 25, 2008.

 The general capital tax rate was originally scheduled to decrease to 0.285% on January 1, 2007 and to 0.225% on January 1, 2009.

 For taxation years straddling the effective date, the previous exemption applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

7. Recent and planned Quebec changes are shown below:

		Quebec changes effective after December 31, 2004
		From	To	Effective
General capital tax rate	All companies	0.6%	0.525%	January 1, 2006
		0.525%	0.49%	January 1, 2007
		0.49%	0.36%	January 1, 2008
	M&P companies*	0.36%	Nil*	Taxation years ending after March 13, 2008*
	Non-M&P companies		0.24%	January 1, 2009
		0.24%	0.12%	January 1, 2010
		0.12%	Nil	January 1, 2011
Capital tax exemption		$600,000	$1,000,000	January 1, 2005

* The general capital tax is eliminated or reduced for Quebec companies engaged in manufacturing and processing, as follows:

		Capital tax changes
% of activities attributable to M&P (based on M&P assets and labour)	≥ 50%	Eliminated for taxation years ending after March 13, 2008.
	> 20% and < 50%	Reduced proportionately (straight-line) for taxation years ending after March 13, 2008, until January 1, 2011, when it will be eliminated.
	≤ 20%	Eliminated on January 1, 2011.

 The general capital tax rate was originally scheduled to decrease from 0.36% to 0.29% on January 1, 2009.

 The exemption is reduced by $1 for every $3 of the previous year's paid-up capital of the associated group exceeding the current year's maximum capital tax exemption. Therefore, for 2009 the exemption is eliminated when 2008 paid-up capital of the associated group exceeds $4,000,000.

8. Saskatchewan imposes a capital tax surcharge on large resource corporations. The surcharge rates decreased from July 1, 2006 to July 1, 2008.

Recent changes to Saskatchewan's general rate are shown below:

		Saskatchewan changes effective after December 31, 2004
		From	To	Effective
General capital tax rate	New capital*	0.6%	Nil*	July 1, 2006
	Other capital		0.3%
		0.3%	0.15%	July 1, 2007
		0.15%	Nil	July 1, 2008

* The nil rate applies to new capital (i.e., additions of depreciable property in Saskatchewan made after June 30, 2006) and is implemented by applying a non-refundable tax credit against the corporation's capital tax liability.

 The rate changes do not apply to Saskatchewan Crown corporations, for which the rate remains 0.6%. (An additional 0.9% rate applies to telecommunications Crown corporations.)

Recent changes to Saskatchewan's capital tax exemption follow:

	Saskatchewan changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
General capital tax exemption*	$17.5 million	$20 million	Taxation years beginning after December 31, 2004

* Although a $10 million exemption is available to each corporation, the additional exemption (above $10 million) must be shared by the associated group. The extent to which the additional exemption is available to a corporation will depend on the proportion of salaries and wages paid in Saskatchewan by that corporation in relation to the total salaries and wages paid by the associated group.

	April 1, 2009*		0.333%		1%
	April 1, 2010*		Nil **

* After March 31, 2008 and before April 1, 2010, British Columbia's rate reductions are implemented by deducting from its financial corporation's capital tax payable:

- 33⅓% of the capital tax payable for April 1, 2008 to March 31, 2009;
- 66⅔% of the capital tax payable for April 1, 2009 to March 31, 2010; and
- 100% of the capital tax payable after March 31, 2010, if the taxation year includes March 31, 2010.

 Effective April 1, 2010, financial institutions with paid-up capital of $1 billion or more will be subject to a minimum tax, calculated as 1% of B.C. paid-up capital. The tax will be reduced for B.C. corporate income taxes paid.

Capital Tax Rates and Exemptions for 2009 (continued)

5. Manitoba's capital tax deduction increased from $5 million to $10 million, effective taxation years commencing after January 1, 2007.

6. Recent and planned changes to Ontario's exemption and rates are shown below:

	Ontario changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Capital tax exemption*	$5 million	$7.5 million	January 1, 2005
	$7.5 million	$10 million	January 1, 2006
	$10 million	$12.5 million	January 1, 2007
	$12.5 million	$15 million	January 1, 2008

* For taxation years straddling the effective date, the previous exemption applies for the number of days in the year before that date.

		Ontario changes effective after December 31, 2004
	Effective	Adjusted taxable paid-up capital* ≤ $400 million	Adjusted taxable paid-up capital* > $400 million
			Deposit-taking	Other
Capital tax rates	Before January 1, 2007	0.6%	0.9%	0.72%
	January 1, 2007	0.45%	0.675%	0.54%
	January 1, 2010	0.3%	0.45%	0.36%
	July 1, 2010	Nil

* The adjusted taxable paid-up capital of a financial institution is net of the capital tax exemption.

 The financial institution rates were originally scheduled to decrease to:

- 0.57% on January 1, 2007 and to 0.45% on January 1, 2009;
- 0.855% on January 1, 2007 and to 0.675% on January 1, 2009; and
- 0.684% on January 1, 2007 and to 0.54% on January 1, 2009.

7. The 0.73% Quebec rate includes a 0.25% compensatory tax on paid-up capital. The rate applies to financial institutions, including savings and credit unions. A 2% compensatory tax on payroll also applies. Recent and planned changes in Quebec's base rate and exemption are shown below:

	Quebec changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Capital tax rates	1.2%	1.05%	January 1, 2006
	1.05%	0.98%	January 1, 2007
	0.98%	0.72%	January 1, 2008
	0.72%	0.48%*	January 1, 2009*
	0.48%	0.24%	January 1, 2010
	0.24%	Nil	January 1, 2011

* The capital tax rate was originally scheduled to decrease from 0.72% to 0.58% on January 1, 2009.

8. The threshold at which Saskatchewan's 3.25% financial institutions capital tax rate applies increased from $1 billion to $1.5 billion for taxation years ending after October 30, 2008.

Recent changes to Saskatchewan's capital tax exemption follow:

	Saskatchewan changes effective after December 31, 2004
	From	To	Effective
Capital tax exemption*	$17.5 million	$20 million	Taxation years beginning after December 31, 2004

* Although a $10 million exemption is available to each corporation, the additional exemption (above $10 million) must be shared by the associated group. The extent that the additional exemption is available to a corporation will depend on the proportion of salaries and wages paid in Saskatchewan by that corporation in relation to the total salaries and wages paid by the associated group.

Payroll Tax Rates

Payroll Tax Rates

Only those provinces and territories listed in the table below have payroll taxes (by various names).

		Rate	Payroll[1]	Payroll tax
Manitoba[2]	Health and Post-Secondary Education Tax	2.15%	Over $2,500,000	Payroll × 2.15%
		4.3%	$1,250,000 to $2,500,000	(Payroll − $1,250,000) × 4.3%
		0%	$0 to $1,250,000	$0
Newfoundland and Labrador[3]		2%	Over $1,000,000	(Payroll − $1,000,000) × 2%
		0%	$0 to $1,000,000	$0
Northwest Territories[4]	Payroll Tax	2%	Over $0	Payroll × 2%
Nunavut[4]
Ontario	Employer Health Tax	1.95%	Over $400,000	(Payroll − $400,000) × 1.95%
		0%	$0 to $400,000	$0
Quebec[5]	Health Services Fund	4.26%	Over $5,000,000	Payroll x rate
		Reduced rates	$1,000,000 to $5,000,000
		2.7%	$0 to $1,000,000

Notes:

1. Associated employers must aggregate their payroll costs to apply the thresholds.

2. Recent changes to the thresholds at which Manitoba's Health and Post-Secondary Education Tax apply follow:

		Manitoba threshold changes effective after December 31, 2004
		From	To	Effective
Rate	2.15%	Over $2,000,000	Over $2,500,000	January 1, 2008
	4.3%	$1,000,000 to $2,000,000	$1,250,000 to $2,500,000
	0%	$0 to $1,000,000	$0 to $1,250,000

3. Recent changes to the thresholds at which Newfoundland and Labrador's Health and Post-Secondary Education Tax apply follow:

		Newfoundland and Labrador threshold changes effective after December 31, 2004
		From	To	Effective
Rate	2%	Over $700,000	Over $1,000,000	January 1, 2008
	4%	$600,000 to $700,000*	n/a
	0%	$0 to $600,000	$0 to $1,000,000

* If the payroll was between $600,000 and $700,000, the $600,000 exemption was phased down to $500,000 by reducing the exemption by $1 for every dollar of payroll above the exemption. The result was an effective rate of 4%.

4. In the Northwest Territories and Nunavut, payroll tax is paid by employees. It is not levied on employers, but employers must deduct the tax from remuneration paid to employees.

   Northwest Territories' payroll tax rate increased from 1% to 2% on January 1, 2005.

   Nunavut's payroll tax increased from 1% to 2% on April 1, 2007.

5. Quebec's Health Services Tax rate is reduced for employers with annual payrolls between $1 million and $5 million, using a formula that depends on both the calendar year and the employer's total payroll.

   Every Quebec employer with a payroll of $1,000,000 or more must:

   - allot at least 1% of payroll to training; or
   - contribute to a provincial fund the difference between that amount and the amount actually spent on training.

   In limited cases, corporations may be exempt from the Health Services Tax, and in some cases refunds may be made. Investment holding corporations may also be subject to a 1% compensatory tax on payroll.

   Individuals whose income from certain sources, excluding remuneration, exceeds $13,075 must contribute to the Health Services Fund (annual maximum contribution is $1,000). The contribution gives rise to a tax credit.

   Commencing 2006, employees, employers and the self-employed must contribute to a parental insurance plan, from which maternity, adoption and parental leave benefits will be paid.

Provincial Health Insurance Premiums

Provincial Health Insurance Premiums

Only Alberta, British Columbia and Ontario have health care premiums. Some employers pay all or a part of the employee's premiums. Employer-paid premiums constitute a taxable benefit to the employee.

Alberta Health Care Premiums

	Single	Couple/Family
After March 31, 2002*	$44 per month	$88 per month
January 1, 2009	Nil

* In Alberta, commencing October 1, 2004, seniors are exempt from health care premiums.

British Columbia Medical Services Plan Premiums

	Single	Couple	Family
After April 30, 2002*	$54 per month	$96 per month	$108 per month

* In British Columbia, assistance is available to low-income earners.

Ontario Health Premiums

Ontario imposes a health care premium on individuals with taxable incomes exceeding $20,000 who are residents of Ontario on the last day of the taxation year. Individuals earning less than $20,000 are exempt, along with trusts and non-residents. The premium depends on taxable income, as shown in the table below.

		Premium per individual
		2004	2005 and subsequent years
Taxable income	Up to $20,000	Nil
	$20,000 to $25,000	3% of income > $20,000	6% of income > $20,000
	$25,000 to $36,000	$150	$300
	$36,000 to $38,500	$150 + 3% of income > $36,000	$300 + 6% of income > $36,000
	$38,500 to $48,000	$225	$450
	$48,000 to $48,600	$225 + 12.5% of income > $48,000	$450 + 25% of income > $48,000
	$48,600 to $72,000	$300	$600
	$72,000 to $72,600	$300 + 12.5% of income > $72,000	$600 + 25% of income > $72,000
	$72,600 to $200,000	$375	$750
	$200,000 to $200,600	$375 + 12.5% of income > $200,000	$750 + 25% of income > $200,000
	$200,600 and over	$450	$900

Integration Tables

Table 1: Active Business Income (based on a December 31, 2009 year end and $10,000 of active business income)[1]

This table shows:

- the income tax deferral if active business income is earned and retained in a corporation as opposed to being paid out of the corporation as salary to the shareholder; and
- the tax saving (cost) if instead of being paid out of the corporation as salary, the after-tax corporate income is paid out as a dividend to the shareholder.

Yukon	2,740[3]	148[3]	840	(297)	2,090	737

Notes:

1 This table assumes the individual is taxed at the top marginal income tax rate. Levies other than federal and provincial income tax, the employer portion of provincial health tax and the employee portion of Northwest Territories and Nunavut payroll taxes are not considered (e.g., Canada Pension Plan contributions). Different results may arise in special circumstances (e.g., for Quebec financial institutions and oil refining companies that are not eligible for the small business deduction, and for credit unions).

2 The federal small business threshold increased from $400,000 to $500,000, retroactive to January 1, 2009. The $500,000 threshold also applies in New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Labrador, Northwest Territories, Nunavut, Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan, after March 19, 2009 in Quebec, after March 31, 2009 in Alberta and after December 31, 2009 in British Columbia. Manitoba, Nova Scotia and the Yukon have not harmonized with this increase.

3 The figures assume that Yukon's rate on active business income that is not M&P income applies. If Yukon's rate on active business income that is M&P income applies, the tax deferral is $2,890 and the tax saving is $253.

Table 2: Investment Income (based on a December 31, 2009 year end and $10,000 of investment income)[1]

This table shows:

- the income tax deferral or prepayment if investment income is earned and retained in a corporation as opposed to being earned directly by an individual; and
- the tax cost if the after-tax corporate income is paid out as a dividend to the shareholder.

Notes:

1 This table assumes that:

- the individual is taxed at the top marginal income tax rate;
- the portfolio dividends are designated as "eligible" dividends;
- the capital gains deductions for qualifying small business corporation shares or qualified farming or fishing property are not available; and
- the taxable dividend paid is sufficient to generate a full refund of refundable tax.

Prescribed Quarterly Interest Rates

- Deemed interest on employee and shareholder loans
- Rate for overpaid taxes
- Late or deficient income tax payments and unremitted withholdings

Automobile Rates and Limits

The following rates and limits are prescribed in sections 7305.1 to 7307 of the Income Tax Regulations. In recent years, the Department of Finance has been adjusting the amounts by News Release issued at the end of the calendar year.

See the definitions of "automobile" and "passenger vehicle" in subsection 248(1).

Mileage Rates and Meal Allowances

In calculating northern residents' deductions (s. 110.7), moving expenses (s. 62), and transportation to obtain medical services (s. 118.2(2)), the CRA will permit mileage deductions to be calculated on an arbitrary cents per kilometre basis, and flat rate meal allowances for the travel period in lieu of actual "reasonable" expenses.

This method of calculating mileage deductions is not available for auto expenses claimed in the course of employment. Receipts need not be kept when claiming the flat rate allowance; they must be kept if claiming actual expenses. For 2001 and 2002, the flat rate allowance is $11 per meal, to a maximum of $33 per day; for 2003, 2004 and 2005, $15 per meal, to a maximum of $45 per day; and for 2006, 2007, and 2008, $17 per meal, to a maximum of $51 per day.

Where the option is permitted, the acceptable mileage rates are:

Province or Territory	Cents per kilometre for taxation year
	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Alberta	43.5	45.5	47.5	48.0	53.0
British Columbia	43.0	45.5	47.5	48.0	54.0
Manitoba	40.5	44.0	45.5	46.5	50.5

Saskatchewan	40.0	43.0	44.5	46.0	49.5
Yukon	50.5	55.0	57.0	58.0	66.0

For travel from outside Canada into Canada, use the per kilometre rate for the province or territory of final destination. For travel from Canada to outside Canada, use the per kilometre rate for the province or territory where travel began. For travel between countries outside Canada, the actual expense method must be used.

Notes:

[1] Based on the average value after Ghana redenominated its currency in July 2007.

[2] Effective January 1, 2007, Slovenia replaced the tolar with the Euro as its currency.

[3] Introduced January 1, 2005.

[4] Based on 10,000 Lira.

[5] Based on 1,000,000 Lira.

[6] Effective January 1, 2008, the bolivar was replaced with the bolivar fuerte, which in effect removed the first three zeros from the conversion rate.

To report a major transaction where proceeds were received (or capital or depreciable property was acquired) in a foreign currency, the amount is usually converted to Canadian dollars using the exchange rate on the actual date of the transaction. This can be obtained from the Bank of Canada Web site (www.bankofcanada.ca/en/rates/exchange.html). Where periodic income is received in a foreign currency, or a taxpayer has a series of relatively small transactions, the CRA will normally accept the reporting of all transactions converted at the average rate for the year.

To convert income reported in foreign currency, multiply by the rate above to report in Canadian dollars. For example, if you received 2008 income reported to you as US$100 (100 U.S. dollars), you would report Canadian income of $100 × 1.06601429 = CDN$106.60 (106.60 Canadian dollars). If you were reporting Canadian dollar receipts to a foreign government, you would divide the Canadian dollars by the number shown. For example, if you have to report CDN$100 (100 Canadian dollars) on a U.S. tax return, you would report CDN$100 / 1.06601429 = US$93.81.

Alphabetical List of Assets — Capital Cost Allowance Classes and Rates

The following table sets out the current capital cost allowance rates. This table is for use only as a quick reference guide for the capital cost allowance classes and rates for certain types of assets. See Part XI and Schedules II, III, IV, V, and VI of the Income Tax Regulations for detailed rules relating to capital cost allowance.

Item	Rate	Class
Access roads and trails for the protection of standing timber	30%	10
Air conditioning equipment — same rate as building[1]
Aircraft[16]	25%	9
furniture and fittings	25%	9
hangars[1]	10%	6
Airplane runways[16]	8%	17
Amusement park components (including fences, bridges, canals, stalls, tractors, etc.)	15%	37
land improvements[39]	15%	37
Apparel, used for earning rental income[1,26]	100%	12
Asphalt surface, storage yard[16]	8%	17
Assets, tangible capital[1,2]	20%	8
used primarily in manufacturing and processing[10,15]		29, 39, 40, 43
Automobiles[1]	30%	10
acquired after June 17, 1987 in excess of prescribed amount (Reg. 7307(1))[1,7]	30%	10.1
for lease or rental[22]	40%	16

Notes:

[1] Unless included in another class of assets subject to a different rate.

[2] Not applicable to land, animals, herbs, trees, shrubs or similar growing things, gas wells, mines, oil wells, radium, rights of way, timber limits, tramway track or certain vessels.

[3] Electronic bar code scanners, electronic cash registers designed to calculate and record sales taxes imposed by multiple jurisdictions, software to allow multiple sales tax calculation, and related equipment acquired after August 8, 1989 and before 1993 for use in a retail business in Canada will be permitted a 100% write-off with no half-year rule.

[4] Except property included in Class 10, 13, 14, 26 or 28. For distributors of gas, not including a property acquired to produce or distribute gas normally distributed in portable containers, to process natural gas before its delivery to a gas distribution system and to produce oxygen or nitrogen. See also under Gas manufacturing and distribution equipment, plants and pipelines; and Pipelines.

[5] Designed for the purpose of excavating, moving, placing or compacting earth, rock, concrete or asphalt.

[6] Electrical generating equipment may be allocated to one of the following different classes: Class 1, if large and acquired by a producer; Class 2, if acquired before 1988; Class 8, if small; Class 9, if acquired before May 26, 1976 and not owned by a producer; or Class 17, if new and acquired after February 27, 2000 (with certain exclusions). Energy-efficient equipment may be in Class 34, if acquired before February 22, 1994; Class 43.1, if acquired after February 21, 1994; or Class 43.2 if acquired after February 22, 2005 and before 2020, and certain requirements are met. Only a detailed reading of the classes can determine the appropriate one; see Schedule II of the Income Tax Regulations. If used in manufacturing and processing, see note 15. Eligibility for Class 43.1 and Class 43.2 includes assets acquired on or after March 19, 2007 that generate electricity using wave or tidal energy, provided they do not do so by means of a barrage or other dam-like structure.

[7] Separate classes may be required for each asset, including: certain rental properties costing $50,000 or more (effective January 1, 1972); certain automobiles in Class 10.1; certain vessels, including Canadian vessels and off-shore drilling vessels; all Class 28 or 41 property relating to a particular mine or group of mines; railway property in Class 1, 3 or 35; and land deemed to be depreciable property in Class 36. Certified productions and certain Canadian film or video productions in Class 10 are to be put in separate classes from other Class 10 assets. See Regulation 1101 for the provisions regarding separate classes.

[8] Unless, in the case of a pipeline for oil or natural gas, the Minister is satisfied that the main source of supply for the business is likely to be exhausted within 15 years; such pipelines, not being specifically listed, fall under the general rate of 20% (Class 8).

[9] Tramway tracks: 100% on cessation of tramcar operation.

[10] Separate class elections may be available for certain assets or groups of assets, including: Class 2 pipelines, commenced after 1984 and completed after September 1, 1985, costing at least $10 million; earth-moving equipment in Class 38 acquired after 1987; outdoor advertising signs in Class 8(l); and certain electronic equipment in Class 8 or 10 (including computer software, photocopiers, fax machines, electronic telephone equipment, and general purpose electronic data processing equipment and systems software). Certain Class 43 manufacturing and processing assets costing more than $1,000 may also be eligible for a separate class election after February 27, 2000; however where the property is still on hand after five years, it must be merged into the general Class 43 UCC pool. See Regulation 1101 for the provisions regarding separate classes.

[11] A grain elevator or addition to a grain elevator situated in "Eastern Canada", acquired after April 1, 1972 and before August 1, 1974, is entitled to an additional allowance equal to the lesser of: 22% (Class 3), 20% (Class 6), or 14% (Class 8) of the lesser of $15,000 and the capital cost; or the undepreciated capital cost at the end of the taxation year before the allowance. New grain drying equipment for a farm acquired after July 31, 1968 and before January 1, 1970 or after April 1, 1972 but before August 1, 1974 may be depreciated at the rate equal to the lesser of 14% of the capital cost or $15,000.

[12] Certified pollution control equipment in Class 24 or 27 is depreciated 25/50/25 over three years for additions made before 1999. If not certified, the equipment may be Class 8, 39 or 43 if used primarily in manufacturing, or Class 1, 3 or 6, depending on its nature.

[13] An addition or alteration to a building originally placed in Class 3, 6 or 20, but which would no longer be in that class under current rules, may be added to the old class within certain dollar and transitional rule limitations. See IT-79R3 and Regulation 1102(19).

[14] Includes buildings, other than office buildings not situated on mining property, structures, machinery, equipment and houses, schools, hospitals, sidewalks, roads, sewers, etc., necessary to establish community facilities for the operation of a mine. Qualifying assets are included in a special class for each mine. The full amount of undepreciated capital cost up to the amount of income from a mine may be claimed, or at least 30% of the undepreciated balance. Additional allowances on property for new or expanded mines (including property used for oil sands projects) may be claimed up to the income from the new facility; acquisitions that become available for use in the year, in excess of 5% of gross revenue from the mine, also qualify for the additional allowance, for property acquired after March 6, 1996. Based on the 2007 Budget, the accelerated CCA will continue to be available in full for assets acquired by the taxpayer before March 19, 2007. It will also be available for assets acquired by the taxpayer before 2020 that are required to complete a project phase on which major construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer began before March 19,

2007. For assets that do not qualify for the full retention of the accelerated CCA as outlined above, the availability of the additional allowance will be gradually phased out in respect of claims made over the period from 2011 to 2015.

[15] Specified property used primarily in manufacturing and processing may be allocated to one of the following classes: Class 29 (25%/50%/25% straight line), if acquired after March 18, 2007 and before 2012 (or after November 12, 1981 and before 1988); Class 39 (25%, see Reg. 1100(1)(ze) for transitional rates), if acquired after 1987 and before February 26, 1992; and Class 43 (30%), if acquired after February 25, 1992 and before March 19, 2007. Specified property includes property that would otherwise be in Class 8, an oil or water storage tank, a powered industrial lift truck, portable tools acquired for rental purposes, certain general purpose electronic data processing equipment and systems software, or electrical generating equipment described in Class 9 (see note 6). Powered industrial lift trucks, portable tools acquired for rental purposes, and general purpose electronic data processing equipment and systems software are excluded from Class 39 and 43. These items are included in Class 40 (30%, see Reg. 1100(1)(zf) for transitional rates), if acquired in 1988 or 1989, and after that, they are transferred to Class 10 (30%). General purpose electronic data processing equipment moved to Class 45 (45%) if acquired after March 22, 2004 (subject to an election up to the end of 2004); Class 50 (55%) if acquired after March 18, 2007; and Class 52 (100%) if acquired after January 27, 2009 and before February 2011.

[16] Acquired after May 25, 1976. Property of this type acquired before May 26, 1976 may be in a different class. See Schedule II of the Income Tax Regulations.

[17] Accelerated capital cost allowances are provided on certain prescribed vessels and conversion costs. Additional capital cost allowances (not exceeding 15% of undepreciated capital cost) are provided in respect of offshore drilling vessels in Class 7 by Regs. 1100(1)(va) and 1101(2*b*).

[18] Buildings acquired before June 18, 1987 that would otherwise be included in Class 3 or 6 and in respect of which a certificate is issued by the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Such buildings acquired before 1980 that would otherwise be in Class 6 are Class 32, 10%.

[19] Such property acquired after May 25, 1976 and before February 21, 1994 is Class 34. Such assets acquired after this date are eligible for CCA at 30% in Class 43.1. Assets acquired after February 22, 2005 and before 2020 may be eligible for a CCA rate of 50% in Class 43.2.

[20] Class 12 for metric scales or scales designed for ready conversion to metric weighing acquired after March 31, 1977 and before 1984. The scale must be for use in a retail business and must have a weighing capacity of no more than 100 kilograms.

[21] The heavy water must be acquired after May 22, 1979. Prior to May 23, 1979, a catalyst was depreciable at 1%.

[22] Automobiles acquired after November 12, 1981 for lease or rental other than to any one person for more than 30 days in a 12-month period.

[23] Items must be acquired for the purpose of renting to any one person for no more than 7 days in any 30-day period.

[24] Computer software in Class 12 is subject to the half-year rule. Systems software is in Class 10.

[25] Building must be used in farming or fishing business, or be unsupported below the ground, or have been acquired before 1979.

[26] The half-year rule does not apply to this item. It may be written off in full in the year of acquisition.

[27] The half-year rule applies to assets of this description acquired after December 31, 1987. Prior acquisitions could be written off at 100% in the year of acquisition.

[28] Trucks or tractors acquired after December 6, 1991 that have a gross vehicle weight rating in excess of 11,788 kg.

[29] Acquired after December 23, 1991. See the history note for Class 42 for the election that can be made.

[30] May be eligible for a separate class. Up to $50,000 of computer expenditures (hardware and software combined) may be eligible for 100% deduction in year of acquisition if acquired by a small or medium-sized business in the period January 1, 1998 to October 31, 1999 to deal with year 2000 problems.

[31] Railway equipment may be subject to additional allowances over and above the class rate. Railway system or parts allocated to Class 4 if acquired after the end of the taxpayer's 1958 taxation year and before May 26, 1976. Railway locomotives, railway cars and railway suspension devices acquired after February 27, 2000, (other than property included in paragraph 4 of Class 10) are eligible for Class 7 (15%) depreciation rather than a combined rate of 10% or 13% (7% + additional allowance of 3% or 6%) previously available. Leased assets are included in Class 7 (15%) only if the lessor elects specified leasing property treatment. Railway locomotives acquired after February 25, 2008 and not used previously by any taxpayer for any purpose are Class 10 (30%)

[32] After November 7, 2001, Class 41 for offshore drilling vessels will not be available if the Minister of Industry has agreed to a structured financing facility. In such a case, the maximum CCA rate applicable to the vessel and its attachments will be 15% under Class 7.

[33] Class 49 applies to new transmission pipelines. Taxpayers may elect, in the year the pipelines are acquired, to place them in a separate CCA class. The rate for new natural gas distribution pipelines acquired after March 18, 2007 changes from Class 1 (4%) to Class 51 (6%). Eligible assets will include control and monitoring devices, valves, metering and regulating equipment and other equipment ancillary to a distribution pipeline, but not buildings or other structures.

[34] Specified energy property rules applicable. Includes high efficiency cogeneration equipment which is used in combined heat and power (CHP) systems, capturing waste heat from an electrical generation process and using it for manufacturing or space heating. Renewable energy generation equipment includes wind turbines, small hydroelectric facilities, active solar heating equipment, fixed location photovoltaic equipment, geothermal energy equipment, and biogas production equipment. For assets acquired after March 18, 2007, eligibility under Class 43.1 and Class 43.2 includes the following changes: eligible active solar systems include commercial and residential applications; no minimum size requirement for eligible photovoltaic and fixed location fuel cell systems; building-integrated photovoltaic systems also eligible; the list of feedstocks that may be used in eligible biogas production systems extended; and the list of fuels that can be used in eligible cogeneration systems and systems that produce heat for use in an industrial process includes waste fuels generated at pulp and paper mills.

[35] For cogeneration equipment to be eligible for inclusion in Class 43.2 (50%), the equipment must be part of a high-efficiency cogeneration system; otherwise the equipment falls into Class 43.1 (30%).

[36] Additional allowance and separate class treatment available in certain circumstances. For 1995 and subsequent taxation years, the accelerated capital cost allowance incentive for Canadian-owned film or video productions was replaced by a Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit under the Income Tax Act; for taxation years ending after October 1997, other film or video productions may qualify for the Film or Video Production Services Tax Credit.

[37] Includes trailers designed for use on both highways and railway tracks.

[38] A straight-line method may be used for assets acquired before 1972 and used in a farming or fishing business.

[39] This item excludes landscaping costs deductible under paragraph 20(1)(aa) of the Act.

[40] Used for public transportation within a metropolitan area and not part of a railway system.

[41] Temporary access roads in the oil and gas mining sectors may qualify as Canadian exploration or development expenses.

[42] Not to be confused with wind energy conversion systems included in Class 43.1 or 43.2.

[43] Additional allowances are available for buildings in Class 1 acquired after May 18, 2007 (including new buildings which are under construction on March 19, 2007) that are used at least 90% (measured by square footage) for manufacturing and processing in Canada or for other non-residential purposes at the end of the year. The additional allowances are 6% for such a building used for manufacturing and processing and 2% for other non-residential buildings. In each case, the building is required to be placed in a separate class in order to claim the additional allowance.

[44] Certain general-purpose electronic data processing equipment and systems software for that equipment acquired after January 27, 2009 and before February 2011 is Class 52 (100%). Such property acquired after March 18, 2007, that is not not in Class 52, is Class 50 (55%). Such property acquired after March 22, 2004 and before March 19, 2007 is Class 45 (45%).

Tax Calendar

Scope of calendar

The following calendar shows the principal dates of the Income Tax Act and Regulations that govern the collection of federal income tax (including withholding, remittance, refund, assessment and objection) and the filing of tax information (including information returns, tax returns and common elections applicable to individuals). If one of the dates falls on a Sunday or other holiday, it is extended to the next business day by virtue of section 26 of the Interpretation Act.

Monthly Requirements

10th — Date by which employers with an average monthly withholding of $15,000 or more but less than $50,000 (for the second calendar year preceding a particular calendar year) must remit the income tax withheld from the remuneration paid after the 15th of the previous month (ITR s. 108(1.1)(a)(ii))

15th — Date by which employers with an average monthly withholding of under $15,000 must remit the income tax withheld from the remuneration paid for the previous month (ITR s. 108(1))

25th — Date by which employers with an average monthly withholding of $15,000 or more but less than $50,000 (for the second calendar year preceding a particular calendar year) must remit the income tax withheld from the remuneration paid before the 16th of the current month (ITR s. 108(1.1)(a)(i))

Last day — Date by which corporations must make their income tax instalments. No instalments are required if a corporation's first instalment base or total taxes payable under Parts I, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1 of the Act is $3,000 or less (ITA ss. 157(1) and 157(2.1))

Quarterly Requirements

15th — (March, June, September, December) — Dates by which income tax instalments must be made by individuals whose expected tax liability for the current year or each of the two preceding years exceeds their source deductions by $1,800 of federal income tax for a Quebec resident or $3,000 of combined federal and provincial income taxes for a non-Quebec resident (ITA ss. 156(1), 156.1(1) "instalment threshold" and 156.1(2)(b))

15th — (April, July, October, January) — Dates by which employers who have an average monthly withholding of less than $3,000 for the first or second preceding calendar year and no compliance irregularities for the preceding 12 months must remit the income tax withheld from the remuneration paid for the previous quarter (ITR s. 108(1.12))

Last day of fiscal quarter Date by which a Canadian-controlled private corporation may pay its tax instalments if: (1) it has a perfect income tax, sales tax, EI, and CPP compliance history; (2) it claimed the small business deduction in the current or previous year; and (3) it had a taxable capital employed in Canada of $10 million or less and a taxable income of $500,000 or less in the current or previous year (ITA ss. 157(1.1) and 157(1.2)(b))

Annual Calendar

Jan. 15 — Date by which employees having exercised in the previous year an option to acquire their employer's stocks or mutual fund trust units must file their election to defer the recognition of their employment benefit from the year the securities are acquired to the year they are sold (ITA ss. 7(8) and (10))

Feb. 14 — Date by which employees must reimburse their employer for all the operating costs incurred in the previous year for the personal use of an employer-provided automobile. Otherwise, an automobile operating cost benefit will be included in their income (ITA s. 6(1)(k))

Feb. 29 — Last day for individuals to make their RRSP contribution for a year preceding a leap year (ITA s. 146(5))

Feb. (last day) Date by which a T4, T4A or T4A-RCA information return reporting an employee's remuneration and benefits is due (ITR ss. 200 and 205(1))

Date by which a T4A information return reporting patronage payments is due (ITA s. 135; ITR ss. 205(1) and 218)

Date by which a T4RSP information return is due. The T4RSP is used to report amounts included in a taxpayer's income under an RRSP, an HBP or an LLP (ITA ss. 146, 146.01 and 146.02; ITR ss. 205(1) and 214)

Date by which a T4RIF information return is due. The T4RIF is used to report amounts included in a taxpayer's income under a RRIF (ITA s. 146.3; ITR ss. 205(1) and 215)

Date by which a T5 information return reporting interest, eligible or non-eligible dividends, capital gains dividends, or other investment income is due (ITR ss. 201 and 205(1))

Date by which a T5008 information return reporting proceeds paid in respect of securities transactions (mostly dispositions) is due (ITR ss. 205(1) and 230)

Date by which a T5003 information return reporting the acquisition of an interest in a tax shelter is due. If the business in respect of which the form is required was discontinued, the form is due by the earlier of the last day of February or 30 days after the discontinuance of the business (ITA ss. 237.1(7), (7.1) and (7.2))

Date by which a TFSA information return (the exact name and number of which has yet to be determined) is used to report the contributions, withdrawals, etc., made in respect of a tax-free savings account (As per current ITR s. 205(1) and proposed ITR s. 223)

Mar. 1 — Last day for individuals to make their RRSP contribution for a year preceding a non-leap year (ITA s. 146(5))

Mar. 31 — Date by which an NR4 information return is due. The NR4 is used to report income like interest, dividends, royalties, trust income, etc., paid to or received for the account of a non-resident in the preceding calendar year (ITA s. 212; ITR s. 202)

Date by which a T1-CP information return reporting the ownership of an interest in a certified film or video tape is due (ITR s. 225)

Date by which a T5013 information return prepared for a tax shelter partnership or for a partnership (including a SIFT partnership) that is composed exclusively of individuals (including trusts) throughout its fiscal period is due (ITR s. 229(5)(b))

Apr. 30 — Date by which the balance of tax owed by any individual (including one having until June 15 to file his/her T1 income tax return) is due (ITA ss. 156.1(4) and 248(1) "balance-due day")

Date by which individuals not carrying on a business in the year and whose cohabiting spouse or common-law partner is not carrying on such business must file their T1 income tax return (ITA s. 150(1)(d)(i))

June 15 — Date by which individuals carrying on a business in the year or whose cohabiting spouse or common-law partner is carrying on such business must file their T1 income tax return (ITA ss. 122.6 "cohabiting spouse or common-law partner" and 150(1)(d)(ii))

June 30 — Date by which the T2 income tax return of a corporation operating on a calendar-year basis is due (ITA s. 150(1)(a))

Dec. 31 — Date by which the income tax instalment payable by a farmer or fisherman for a particular year is due. The instalment is only required if the farmer's or fisherman's net tax owing for the particular year or either of the two preceding years exceeds $1,800 of federal income tax for a Quebec resident or $3,000 of combined federal and provincial income taxes for a non-Quebec resident (ITA ss. 155(1), 156.1(1) "instalment threshold", and 156.1(2)(a))

Contingent Calendar

The principal tax requirements which do not fall upon fixed dates but are instead related to some other event or duty are listed below under two categories: tax collection and tax filing.

Tax Collection

- Employers with an average monthly withholding of $50,000 or more (for the second calendar year preceding a particular calendar year) must remit the income tax withheld from the remuneration paid in each of the following periods within three days (excluding Saturdays or holidays) from each period: (i) the first seven days of the month; (ii) the period after the 7th and before the 15th day; (iii) the period after the 14th but before the 22nd day; and (iv) the part of the month after the 21st day. The remittances must be made to the account of the Receiver General at a designated financial institution or directly to the Receiver General on the day before the normal due date (ITA ss. 153(1) and 153(1.4); ITR ss. 108(1.1)(b) and 110)
- Employers required to remit their deductions twice a month by virtue of ITR s. 108(1.1)(a) or four times a month by virtue of ITR s. 108(1.1)(b) in respect of a given calendar year may elect to remit them only once a month or twice a month, respectively, if they qualified for this decelerated remittance in the immediately preceding calendar year (ITR s. 108(1.11))

- Employers ceasing to carry on their business on a given date have only seven days after that given date to remit their deductions (ITR s. 108(2))
- Taxpayers owing amounts of taxes, interest or penalties may be informed, by a registered letter sent by the Minister to their last known address, that their goods, chattels or moveable properties will be seized and sold unless those amounts are paid within 30 days (ITA s. 225)
- Taxpayers owing amounts of taxes, interest or penalties and leaving (or intending to leave) Canada may be asked, by a notice served personally or a registered letter sent by the Minister to their last known address, to pay those amounts immediately (ITA s. 226)
- Taxpayers having filed a return within 3 years from the end of a taxation year have 3 years from the earlier of the mailing date of the original notice of assessment or notification that no tax is payable to apply for a refund. Under the "Taxpayer Relief Provisions", the Minister may decide to grant a refund to a taxpayer beyond the 3-year period but within 10 years from the end of the taxation year. No refunds will be made under those relief provisions unless all returns required under the Income Tax Act, the Excise Act, 2001, the Excise Tax Act and the Air Travellers Security Charge Act have been filed by the taxpayer (ITA ss. 152(3.1), 152(4), 164(1)(a)(iii), 164(1)(b), 164(1.5), 164(2.01) and 164(7))
- Taxpayers holding amounts of unclaimed dividends, interest or sales proceeds, at the end of their taxation year for the account of unknown beneficial owners, must withhold and remit a tax on those amounts within 60 days from the end of the taxation year (ITA s. 153(4))
- Taxpayers objecting to an assessment must generally mail their notice of objection within 90 days from the mailing date of the notice of assessment. For individuals other than trusts and testamentary trusts, notices of objection from assessments concerning Parts I and I.2 taxes must be mailed on or before the later of 90 days after the mailing of the notice of assessment or one year after the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year (ITA s. 165(1))
- Taxpayers appealing to the Tax Court of Canada must serve their notice of appeal within 90 days from the mailing date of the reassessment or confirmed assessment, or after 90 days have elapsed from the mailing date of the notice of objection if the Minister never replied to that notice (ITA s. 169(1))
- Taxpayers receiving a notice of assessment showing an amount of tax assessed but remaining unpaid must pay the remainder immediately (ITA s. 158)
- Corporations having interest refunds and interest arrears have 90 days after the latest of the following dates to apply for an offset of the two amounts: (1) mailing dates of original assessment notices giving rise to the interests; (2) mailing dates of Minister's notifications where notices of objection were filed; and (3) issue dates of court decisions if appeals were filed (ITA ss. 161.1(2) and (3)(c))
- The Minister has normally 4 years after the mailing of the notice of original assessment for a mutual fund trust or corporation other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC), and 3 years for an individual, a CCPC or any other person, to reassess the taxpayer. Those time limits do not apply for taxpayers having made misrepresentations attributable to neglect, carelessness, or wilful default. If a corporation receives a provincial income tax reassessment caused by a reallocation of its taxable income earned in a province, the normal reassessment period is extended by one year after the later of the date the Minister is advised of the reassessment and 90 days after the mailing of the provincial reassessment notice ITA ss. 152(3.1) and 152(4))
- The Minister must wait 90 days after the mailing of the notice of assessment to commence actions to collect a tax debt (ITA ss. 225.1(1) and (1.1))
- The Minister has 10 years from the day that is 90 days after the mailing of the notice of assessment concerning a tax debt to commence an action to collect the tax debt but this 10-year period can be restarted in certain circumstances (ITA ss. 222(3), (4) and (5))
- The Minister has two years after an individual has ceased to be a director of a corporation to commence an action to recover amounts that were not deducted or remitted by the corporation (ITA s. 227.1(4))
- Corporations with a balance of tax due after having paid their instalments must pay the balance within three months after year-end for Canadian-controlled private corporations who claimed the small business deduction in the current year or preceding year and had a taxable income not exceeding $500,000 in the preceding year, and within two months after year-end for other corporations (ITA ss. 157(1) and 248(1) "balance-due day")
- Trusts governed by a deferred profit sharing plan that acquire a non-qualified investment or use a trust property as a security for a loan must pay the Part X tax within 10 days from the day of its acquisition or use (ITA s. 198(2))

Tax Filing

- Registered charities must file a T3010A information return within six months from the end of their fiscal period (ITA s. 149.1(14))

- Corporations must file a T2 income tax return within six months from the end of their taxation year if they have Part I tax payable for the year or if, at any time in the year, they are resident in Canada, carry on business in Canada, have a taxable capital gain or dispose of a taxable Canadian property (ITA s. 150(1)(a))
- The legal representative of a deceased taxpayer must file his/her T1 return (1) by the return's normal filing due date if the date of death is before November; (2) by the later of the normal filing due date and six months after the date of death if the date of death is after October but before the filing due date (ITA s. 150(1)(b))
- Taxpayers discontinuing a business must file the T3, T4, T5, T5008, NR4 and other information returns required under Part II of the Income Tax Regulations within 30 days from the date of discontinuance of the business (ITR s. 205(2))
- Trustees, estate administrators or any other persons controlling and receiving trust income (including interest, dividends, capital gains or other profits) in a fiduciary capacity for the account of trust beneficiaries must file a T3 information return within 90 days from the end of the trust's taxation year. However, this reporting obligation does not apply to a registered charity, cemetery care trust or trust governed by a deferred profit sharing plan, employee profit sharing plan, eligible funeral arrangement, registered education savings plan or tax-free savings account. To ensure the timely filing of the T3, public investment trusts must now make public some prescribed information on the website of CDS Innovations Inc. within 67 days after the end of the calendar year in which their taxation year ends. Other public trusts have 60 days after the end of their taxation year to provide the same type of information. (ITR ss. 204(3) and 204.1)
- A T600 Ownership Certificate must be filed on or before the 15th day of the month following the month of payment or negotiation by: (1) a financial company paying accrued interest on transfers of bonds, debentures or similar securities; (2) a debtor or encashing agent negotiating bearer coupons or warrants representing interest or dividend paid by any debtor or cheques representing interest or dividend paid by a non-resident debtor (ITA s. 234 and ITR ss. 207 and 211)
- Electric, gas or steam corporations must file an information return within six months from the end of their taxation year (ITR s. 213)
- Registered amateur athletic associations must file a T2052 information return within six months from the end of their fiscal period (ITR s. 216)
- Corporations and trusts wanting to certify for a taxation year that their shares, units or interests are qualified investments for the purpose of an RRSP, RESP, RRIF and TFSA must file a T3F information return within 90 days from the end of their taxation year (ITA ss. 146(1) "qualified investment", 146.1(1) "qualified investment", 146.3(1) "qualified investment", 207.01(1) "qualified investment", and 204 "qualified investment"; ITR s. 221(2))
- Partnerships composed exclusively of corporations must file a T5013 information return within five months after the end of their fiscal period; those composed exclusively of individuals (including trusts) or that are tax shelter partnerships must file it on or before March 31 of the calendar year following the calendar year in which their fiscal period ends; other partnerships must file it on or before the earlier of five months after the end of their fiscal period and March 31 of the calendar year following the calendar year in which their fiscal period ends. To ensure the timely filing of the T5013, public investment partnerships must now make public some prescribed information on the website of CDS Innovations Inc. within 67 days after the end of the calendar year in which their fiscal period ends. Other public partnerships must provide the same type of information by the earlier of 60 days after the end of the calendar year in which their fiscal period ends and four months after the end of that fiscal period (ITR ss. 229(5)(a), (b) and (c), and 229.1))
- Every member of a SIFT (specified investment flow-through) partnership liable to Part IX.1 tax for a taxation year must file a return in prescribed form (T5013) including an estimation of the tax no later than the date by which the same form must be filed by other partnerships. If a member having authority to act for the partnership has already filed the form, the other members do not have to file it again (ITA ss. 197(4) and (5), and ITR s. 229)
- Partnerships discontinuing their business must file the T5013 on or before the earlier of their normal filing due date and 90 days after the discontinuance of their activities (ITR ss. 229(5)(a), (b), (c) and (6))
- Corporations renouncing their Canadian exploration or development expenses for the benefit of investors having bought their flow-through shares must file a T101A information return before the end of the first month after the month in which the renunciation was made (ITA s. 66(12.7))

Legislative Provisions	Obligations	Deadlines
152(3.1) 152(4) 152(4.2) 152(6)	Minister's assessment or reassessment of tax, interest and penalties under Part I of the Act.	Within four years from the mailing of a notice of original assessment (or notification that no tax is payable for the taxation year) for a mutual fund trust or corporation other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC) or within three years from such mailing for an individual or a CCPC. The limitation period is extended by 3 years for taxpayers claiming deductions listed under subsection 152(6). If a corporation has received a provincial income tax reassessment caused by a reallocation of its taxable income earned in a province, its normal reassessment period is extended by one year after the later of two dates: (1) the date the Minister is advised of the reassessment, and (2) 90 days after the mailing of the provincial reassessment notice. The limitation period does not apply to a taxpayer having filed a valid waiver with the Minister during such a period or having made misrepresentations attributable to neglect, carelessness, or wilful default. The Minister is also allowed by the Taxpayer Relief Provisions to reassess individuals or testamentary trusts to refund or reduce their taxes but for no more than 10 calendar years back.
153 Reg. 108	Employers having deducted income tax from their employees' remuneration must remit the tax to the Receiver General by certain dates varying with the size of their average monthly deductions.	For employers whose average monthly deductions: • Are less than $3,000 and who are not in default of payment of their remittances over the previous 12 months: no later than April 15 re January, February and March payments; July 15 re April, May and June payments; October 15 re July, August and September payments; and January 15 re October, November and December payments. • Are less than $15,000: no later than the 15th day of the month following the month during which the source deductions were made. • Are between $15,000 and $49,999.99: no later than the 25th day of the same month for the remuneration paid in the first 15 days of the month and the 10th day of the following month for the remuneration paid from the 16th day of the month to the end of the month. • Are $50,000 or more: no later than the third working day after the end of the following periods: from the 1st to the 7th day of the month, from the 8th to the 14th day of the month, from the 15th to the 21st day of the month, and from the 22nd to the last day of the month. Note that employers ceasing to carry on their business on a particular date have only seven days after that date to remit their deductions.
155 156.1(2)	Farmers and fishermen whose net tax owing for the current and two preceding years is not less than $1,800 for a Quebec resident and $3,000 for another Canadian resident must pay their income tax by instalments.	The first instalment is equal to two-thirds of the lesser of (i) the estimated tax for the current year and (ii) the instalment base for the immediately preceding year, and must be paid by December 31 of the current year. The second one is equal to the balance of tax due and must be paid by April 30 of the following year.
156 156.1(2)	Individuals other than farmers and fishermen whose net tax owing for the current and two preceding years is not less than $1,800 for a Quebec resident and $3,000 for another Canadian resident must pay their income tax by instalments.	Under the first method, one-quarter of the lesser of (i) the estimated tax payable for the current year or (ii) the actual tax payable for the preceding year must be paid by March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15. Under the second method, one-quarter of the actual tax payable for the second preceding year must be paid by March 15 and June 15, and one-half of the excess of the actual tax payable for the preceding year over one-half of the actual tax payable for the second preceding year must be paid by September 15 and December 15. Any balance of tax due by the individual for the year must be paid by April 30 of the following year.

157 157(1.1) 157(1.2) 157(2.1)	Corporations whose total tax payable under Parts I, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1 of the Act for the year exceeds $3,000 must normally make monthly income tax instalments. Canadian-controlled private corporations meeting the following conditions may make their instalments quarterly: (i) they have a perfect compliance history; (ii) they claimed the small business deduction in the current or preceding year; and (iii) they have a taxable capital employed in Canada of $10 million or less and a taxable income of $500,000 or less in the current or previous year.	Regardless of the method used to calculate the income tax instalments of a corporation for a taxation year (see subsections 157(1) and 157(1.1) for more details on available methods), a corporation ineligible for the quarterly instalments will have to pay its instalments by the last day of each month of the year and a corporation eligible for quarterly instalments will have to pay them by the last day of each quarter of the year. Any balance of tax due must be paid within 3 months after year-end in the case of a Canadian-controlled private corporation having claimed the small business deduction in the current or preceding year, and within 2 months from year-end in the case of any other corporation.
164(1)(a)	Automatic refund by the Minister.	Provided an income tax return was filed within three years from the end of a taxation year, the Minister will automatically refund any overpayment for the year, with no need for the taxpayer to file a refund application. The Minister is also allowed under the "Taxpayer Relief Provisions" to reassess an individual or a testamentary trust beyond the normal three-year reassessment period (as long as it does not exceed ten years) to refund or reduce their taxes.
164(1)(b) 152(3.1) 152(4)(b) 152(6)	Refund application made in respect of a loss carryback to another year under paragraph 152(4)(b) and subsection 152(6).	Within seven years from the mailing of the original notice of assessment for a mutual fund trust or a corporation other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation, and six years for another taxpayer.
164(1)(b) 152(3.1)	Other refund application.	Within four years from the mailing of the notice of original assessment for a mutual fund trust or a corporation other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation, and three years for another taxpayer.
165(1)(a)	Objection to an assessment for an individual other than a trust or for a testamentary trust.	No later than: • One year after the filing due date of the return of income; and • Ninety days after the mailing date of the notice of assessment.
165(1)(b)	Objection to an assessment for other taxpayers.	Within 90 days from the mailing date of the notice of assessment.
166.1(1) 166.1(7)(a)	Application for an extension by the Minister of the time allowed to serve a notice of objection or make a request under subsection 245(6).	Within one year from the deadline for serving the notice of objection or making the request.
166.2(1)	Application for an extension by the Tax Court of Canada of the time allowed to serve a notice of objection or make a request under subsection 245(6) if the Minister refused the application or had not yet notified the taxpayer more than 90 days after the application was filed.	Within 90 days from the date the Minister's notification of his decision was mailed to the taxpayer.
167(1) 167(5)(a)	Extension of time to appeal to the Tax Court of Canada.	Within one year from the expiration of the time limit to appeal to the Tax Court of Canada.
169(1)	Appeal to the Tax Court of Canada.	• Within 90 days from the date the Minister's notice was mailed to the taxpayer to confirm the old assessment or issue a new assessment. • Within 90 days from the serving of the notice of objection to the Minister if he did not notify the taxpayer that he vacated or confirmed the old assessment or issued a new one.
172(3) 180	Appeal to the Federal Court of Appeal from refusal to register, revocation of registration, etc.	Within 30 days from the date of written notification of the Minister's decision.

Legislative Provisions	Obligations	Deadlines
198(2)	Requirement for the trustee of a trust governed by a deferred profit sharing plan having (i) acquired a non-qualified investment or (ii) used a trust property as security for a loan, to remit Part X Tax to the Receiver General.	Within ten days from the date the non-qualified investment was acquired by the trust or the trust property was used to secure the loan.
207.01(1) "exempt contribution" 207.01(1) "excess TFSA amount" 207.02	Following the death of a Tax-Free Savings Account planholder, the surviving spouse or common-law partner may transfer funds from the deceased's plan to his/her own plan without triggering the payment of Part XI.01 tax on an excess amount by making and designating that exempt contribution before the expiry of certain deadlines.	The exempt contribution must be made to the survivor's plan account no later than the end of the calendar year following the year of death and must be designated by filing a prescribed form in prescribed manner within 30 days after the date the exempt contribution was made.
207.07(1)	Any person liable for Part XI.01 Tax on excess contributions to a tax-free savings account for all or part of a calendar year must pay that tax and file a return in prescribed form.	Within 90 days from the end of the calendar year.
220(3.1)	Application for the cancellation of interest and penalties otherwise payable by a taxpayer in respect of a taxation year. The Minister has the authority to do it under the Taxpayer Relief Provisions.	Within ten calendar years from the end of the taxation year in respect of which the interest and penalties were assessed.
220(3.2)	Application for an extension of the time available to a taxpayer to make, amend, or revoke an election. The Minister has the authority under the Taxpayer Relief Provisions to grant such extension.	Within ten calendar years from the end of the taxation year in respect of which the election was made.
220(3.201) 60.03(2)	Extension of the limitation period available to spouses or common-law partners to make, revoke, or amend the joint election to split their pension income.	Within three calendar years from the filing-due date of the taxation year to which the election applies.
222(4)	Initial limitation period to collect a tax debt.	Beginning of the initial 10-year limitation period: • If a notice of assessment or a notice referred to in subsection 226(1) concerning a tax debt of a taxpayer leaving Canada is mailed to or served on the taxpayer after March 3, 2004, on the 90th day after the day the last notice was mailed or served. • In all other cases, on March 4, 2004, if the debt was payable on that date or would have been payable on that date but for a limitation period that otherwise applied to the collection of the debt.
222(5)	Restarted limitation period to collect a tax debt if one of the following conditions is met: • when the taxpayer acknowledges the debt in accordance with subsection 222(6); • when the Minister commences an action to collect the debt; or • when the Minister assesses a person in respect of the personal liability of the legal representative under subsection 159(3), of a debt concerning a transfer of properties between related persons under subsection 160(2) or of source deductions under paragraph 227(10)(a).	For a renewed 10-year period.

247(3)	Transfer pricing adjustments.	10% of the excess (if any) of: • The taxpayer's transfer pricing capital and income adjustments or setoff adjustments less the portion of such adjustments related to either qualifying cost contribution arrangements or transfer prices resulting from a reasonable effort from the taxpayer to establish an arm's length price; over • The lesser of $5 million and 10% of the taxpayer's annual gross revenue. If there is no excess, then there is no penalty.

Notes:

[1] 163.2(1) "excluded activity" in respect of a false statement, means the activity of

(a) promoting or selling (whether as principal or agent or directly or indirectly) an arrangement, an entity, a plan, a property or a scheme (in this definition referred to as the "arrangement") where it can reasonably be considered that

(i) subsection 66(12.68) applies to the arrangement,

(ii) the definition "tax shelter" in subsection 237.1(1) applies to a person's interest in the arrangement, or

(iii) one of the main purposes for a person's participation in the arrangement is to obtain a tax benefit; or

(b) accepting (whether as principal or agent or directly or indirectly) consideration in respect of the promotion or sale of an arrangement.

[2] Any person conceiving, selling or promoting tax shelters or similar arrangements (or participating in their conception, sale or promotion). See Paragraph 6 of Information Circular No. 01-1 "Third-Party Civil Penalties".

[3] 163.2(1) "planning activity" includes

(a) organizing or creating, or assisting in the organization or creation of, an arrangement, an entity, a plan or a scheme; and

(b) participating, directly or indirectly, in the selling of an interest in, or the promotion of, an arrangement, an entity, a plan, a property or a scheme.

[4] 163.2(1) "valuation activity" of a person means anything done by the person in determining the value of a property or a service.

[5] 163.2(1) "gross entitlements" of a person at any time, in respect of a planning activity or a valuation activity of the person, means all amounts to which the person, or another person not dealing at arm's length with the person, is entitled, either before or after that time and either absolutely or contingently, to receive or obtain in respect of the activity.

[6] 163.2(1) "gross compensation" of a particular person at any time, in respect of a false statement that could be used by or on behalf of another person, means all amounts to which the particular person, or any person not dealing at arm's length with the particular person, is entitled, either before or after that time and either absolutely or contingently, to receive or obtain in respect of the statement.

Rates of Withholding Tax under Income Tax Agreements Signed by Canada

This chart is intended for use only as a quick reference guide for the rates of withholding tax for selected types of payments under the income tax agreements Canada has signed with various countries. The rates listed in the chart are the maximum rates that Canada and the other country may withhold for the type of payment noted. Many of the treaties have unique exceptions and qualifications on withholding tax which cannot be listed in a chart such as this. Therefore, the specific treaty should be consulted when determining whether or not there is a tax liability exigible on a payment.

Notes:

[1] Not yet ratified.

[2] Revised by subsequent Protocol.

[3] No withholding tax under the treaty on certain types of interest. After 2007, the Canadian Income Tax Act exempts interest payments to non-residents from withholding tax, except for certain interest paid or payable to a non-arms length person or participating debt interest. See paragraph 212(1)(b).

[4] If recipient owns at least 10% of voting stock or has 10% of voting power of stock on which dividends are paid (see specific treaty).

[5] If recipient owns at least 15% to 25% of capital or voting power of stock on which dividends are paid (see specific treaty for level of ownership specified).

[6] Does not apply to dividends from a non-resident-owned investment corporation resident in Canada.

[7] Cultural royalties are exempt from withholding tax. These include copyright royalties for production or reproduction of literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work. They usually do not include royalties on films or videotapes.

[8] Cultural royalties, computer software, industrial, commercial or scientific "know-how" royalties are exempt.

[9] Alimony and child support taxed only in the country of person receiving the payment.

[10] Alimony and child support taxed only in the paying country.

[11] May be taxed in source country — No treaty rate.

[12] Exempt from tax in source country.

[13] Taxed only in source country.

[14] Certain pensions exempt from tax in both countries.

[15] Tax withheld only if payment over a certain amount.

[16] For pensions, tax withheld is not to exceed the amount that would be payable if the recipient were resident in the source country.

[17] For pensions and annuities, tax withheld is not to exceed the amount that would be payable if the recipient were resident in the source country.

[18] Under the Canada–U.S. Treaty, the Fifth Protocol provides that withholding tax on interest will be completely eliminated for interest paid or credited after December 31, 2009. The maximum rate for withholding on interest paid or credited between January 1, 2008 and December 31, 2008 is 7%, and 4% on interest paid or credited between January 1, 2009 and December 31, 2009.

The Fifth Supplement

The present version of the Income Tax Act has a complex history. Its origins are to be found in chapter 52 of the 1948 Statutes of Canada. That Act became chapter 148 of the 1952 Revised Statutes of Canada. A complete transformation of the tax legislation was introduced with S.C. 1970-71-72, c. 63, the legislation that implemented the 1972 tax reform. Section 1 of that Act was a sweeping amendment to the 1952 Act, which repealed and replaced nearly all its contents. That amending Act also introduced the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971.

Numerous amendments were made over the years to the 1972 Act — as well as to all other Acts of Parliament. Private publishers, such as CCH, issue consolidated versions of these Acts, for reasons of convenience. However, those are not official versions of the legislation. Legally, the official version of these texts is in the very form adopted by Parliament: an initial Act, and all the amendments subsequently made.

To alleviate the inevitable and ever-increasing complexity of the documentary mass resulting from this rule, Parliament periodically reissues all of the Acts in force at a given time. For instance, such revisions were made in 1952, in 1970, and in 1985. The revision process is a delicate one, which requires years of work by a Statute Revision Commission established for that purpose.

The mandate of the Commission, as it was for the most recent revision, permits it to: arrange, revise and consolidate the public general statutes of Canada; omit from the revision all Acts or parts thereof that have expired, have been repealed or suspended, or have had their effect; omit from the revisions all Acts or parts thereof that have reference only to a particular country, province, locality, place or body politic, or otherwise have no general application; include in the revision Acts or parts thereof that, although enacted as or in private Acts, or although deemed to be local Acts or enactments, are of such a character that they impose duties or obligations on, or limit the rights or privileges of, the public; alter the numbering and arrangement of the statutes and of the different Parts, sections and other divisions thereof; make such alterations in the language of the statutes as may be required to preserve a uniform mode of expression, without changing the substance of any enactment; make such minor improvements in the language of the statutes as may be required to bring out more clearly the intention of Parliament, or make the form of expression of the statute in one of the official languages more compatible with its expression in the other official language, without changing the substance of any enactment; make such changes in the statutes as are required to reconcile seemingly inconsistent enactments; and correct editing, grammatical or typographical errors in the statutes.

The Commission did prepare a revision of the public general statutes of Canada, which became law by virtue of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985 Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. 40 (3rd Supp.). However, the Income Tax Act was not part of the initial release of the Statutes. The Commission postponed the revision of that Act for a few years, and only recently added it to the corpus of the work. This procedure was allowed by section 12 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985 Act.

Thus, the Income Tax Act, along with the Income Tax Application Rules, were introduced in their revised form in the Fifth Supplement of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985. The cut-off date for that supplement was November 30, 1991; in other words, the Fifth Supplement contained provisions equivalent to the 1970-71-72 Act, with all the amendments that had come into force before December 1, 1991. A schedule to the Supplement provided for the repeal of the former Act and Income Tax Application Rules, and all amendments to the Act and Rules that received Royal Assent before December 1, 1991.

The Fifth Supplement was proclaimed in force effective March 1, 1994. On that date, the 1972 Act, and all the amendments that had been made to it over the years, were repealed, and replaced by the Fifth Supplement. The Income Tax Act became chapter 1 of R.S.C. 1985 (5th Supp.), while the Income Tax Application Rules became chapter 2.

Amending legislation enacted after November 1991, however, still had some validity: it still embodied the rules that Parliament wanted to implement. As a result, it was necessary for Parliament to re-enact that legislation, but this time, with a view to amending the text of the new Act. This was done by Bill C-15, which contained amendments equivalent to those assented to between November 30, 1991, and July 1, 1993. When Bill C-15 received Royal Assent on May 12, 1994, the new Act was up-to-date as of the date of its proclamation. Extensive amendments have been made since that time, and are reflected in the text of this book.

The new Act includes a great number of stylistic and structural changes. For example, provisions that might formerly have been broken down into paragraphs (a), (b), (c) etc. may now be structured as a formula.

A Table of Concordance is reproduced listing the sections of the former Act that have been restructured in the current Act. The Table reflects the Fifth Supplement, as amended by Bill C-15.

The First Supplement

The process of revising the Revised Statutes began soon after they were published. Congress enacted a number of statutes that amended various sections of the Revised Statutes. Some of these amendments were introduced with the phrase "Section [number] of the Revised Statutes is amended to read as follows," while others simply added new provisions to the Revised Statutes without explicitly amending any existing section.

Congress's amendments were not always consistent with the Revised Statutes. To alleviate this problem, Congress enacted several supplements to the Revised Statutes. The first supplement, published in 1874, contained all of the statutes that amended the Revised Statutes between 1873 and 1874. However, it did not incorporate the amendments into the text of the Revised Statutes. Instead, it printed the amendments separately from the Revised Statutes.

To alleviate the inevitable and ever-growing problem of the Revised Statutes becoming outdated, Congress periodically released updated versions of the Revised Statutes. The first such update was released in 1878, and it was followed by subsequent updates in 1891, 1901, 1911, 1916, 1926, 1931, 1936, 1941, 1946, 1951, 1956, 1961, 1966, 1971, 1976, 1981, 1986, 1991, 1996, 2001, 2006, 2011, 2016, 2021, and 2026. The revision process is a deliberative one that involves input from Congress, the executive branch, and the public.

The most recent update, published in 2026, is the result of a multi-year effort to revise and consolidate the public general statutes of the United States. The revision process began in 2021, when Congress passed a law directing the Office of the Law Revision Counsel to prepare a new edition of the Revised Statutes. The law provided for the revision of all public general statutes that were in force on January 1, 2021, and that had not been repealed, superseded, or expired by their own terms. The revision process was also required to take into account any changes in the law that had occurred since the last update, including changes made by executive orders, regulations, and judicial decisions.

The revision process was a complex and time-consuming one. The Office of the Law Revision Counsel worked with a team of attorneys, paralegals, and other staff members to review each statute and determine whether it should be repealed, amended, or retained. The team also had to consider the potential impact of each change on other statutes and on the overall structure of the law. In some cases, the team had to consult with experts in the relevant subject matter to ensure that the changes were accurate and appropriate.

The revision process was also subject to public scrutiny. The Office of the Law Revision Counsel published drafts of the revised statutes for public comment, and it held hearings to receive testimony from interested parties. The public comment process was an important part of the revision process, as it allowed the public to identify errors and suggest improvements to the revised statutes.

The final version of the 2026 update was published in December 2026. It contains all of the statutes that were in force on January 1, 2021, as well as any changes that were made to those statutes between that date and the date of publication. The update is available in both print and electronic formats, and it is expected to be used by lawyers, judges, and other legal professionals for many years to come.

Table of Concordance

While the Fifth Supplement to the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, as a general rule, did not change the numbering of the sections of the former Income Tax Act, it did make a substantial number of structural changes to the individual provisions. The following table relates those provisions of the former Act which underwent such change to the corresponding provisions of the Fifth Supplement as amended (the current Act). A blank space in the table indicates that there is no corresponding provision.

Proposed Amendments

Income Tax Act

The following table lists proposed amendments firstly, that have been tabled as bills or draft legislation, followed by Budget announcements and news releases, in reverse chronological order. The proposed amendments listed below are reproduced in the Income Tax Act in a box immediately following the provision affected.

Although former Bill C-10, Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006, ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008, CCH has continued to reproduce its provisions as pending amendments in the Income Tax Act in the boxes headed "Former Bill C-10". While it is expected that at least some of the provisions in the former Bill C-10 will be reintroduced, nothing from that Bill had been reintroduced as at publication date. In general, it is CCH's policy to reproduce the provisions of a government bill that is tabled or a private member's bill that passes through the House of Commons, as well as draft legislation released by the Department of Finance. As a result, with the exception of former Bill C-10 described above, the provisions of bills that ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and, for government bills, that have not been reintroduced, or for private members bills, that have not passed through the House of Commons, have not been reproduced as pending amendments in the CCH Income Tax Act and are not listed below.

Income Tax Act

R.S.C. 1985, Chapter 1 (5th Supp.), as amended

An Act respecting Income Taxes

Short Title

SECTION 1: Short Title.

This Act may be cited as the Income Tax Act.

Historical Note: The current Income Tax Act was proclaimed in force effective March 1, 1994. It replaced the former Act (c. 63, S.C. 1970-71-72) which was repealed by a schedule to the 5th Supplement of Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985.

The Income Tax Act was first enacted as chapter 52 of 1948, and later became chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952. At the time of the statute revision of 1970, the Income Tax Act was printed as chapter I-5, but its coming into force was prevented by the enactment of tax reform legislation. Section 1 of that legislation (c. 63, S.C. 1970-71-72) took the form of an amendment which repealed and replaced the Act almost in its entirety.

Part I Income Tax

DIVISION A — Liability for Tax

(1) Tax payable by persons resident in Canada. An income tax shall be paid, as required by this Act, on the taxable income for each taxation year of every person resident in Canada at any time in the year.

Editorial Note: The determination of whether a person is resident in Canada for the purposes of the Act is normally based on common law principles, although certain rules in section 250 deem a person to be resident (or not). The determination of residency is also subject to the provisions of any applicable income tax treaty, and subsection 250(5) generally ensures that a person cannot claim non-resident status under a treaty while simultaneously claiming resident status for the purposes of the Act.

Cases: The taxpayer, a U.S. resident, worked as a consulting engineer for a Canadian company. Factors such as higher profit coupled with higher risk, mobility and independence, indicate that the taxpayer was an independent contractor. Since he had no fixed base in Canada, he could not be taxed in Canada under Article XIV of the Canada-U.S. Tax Convention. Wolf v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 6853 (F.C.A.), reversing 2000 DTC 2595 (T.C.C.).

Rental income derived by a non-resident from a single family dwelling in Canada was income from property and not income from a business. There was no merit in the taxpayer's argument that inconsistency existed between the Minister's assessments under s. 155 and Part XIII. The onus was on the taxpayer to demonstrate that these two assessments cover the same income and he failed to do so. Gupta v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6326 (F.C.A.), affirming 99 DTC 224 (T.C.C.).

A U.S. resident performing services in Canada under contract was not subject to Canadian tax under Article XIV of the Convention because he did not have a "fixed base" in Canada. The expression "fixed base" is to be given a liberal interpretation. However, there is little difference in meaning between a "fixed base" and a "permanent establishment". The Queen v. Dudney, 2000 DTC 6169 (F.C.A.), affirming 99 DTC 147 (T.C.C.).

Considering that Article IV of the Canada–U.S. Tax Treaty referred to remuneration in respect of "an employment" (as opposed to "all employment"), the taxpayer's secondary level employment income of $2,474 from a B.C. university was not to be added to the taxpayer's employment income of $56,939 from a Vancouver law firm in the calculation of the $10,000 tax exemption under paragraph 2(a) of Article XIV. Prescott v. The Queen, 96 DTC 1372 (T.C.C.).

A taxpayer with permanent homes in both Canada and Germany was deemed for the purposes of the tax treaty with West Germany to be a resident of West Germany; he lived with his wife and children there, his coin business was located there, he was involved in the community there, his church ties were there and he had been appointed an honorary director of his local band there. Hertel v. M.N.R., 93 DTC 721 (T.C.C.).

A taxpayer was not ordinarily residing in Canada when he owned and occupied a dwelling in Alaska on a permanent basis and had established durable social and economic ties with the U.S.A., the centre of his vital interests. Despite the fact that his tax returns had incorrectly shown Alberta as his province of residence, he was not estopped from invoking the non-resident status. Pearson v. M.N.R., 93 DTC 1182 (T.C.C.).

A non-resident partner in a business in which he did not actively participate carried on a business in Canada because he participated in the profits and was not merely investing. Randall v. The Queen, 85 DTC 5208 (F.C.T.D.).

The Minister argued that a certain trust was a resident of Bermuda and Canada because the Canadian trustee had sole power to appoint other trustees and that he took a very active role in investment programs of the trust. The Court held that the trust was a resident in Bermuda only because the majority of the trustees were resident in Bermuda and the trust document permitted a majority decision on all matters of trustee discretion. Thibodeau Family Trust v. The Queen, 78 DTC 6376 (F.C.T.D.).

Profits on the purchase and sale in Canada of speculative mining shares by a mining exploration company operating in Ireland were not taxable as the company was not resident in Canada. Notwithstanding the fact that the company had a "head office" in Toronto and the fact that it had other facilities and carried on certain activities in Canada, the central management and control of the company was in Ireland. M.N.R. v. Tara Exploration and Development Co. Ltd., 72 DTC 6288 (S.C.C.), affirming 70 DTC 6370 (Ex. Ct.).

(2) Taxable income. The taxable income of a taxpayer for a taxation year is the taxpayer's income for the year plus the additions and minus the deductions permitted by Division C.

(3) Tax payable by non-resident persons. Where a person who is not taxable under subsection (1) for a taxation year

(a) was employed in Canada,

(b) carried on a business in Canada, or

(c) disposed of a taxable Canadian property,

at any time in the year or a previous year, an income tax shall be paid, as required by this Act, on the person's taxable income earned in Canada for the year determined in accordance with Division D.

Editorial Note: A non-resident's Part I income is computed in accordance with the rules provided in Division D (sections 115 through 116). However, most forms of passive investment income are subject to withholding tax under Part XIII. In either case, the non-resident's tax liability under the Act may be reduced or eliminated by an income tax treaty; see, for example, subparagraph 110(1)(f)(i), which allows a deduction of treaty-exempt amounts in computing taxable income.

DIVISION B — Computation of Income

Basic Rules

SECTION 3: Income for taxation year.

The income of a taxpayer for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part is the taxpayer's income for the year determined by the following rules:

(a) determine the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's income for the year (other than a taxable capital gain from the disposition of a property) from a source inside or outside Canada, including, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, the taxpayer's income for the year from each office, employment, business and property,

(b) determine the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of

(A) all of the taxpayer's taxable capital gains for the year from dispositions of property other than listed personal property, and

(B) the taxpayer's taxable net gain for the year from dispositions of listed personal property,

exceeds

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the taxpayer's allowable capital losses for the year from dispositions of property other than listed personal property exceed the taxpayer's allowable business investment losses for the year,

(c) determine the amount, if any, by which the total determined under paragraph (a) plus the amount determined under paragraph (b) exceeds the total of the deductions permitted by subdivision e in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (except to the extent that those deductions, if any, have been taken into account in determining the total referred to in paragraph (a)), and

(d) determine the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (c) exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's loss for the year from an office, employment, business or property or the taxpayer's allowable business investment loss for the year,

Pending Amendment

Interest Deductibility — October 31, 2003

Paragraph 3(d) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(d) determine the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (c) exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's loss for the year from a source that is an office, employment, business or property or the taxpayer's allowable business investment loss for the year,

Applicable: To taxation years that begin after 2004.

Explanatory Note:

Paragraph 3(d) and Description of "E" in the Definition of "Non-Capital Loss" in Subsection 111(8)

Both of these changes [the amendments to paragraph 3(d) and the description of "E" in the definition of "non-capital loss" in subsection 111(8)] are consequential amendments to proposed new subsection 3.1(1) of the Act, and clarify that it is only losses that are from a source that may be deducted in computing a taxpayer's income or considered to be non-capital losses under subsection 111(8) of the Act.

[Editorial Note: This amendment is part of the amendments released October 31, 2003 concerning the deductibility of interest and other expenses. Please refer to the notes accompanying proposed section 3.1.]

and for the purposes of this Part,

(e) where an amount is determined under paragraph (d) for the year in respect of the taxpayer, the taxpayer's income for the year is the amount so determined, and

(f) in any other case, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have income for the year in an amount equal to zero.

History: S. 3, the part following paragraph (d), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 1(1), applicable to the 1990 and subsequent taxation years. That part formerly read:

"and the amount, if any, determined under paragraph (d) is the taxpayer's income for the year for the purposes of this Part."

Editorial Note: A taxpayer's income cannot be negative. To the extent that losses under paragraph 3(d) exceed the amount determined after the application of paragraphs 3(a) through (c), the excess will constitute a non-capital loss (or farm loss, etc.), which will be subject to carryover rules found in section 111. Similarly, the excess, if any, of the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) over the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) will constitute a net capital loss, also subject to carryover rules. Note that section 3 also includes income from "unenumerated sources" — that is, from sources other than those expressly described in section 3 or other provisions of the Act (see the Supreme Court of Canada's decision in Schwartz, (96 DTC 6103)).

Note also that proposed draft section 3.1, reproduced after section 3, may deny the recognition of losses from business or property if the "cumulative profit" requirement described therein is not met. The government has not released any detailed information, or revised draft legislation concerning the October 31, 2003 draft legislation on interest deductibility and the reasonable expectation of profit (REOP) loss restrictions. Neither has the government deferred the effective date of these measures, which "came into effect" January 1, 2005.

The 2005 Federal Budget document indicated that a more modest legislative initiative had been prepared and would be released for comment "at an early opportunity". The Budget document also confirmed that the changes as they relate to interest deductibility are not intended to go beyond restoring the law and administrative practice to how it was being administered prior to the Supreme Court decisions in Ludco, 2001 DTC 5055; Stewart, 2002 DTC 6969; and Walls and Buvyer, 2002 DTC 6960. The Department of Finance acknowledged that the new statutory REOP test in draft section 3.1 might inappropriately catch a number of ordinary commercial expenditures. Further, at the September 2005 Annual Tax Conference held by the Canadian Tax Foundation, the Department stated that it intended to replace the REOP concept with a more modest "net income" concept. No mention was made of the issue in the 2006, 2007, 2008, or 2009 Federal Budget, and at the time of writing, the Department had not yet acted in amending or revoking the REOP draft legislation.

Federal Budget Extract

Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses

[Reproduced below is an excerpt from the February 23, 2005 Federal Budget that sets out an update from the Department of Finance on the proposals that were released on October 31, 2003. There have been no more recent updates on these proposals.]

In October 2003, the Department of Finance released for public consultation a package of legislative proposals regarding the deductibility, for income tax purposes, of interest and other expenses. The proposals responded to certain court decisions that departed significantly from what had been the accepted understanding of the law in this area.

In computing income from a business or property, a taxpayer can deduct many kinds of expenses, provided they were incurred in order to earn the income. A familiar example is interest on borrowed money, which is deductible only if the borrowed money is used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property.

In this context, "income" had been understood to be a net amount comparable to profit, and to exclude capital gains. The court decisions, however, took a different view: income was read as the equivalent of gross revenue, and the distinction between income and capital gains was blurred.

The 2003 proposals were intended to restore the law on these points to its more familiar and more appropriate state.

An extended period of public consultation on the proposals ended in August 2004. Many commentators expressed concerns with the proposals' structure: in particular, that the proposals' codification of an objective "reasonable expectation of profit" test might inadvertently limit the deductibility of a wide variety of ordinary commercial expenses. The Department of Finance has sought to respond by developing a more modest legislative initiative that would respond to those concerns while still achieving the Government's objectives. The Department will, at an early opportunity, release that alternative proposal for comment. This will be combined with a Canada Revenue Agency publication that addresses, in the context of the alternative proposal, certain administrative questions relating to deductibility.

Pending Amendment

Interest Deductibility — October 31, 2003

The Act is amended by adding the following immediately after section 3:

SECTION 3.1:

(1) Limit on loss. A taxpayer has a loss for a taxation year from a source that is a business or property only if, in the year, it is reasonable to expect that the taxpayer will realize a cumulative profit from that business or property for the period in which the taxpayer has carried on, and can reasonably be expected to carry on, that business or has held, and can reasonably be expected to hold, that property.

(2) Determination of profit. For the purpose of subsection (1), profit is determined without reference to capital gains or capital losses.

Applicable: To taxation years that begin after 2004.

Explanatory Note:

Proposed section 3.1

Proposed new subsection 3.1(1) of the Act provides that a taxpayer will be considered to have a loss from a source that is a business or property for a taxation year only if, in that year, it is reasonable to assume that taxpayer will realize a cumulative profit from the business or property,

- in the case of a business, during the time that the taxpayer has carried on, or can reasonably be expected to carry on, the business, or
- in the case of a property, during the time that the taxpayer has held, or can reasonably be expected to hold, the property.

Proposed new subsection 3.1(2) of the Act makes clear that profit, in the context of subsection 3.1(1), does not include capital gains or capital losses.

The commentary that follows elaborates on key features of these provisions and illustrates their application through the use of examples.

Timing

There are two key timing elements in this provision: the time at which an assessment is required regarding the reasonable expectation of profit from the business or property, and the time period (referred to below as the "profitability time period") over which the profitability expectations of the business or property will be measured.

Annual Evaluation

Regard must be had to subsection 3.1(1) in each year that a taxpayer seeks to report a loss from a business or property. For example, assume that a taxpayer starts a business ("Business X") in 2005 and — before applying new subsection 3.1(1) — is considered to realize losses from the business in the taxpayer's 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008 taxation years. For each of those years, an application of subsection 3.1(1) will be required. For the 2005 taxation year, the test under the subsection is whether it is reasonable in that same 2005 taxation year to expect that the taxpayer will realize a cumulative profit from Business X over the whole of the profitability time period. For 2006 the test is whether it is reasonable in the 2006 taxation year to expect a cumulative profit, again over the whole of the profitability time period. And for each successive year, the same test will be applied: is it reasonable in that year to expect the taxpayer to profit from the business over the entire profitability time period?

Assume further that in each of the taxpayer's 2005 to 2007 taxation years it is determined that it is indeed reasonable to expect that the taxpayer will profit from Business X over the profitability time period. The taxpayer will therefore have a loss, for each of those years, from the source that is Business X. However, if by 2008 it is no longer reasonable to expect that the taxpayer will realize a profit over the period that the taxpayer has, or can reasonably be expected to, carry on Business X, the test in new subsection 3.1(1) will not be met for the 2008 taxation year. The loss in 2008 will not be considered to be from a source and will not be deductible by the taxpayer. However, this determination in 2008 will not affect the previous conclusions reached in years 2005 through 2007: the losses for each of those years remain deductible.

Profitability Time Period

In determining whether it is reasonable to expect a taxpayer to realize a profit from a business or property, new subsection 3.1(1) has regard to the entire period over which the taxpayer holds the property or carries on the business. The beginning of that "profitability time period" will usually be uncontroversial: it is the time at which the taxpayer acquired the property or commenced carrying on the business. There may occasionally be cases where that starting point is not obvious, but it is expected that the existing law and practice will be able to resolve those.

Determining the end of the profitability time period, on the other hand, will often be more an exercise of reasonable expectation. The period runs, in principle, until the taxpayer disposes of the property or ceases to carry on the business. In most instances, however, this will not have happened before the end of the taxation year to which subsection 3.1(1) is being applied. Rather, the taxpayer will be seeking to deduct a loss from a property or business that the taxpayer still plans to hold or to carry on for some time to come. Subsection 3.1(1) therefore includes in its scope the entire period in which the taxpayer "can reasonably be expected" to carry on the business or to hold the property.

Cumulative Profit

Proposed subsection 3.1(1) requires an evaluation of expectations for cumulative profit and losses, by which is meant the aggregate profit or loss over the entire profitability time period. It is thus not necessary that the taxpayer demonstrate an expectation of profit — let alone an actual profit — in respect of any particular taxation year in order to be considered to have a reasonable expectation of profit. For instance, taxpayers will often realize a start-up loss from a business or property for one or more years before the business or property begins to generate a profit. The opposite can also happen: a taxpayer may realize a profit in one year and a loss in a subsequent year. In each instance, the relevant test is the expectation of cumulative profit over the whole of the profitability time period, and a taxpayer would be able to claim a loss provided their expectations for a cumulative profit over the entire relevant time period were reasonable.

Fact-Specific

Proposed subsection 3.1(1) requires that it must be reasonable in the circumstances of the particular taxpayer to expect to profit from the property or business. A specific taxpayer would not necessarily have a reasonable expectation of profit from a particular property solely because it might be reasonable, in other circumstances, for that property to yield a profit. For example, a rental property that produces rental revenue in excess of directly related rental expenses might on those facts alone be viewed as a property that should provide a taxpayer with a reasonable expectation of profit. However, if a particular taxpayer incurs a large amount of debt in order to purchase the property, such that the amount of interest expense associated with the property means that the particular taxpayer cannot realize a profit from the rental activity, then that taxpayer would not have a reasonable expectation of profit in respect of that rental activity. Note that in such circumstances, the taxpayer may intend to profit by reselling the property itself at a gain. If that were the taxpayer's intention, the gain would presumably be considered on income account and could be included in the determination of profit for the purposes of subsection 3.1(1). See the commentary to proposed subsection 3.1(2).

Objective Determination

By requiring that the profit expectation be reasonable, it is intended that the determination be made on an objective, and not a subjective, basis. This will very often make no difference to the result of the determination as most taxpayers are expected to act on a commercially rational basis. However, where a taxpayer has — or purports to have — expectations of profit that are objectively unreasonable, subjective beliefs will not suffice. For example, consider a taxpayer who borrows funds at an annual fixed rate of 8%, and uses those funds (and no others) to make an investment that has a fixed annual return of 5%. Further assume that the investment itself cannot increase in value. In this case, there is no reasonable expectation of profit, regardless of whether, on a subjective basis, the misinformed investor intended to profit. With no reasonable expectation of profit, the taxpayer will not be considered to have realized a loss from a source that is the investment. On the other hand, given that the taxpayer has expenses that exceed the revenue generated by the investment, it would be inappropriate to tax any amount of that revenue.

The above example also highlights that the test in proposed subsection 3.1(1) will not necessarily be met solely because there is no personal element to the carrying on of a business or the holding of a property.

Not Every Business Is a Source

The distinction between a business and a source of income or loss is important to understanding proposed section 3.1. The Act recognizes, and taxes, income only if it is income from a source. Similarly, a loss is deductible only if it is a loss from a source. Section 3.1 is intended to clarify that, in respect of businesses, it is only those losses from businesses that taxpayers carry on with a reasonable expectation of profit that are to be considered as losses from a source. This implies that a taxpayer may be conducting a business without the taxpayer having a reasonable expectation of profit from that business. This implication is deliberate, and is consistent with the description of "business" in subsection 248(1) of the Act and the general understanding that a business may exist whenever a taxpayer has the subjective intention to make a profit, whether or not there is objectively a reasonable expectation of profit.

That is to say that the fact that a taxpayer is carrying on a business, and incurs expenses that exceed revenues, does not by itself mean that the business is a source, such that the taxpayer may deduct the excess. Rather, as proposed section 3.1 makes clear, the taxpayer has a loss from a source that is that business only if the taxpayer has a reasonable expectation of profit from that business.

Asymmetrical: No Rule on Income

Proposed subsection 3.1(1) is not symmetrical, in that it does not address the circumstances under which income will be considered to be from a source. This is intentional, and the provision should not be construed as suggesting that a taxpayer has a source of income only where the taxpayer has a reasonable expectation of profit from that source. A system that allowed taxpayers to prove the unreasonableness of their profit expectations in an effort to have, on that basis, untaxed income, would be inappropriate.

Profit and Subsection 3.1(2)

The reference to "profit" in proposed subsection 3.1(1) is intended to mean profit determined in accordance with generally accepted commercial principles. This is consistent with case law and the meaning of "profit"for the purposes of subsection 9(1). Personal expenses are generally not incurred for the purpose of earning profit from a business or property. Therefore, in assessing the profitability expectations of a property or business personal expenses would first need to be eliminated. Proposed subsection 3.1(2) makes clear that profit, in the context of subsection 3.1(1), does not include capital gains or capital losses. For example, consider a taxpayer who purchases a rental property for the purpose of leasing it to non-arm's-length persons. The taxpayer estimates that the expenses of financing and maintaining the property will exceed the revenue from the rental activity. Nonetheless, despite what appears to be a money-losing venture, the taxpayer chooses to purchase the property with the expectation that a gain on the sale of the property will make up for the losses from the rental activity. In a sense, the rental activity could be viewed as a cost-defraying activity for what is really a property purchased with the intention to profit from its resale. In determining whether the taxpayer has a reasonable expectation of profit from this property, the expected gain on the sale of the rental property would be included in the determination of "profit" only if it would be taxed not as a capital gain, but rather as ordinary income.

SECTION 4:

(1) Income or loss from a source or from sources in a place. For the purposes of this Act,

(a) a taxpayer's income or loss for a taxation year from an office, employment, business, property or other source, or from sources in a particular place, is the taxpayer's income or loss, as the case may be, computed in accordance with this Act on the assumption that the taxpayer had during the taxation year no income or loss except from that source or no income or loss except from those sources, as the case may be, and was allowed no deductions in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year except such deductions as may reasonably be regarded as wholly applicable to that source or to those sources, as the case may be, and except such part of any other deductions as may reasonably be regarded as applicable thereto; and

(b) where the business carried on by a taxpayer or the duties of the office or employment performed by a taxpayer was carried on or were performed, as the case may be, partly in one place and partly in another place, the taxpayer's income or loss for the taxation year from the business carried on, or the duties performed, by the taxpayer in a particular place is the taxpayer's income or loss, as the case may be, computed in accordance with this Act on the assumption that the taxpayer had during the taxation year no income or loss except from the part of the business that was carried on in that particular place or no income or loss except from the part of those duties that were performed in that particular place, as the case may be, and was allowed no deductions in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year except such deductions as may reasonably be regarded as wholly applicable to that part of the business or to those duties, as the case may be, and except such part of any other deductions as may reasonably be regarded as applicable thereto.

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 4(3)(a) of the Income Tax Act is replaced by the following:

(a) subject to paragraph (b), all deductions permitted in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part, except any deduction permitted by any of paragraphs 60(b) to (o), (p), (r) and (v) to (x), apply either wholly or in part to a particular source or to sources in a particular place; and

Applicable: To the 2002 and subsequent taxation years.

Editorial Note: A coordinating amendment with S.C. 2007, c. 35 sets out that this Bill C-10 amendment will apply for the 2002 to 2006 taxation years.

Explanatory Note: Subsection 4(2) of the Income Tax Act provides that, in determining the income or loss from a source, no deductions are permitted under sections 60 to 64 of the Act. Subsection 4(3) provides that this rule does not apply, with the exception of certain deductions, in determining the foreign source income designated by a trust to a beneficiary under subsections 104(22) and 104(22.1), in determining a taxpayer's taxable income earned in Canada under section 115 and in determining a taxpayer's foreign tax credit under section 126 of the Act. The exceptions are for deductions permitted by paragraphs 60(b) to (o), (p), (r) and (v) to (w).

Paragraph 4(3)(a) is amended to expand the list of exceptions to include deductions permitted by paragraph 60(x) (e.g., repayment of Canada Education Savings Grants).

This amendment applies to the 2002 and subsequent taxation years.

(b) any deduction permitted by subsection 104(6) or (12) shall not apply either wholly or in part to a source in a country other than Canada.

History: S. 4(3)(a) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 101, applicable to the 2007 and subsequent taxation years. S. 4(3)(a) formerly read:

"(a) subject to paragraph (b), all deductions permitted in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part, except any deduction permitted by any of paragraphs 60(b) to (o), (p), (r) and (v) to (w), shall apply either wholly or in part to a particular source or to sources in a particular place; and"

S. 4(3) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 1(2), applicable to taxation years that end after November 12, 1981, except that for taxation years that begin before 1993, subsection 4(3) shall be read as follows:

"(3) The following rules apply for the purposes of this Act:

(a) in applying paragraph (1)(b) for the purposes of sections 115 and 126, subject to paragraph (b), all deductions permitted in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part shall apply either wholly or in part to a particular source or to sources in a particular place; and

(b) in applying subsection (1) for the purposes of subsections 104(22) and (22.1) and sections 115 and 126,

(i) any deduction permitted by any of paragraphs 60(b) to (o), (p), (r) and (v) to (w) shall not apply either wholly or in part to a particular source or to sources in a particular place, and

(ii) any deduction permitted by subsection 104(6) or (12) shall not apply either wholly or in part to a source in a country other than Canada."

S. 4(3) formerly read:

"(3) Deductions applicable. In applying paragraph (1)(b) for the purposes of sections 115 and 126, all deductions allowed in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part, except any deduction permitted by paragraph 60(b), (c), (d) or (i), shall be deemed to be applicable either wholly or in part to a particular source or to sources in a particular place, as the case may be."

Editorial Note: The often contentious issue of whether a person is an employee or an independent contractor relates largely to the fact that employees are only allowed those deductions specifically set out in section 8, whereas independent contractors are allowed deductions in accordance with the (broader) rules regarding the computation of income from a business.

Cases: Dancers at the Royal Winnipeg Ballet were independent contractors, not employees. Although the company exercised extensive control over their work, this was required to stage a season of performances. The understanding of the parties as to the nature of their legal relationship was relevant, although not conclusive. *The Royal Winnipeg Ballet v. As part of a wrongful dismissal settlement, the taxpayer received $3,080,000 to compensate him for the loss of an interest in his former employer's estate (which he had previously been promised). The settlement was not taxable because the estate interest it was intended to replace would not have been taxable, as granting it was not a term of the taxpayer's employment contract. The Queen v. Au, 2006 DTC 6074 (F.C.A.), affirming 2005 DTC 794 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer, a U.S. resident, worked as a consulting engineer for a Canadian company. Factors such as higher profit coupled with higher risk, mobility and independence, indicate that the taxpayer was an independent contractor. Since he had no fixed base in Canada, he could not be taxed in Canada under Article XIV of the Canada-U.S. Tax Convention. Wolf v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 6853 (F.C.A.), reversing 2000 DTC 2595 (T.C.C.).

Considering that the tax equalization payment received by the taxpayer from the taxpayer's U.S. employer was made pursuant to an element of the overall ongoing compensation package and was designed to induce the taxpayer to serve outside the U.S., it constituted part of the taxpayer's remuneration for services within the meaning of s. 5(1). *Gernhart v. (a) Value of benefits — the value of board, lodging and other benefits of any kind whatever received or enjoyed by the taxpayer in the year in respect of, in the course of, or by virtue of an office or employment, except any benefit

(i) derived from the contributions of the taxpayer's employer to or under a registered pension plan, group sickness or accident insurance plan, private health services plan, supplementary unemployment benefit plan, deferred profit sharing plan or group term life insurance policy,

(ii) under a retirement compensation arrangement, an employee benefit plan or an employee trust,

(iii) that was a benefit in respect of the use of an automobile,

(iv) derived from counselling services in respect of

(A) the mental or physical health of the taxpayer or an individual related to the taxpayer, other than a benefit attributable to an outlay or expense to which paragraph 18(1)(l) applies, or

(B) the re-employment or retirement of the taxpayer, or

(v) under a salary deferral arrangement, except to the extent that the benefit is included under this paragraph because of subsection (11);

Department of Finance Comfort Letter [Leave of Absence Plans]

June 30, 2000

Dear XXXX

Thank you for your letter of January 5, 2000 concerning the taxation of amounts paid to a participant under a leave of absence plan. I wish also to acknowledge your subsequent telephone conversations with Mr. Simon Thompson of this Division. I apologize for the delay in writing to you.

In your letter you describe a plan to fund "salary" of a plan participant on leave from employment. We understand that the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency has provided an advance ruling to the effect the plan will be a prescribed plan under paragraph 6801(a) of the Income Tax Regulations (and not a salary deferral arrangement or employee benefit plan). Amounts withheld and contributed to the plan from a participant's salary in a particular year will not be taxable in that year, but rather when received upon payment from the plan. We also understand that under the plan the investment income earned in each year on a participant's contributions to the plan will be allocated and paid out to the participant (and included in the participant's income for that year). The participant is required under the plan, however, to contribute the allocated income amount back to the plan ("re-contributions").

You are seeking a technical amendment to the income tax provisions so that the amount of re-contributions by a participant is excluded from the participant's income when paid out of the plan during the leave period. We agree that it would be appropriate that the return of re-contributions not be included in computing income. We will recommend that an amendment to this effect apply to the 2000 and subsequent taxation years.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director
Tax Legislation Division
Tax Policy Branch

History: S. 6(1)(a)(iii) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 2(1), applicable to the 1993 and subsequent taxation years. S. 6(1)(a)(iii) formerly read:

"(iii) that was a benefit in relation to the use of an automobile, except to the extent that the benefit related to the operation of the automobile,"

S. 6(1)(a)(v) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 3(1), applicable to the 1986 and subsequent taxation years.

Editorial Note: Certain benefits excluded under paragraph 6(1)(a) are dealt with elsewhere in the Act, e.g., subsection 6(4) for group term life insurance, paragraph 6(1)(e) for automobile standby charge and paragraphs 6(1)(k) and (l) for employer-paid automobile operating costs. The provision may not necessarily apply to an employee who is also a shareholder of a corporate employer and receives the benefit as a shareholder not as an employee. If this is the case, the benefit is considered received under subsection 15(1).

Cases: The taxpayers' employer partially reimbursed their children's university tuition in recognition of the students' academic achievement. The scholarship cheques were issued directly to the students. These were not employment benefits because the taxpayers received no measurable economic advantage from them. The Queen v. Bartley et al., 2009 DTC 5019 (F.C.A.), affirming 2008 DTC 3012 (T.C.C.) and 2008 DTC 3027 (T.C.C.).

The cost of the taxpayer's golf club membership was not included in his income since it was primarily for his employer's benefit. The value of a benefit to a particular taxpayer should be determined on an individual basis, taking into account actual use, as opposed to availability. Rachfalowski v. The Queen, 2008 DTC 3626 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer's daughter qualified for a $1,200 award from the university where the taxpayer worked. It was paid to the taxpayer who, in turn, gave it to her daughter to put towards her tuition. It was not an employment benefit since the taxpayer received it on a resulting trust for her daughter and received no measurable economic advantage from it. Okonski v. The Queen, 2008 DTC 2992 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayers were given free parking passes by their employer. For most of them, this was a taxable benefit since it eliminated their need to pay for parking. However, one taxpayer had no taxable benefit since the parking pass reduced the employer's costs associated with his extensive use of his car for employer business. Another taxpayer had no taxable benefit since he never used the pass. Adler et al. v. The Queen, 2007 DTC 783 (T.C.C.).

Generally, an employer's reimbursement of tuition fees for an employee's children constitutes a benefit under s. 6(1)(a), unless the fees are required to be paid due to the nature of the employment. Guay v. A.G. of Canada, 2005 DTC 5217 (F.C.A.), affirming 2003 DTC 3957 (T.C.C.).

Free parking spaces provided to employees were not considered to be taxable benefits where the employer received an economic benefit by providing the space. Chow et al. v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 164 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer sued her employer's group insurance carrier regarding denial of long-term disability benefits. The lump-sum settlement she received was taxable under s. 6(1)(a) as a benefit received by virtue of her employment. Dumas v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 2603 (T.C.C.).

A business trip which involved some travel by cruise ship and some sightseeing was not a taxable benefit. The test does not exclude pleasurable activities undertaken during the trip, so long as the business aspect predominates. The fact that it may help advance the taxpayer's career does not make it a taxable benefit. Romeril v. The Queen, 99 DTC 221 (T.C.C.).

Considering that the tax equalization payment received by the taxpayer from the taxpayer's U.S. employer was made pursuant to an element of the overall ongoing compensation package and was designed to induce the taxpayer to serve outside the U.S., it constituted part of the taxpayer's remuneration for services within the meaning of s. 5(1). Gernhart v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6026 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1672 (T.C.C.).

Since s. 6(1)(a) includes "any kind" of economic advantage arising from a taxpayer's employment which renders his office of greater value to him, the benefit received by the taxpayer by virtue of his and his guests' attendance at a Christmas party and staying overnight at the hotel was taxable. Dunlap v. The Queen, 98 DTC 2053 (T.C.C.).

Having regard to the fact that the overwhelming portion of the time spent by the taxpayer and his spouse in New Orleans had been devoted to business activities, no part of the trip expenses were to be regarded as a personal benefit. Lowe v. The Queen, 96 DTC 6226 (F.C.A.).

Airline travel received by a taxpayer as a result of "frequent flyer" points acquired while travelling on the employer's business constituted a benefit from employment. The correct measure of the amount of the benefit was the price that the taxpayer would have had to pay to purchase a ticket to travel on the same flight, in the same class, and subject to the same restrictions. Mommersteeg et al. v. The Queen, 96 DTC 1011 (T.C.C.).

Although each of five taxpayers' houses in Toronto may have been a significantly more valuable asset than their previous houses in Calgary, their equity in both houses was the same, so that the subsidization payments their employer had paid, when they were relocated to Toronto were merely a reimbursement of an employment expense from which they received no economic advantage. Attorney General of Canada v. Hoefele et al., 95 DTC 5602 (F.C.A.).

As part of a housing program termination package, the taxpayer received from his employer $7,240, which was included in his income considering that it arose out of an agreement entered into at the time of or before the period of his employment and it represented the money's worth of certain contractual rights which were of benefit to him. The Queen v. Blanchard, 95 DTC 5479 (F.C.A.), reversing 92 DTC 6585 (F.C.T.D.).

A police officer who received $500 per year from his employer to assist him in defraying the cost of clothing worn on the job was held not to have enjoyed any economic benefit. The taxpayer spent more on the clothing than he received, and the $500 was therefore nothing more than a reimbursement (as opposed to an "allowance"). The Queen v. Huffman, 90 DTC 6405 (F.C.A.).

(b) Personal or living expenses — all amounts received by the taxpayer in the year as an allowance for personal or living expenses or as an allowance for any other purpose, except

(i) travel, personal or living expense allowances

(A) expressly fixed in an Act of Parliament, or

(B) paid under the authority of the Treasury Board to a person who was appointed or whose services were engaged pursuant to the Inquiries Act, in respect of the discharge of the person's duties relating to the appointment or engagement,

(ii) travel and separation allowances received under service regulations as a member of the Canadian Forces,

(iii) representation or other special allowances received in respect of a period of absence from Canada as a person described in paragraph 250(1)(b), (c), (d) or (d.1),

(iv) representation or other special allowances received by a person who is an agent-general of a province in respect of a period while the person was in Ottawa as the agent-general of the province,

(v) reasonable allowances for travel expenses received by an employee from the employee's employer in respect of a period when the employee was employed in connection with the selling of property or negotiating of contracts for the employee's employer,

(v.1) allowances for board and lodging of the taxpayer, to a maximum total of $300 for each month of the year, if

(A) the taxpayer is, in that month, a registered participant with, or member of, a sports team or recreation program of the employer in respect of which membership or participation is restricted to persons under 21 years of age,

(B) the allowance is in respect of the taxpayer's participation or membership and is not attributable to services of the taxpayer as a coach, instructor trainer, referee, administrator or other similar occupation,

(C) the employer is a registered charity or a non-profit organization described in paragraph 149(1)(l), and

(D) the allowance is reasonably attributable to the cost to the taxpayer of living away from the place where the employee would, but for the employment, ordinarily reside,

(vi) reasonable allowances received by a minister or clergyman in charge of or ministering to a diocese, parish or congregation for expenses for transportation incident to the discharge of the duties of that office or employment,

(vii) reasonable allowances for travel expenses (other than allowances for the use of a motor vehicle) received by an employee (other than an employee employed in connection with the selling of property or the negotiating of contracts for the employer) from the employer for travelling away from

(A) the municipality where the employer's establishment at which the employee ordinarily worked or to which the employee ordinarily reported was located, and

(B) the metropolitan area, if there is one, where that establishment was located, in the performance of the duties of the employee's office or employment,

(vii.1) reasonable allowances for the use of a motor vehicle received by an employee (other than an employee employed in connection with the selling of property or the negotiating of contracts for the employer) from the employer for travelling in the performance of the duties of the office or employment,

(viii) [Repealed by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 2(1).]

(ix) allowances (not in excess of reasonable amounts) received by an employee from the employee's employer in respect of any child of the employee living away from the employee's domestic establishment in the place where the employee is required by reason of the employee's employment to live and in full-time attendance at a school in which the language primarily used for instruction is the official language of Canada primarily used by the employee if

(A) a school suitable for that child primarily using that language of instruction is not available in the place where the employee is so required to live, and

(B) the school the child attends primarily uses that language for instruction and is not farther from that place than the community nearest to that place in which there is such a school having suitable boarding facilities, and, for the purposes of subparagraphs (v), (vi) and (vii.1), an allowance received in a taxation year by a taxpayer for the use of a motor vehicle in connection with or in the course of the taxpayer's office or employment shall be deemed not to be a reasonable allowance

(x) where the measurement of the use of the vehicle for the purpose of the allowance is not based solely on the number of kilometres for which the vehicle is used in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, or

(xi) where the taxpayer both receives an allowance in respect of that use and is reimbursed in whole or in part for expenses in respect of that use (except where the reimbursement is in respect of supplementary business insurance or toll or ferry charges and the amount of the allowance was determined without reference to those reimbursed expenses);

CRA Press Release

2.5% Indexation Factor for 2009

See CRA Fact Sheet, dated December 8, 2008, that is reproduced following subsection 117.1(1). This release announces a 2.5% indexation factor applicable for 2009 tax bracket thresholds, personal amounts and other amounts relating to non-refundable credits, as well as the refundable medical expense supplement and Old Age Security repayment threshold. Increases to the Canada Child Tax Benefit (including the National Child Benefit supplement and the Child Disability Benefit) and the Goods and Services Tax Credit will take effect as of July 1, 2009.

S. 6(1)(b)(xi) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 2(2), applicable to the 1993 and subsequent taxation years. S. 6(1)(b)(xi) formerly read:

"(xi) where the taxpayer both receives an allowance in respect of that use and is reimbursed in whole or in part for expenses in respect of that use (except where the reimbursement is in respect of supplementary business insurance or parking, toll or ferry charges and the amount of the allowance is determined without reference to those reimbursed expenses);"

S. 6(1)(b)(vii), that portion preceding clause (A), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 3(2), applicable to the 1990 and subsequent taxation years. That part formerly read:

"(vii) allowances (not in excess of reasonable amounts) for travel expenses (other than allowances for the use of a motor vehicle) received by an employee (other than an employee employed in connection with the selling of property or negotiating of contracts for the employee's employer) from the employee's employer for travelling away from"

S. 6(1)(b)(vii.1) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 3(3), applicable to the 1990 and subsequent taxation years. S. 6(1)(b)(vii.1) formerly read:

"(vii.1) allowances (not in excess of reasonable amounts) for the use of a motor vehicle received by an employee (other than an employee employed in connection with the selling of property or negotiating of contracts for the employee's employer) from the employee's employer for travelling in the performance of the duties of the employee's office or employment,"

S. 6(1)(b), the portion following clause (ix)(B), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 3(4). That portion of s. 6(1)(b) following clause (ix)(B) and preceding subparagraph (x) is applicable to the 1990 and subsequent taxation years. Ss. 6(1)(b)(x) and (xi) are applicable to the 1988 and subsequent taxation years, except that these subparagraphs are not applicable to the 1988 and 1989 taxation years of an individual who so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing. All that portion of paragraph 6(1)(b) following clause (ix)(B) formerly read:

"and, for the purposes of subparagraphs (v), (vi) and (vii.1), an allowance received in the year by the taxpayer for use of a motor vehicle in connection with or in the course of the taxpayer's office or employment shall be deemed to be in excess of a reasonable amount

(x) where the measurement of the use of the vehicle for the purpose of the allowance is not based solely on the number of kilometres for which the vehicle is used in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, or

(xi) where the taxpayer both receives an allowance in respect of the use of the vehicle in connection with or in the course of the office or employment and is reimbursed in whole or in part for expenses in respect of the same use;"

Editorial Note: In contrast to paragraph 6(1)(a), which generally requires that an economic benefit be conferred upon an employee, paragraph 6(1)(b) includes any allowance in income regardless of whether an economic benefit is conferred, unless one of the listed exceptions applies. A reimbursement is not generally an allowance, and will normally be included, if at all, under paragraph 6(1)(a). Although the term "allowance" is not defined in the Act, it generally means a periodic or other payment received by an employee from his/her employer, in addition to his/her salary, if the employee does not have to account for its use.

Cases: The amount of $10,000 given by the CNR to assist a taxpayer with the purchase of a home in Winnipeg to replace the one he had sold in Moncton when he agreed to work at the CNR Winnipeg facility following the closing of the Moncton facility was taxable inasmuch as this sum increased the taxpayer's net worth by $10,000 and did not simply restore him to his previous financial state. *The Queen v. As a result of changes in passenger services effected by Via Rail, the taxpayer was given the option of receiving either a $22,000 lump sum or certain relocation benefits. The lump sum he elected to receive had not been paid to reimburse him for specific expenses actually incurred by him. It was an allowance that had to be included in his income. *Vickery v. (e.1) Goods and services tax — [Repealed by S.C. 1997, c. 10, s. 267(1).]

History: S. 6(1)(e.1) was repealed by S.C. 1997, c. 10, s. 267(1), applicable to the 1996 and subsequent taxation years. S. 6(1)(e.1) formerly read:

"(e.1) Goods and services tax — the total of all amounts each of which is 7% of the amount, if any, by which

(i) an amount (in this paragraph referred to as the 'benefit amount') that would be required under paragraph (a) or (e) to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of a supply, other than a zero-rated supply or an exempt supply, (within the meanings assigned by Part IX of the Excise Tax Act) of property or a service if no amount were paid to the employer or to a person related to the employer in respect of the amount that would be so required to be included

(ii) the amount, if any, included in the benefit amount that can reasonably be attributed to tax imposed under an Act of the legislature of a province that is a prescribed tax for the purposes of section 154 of the Excise Tax Act;"

S. 6(1)(e.1) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 1(1), applicable to the 1991 and subsequent taxation years. For its application to the 1991 taxation year, see S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 1(2) below. S. 6(1)(e.1) formerly read:

"(e.1) Goods and services tax — the total of all amounts, each of which is 7% of the amount, if any, by which

(i) an amount required under paragraph (a) or (e) to be included in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year in respect of a supply, other than a zero-rated supply or an exempt supply (within the meanings assigned by Part IX of the Excise Tax Act), of property or a service in respect of which section 173 of that Act applies

Cases: The taxpayer sued her employer's insurer after it discontinued long-term disability benefits. Since part of the lump-sum settlement she received was intended to replace accumulated arrears of disability payments, the surrogatum principle required that this portion be included in her income under s. 6(1)(f). Tsiaprailis v. The Queen, 2005 DTC 5119 (S.C.C.), affirming 2003 DTC 5246 (F.C.A.), reversing in part 2002 DTC 1563 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer negotiated a lump-sum settlement with his employer's insurer after being denied disability payments. The portion of the settlement that was intended to replace past benefits was taxable under s. 6(1)(f). Switzer v. The Queen, 2005 DTC 431 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer sued her insurer after it discontinued disability payments. A portion of her lump-sum settlement attributable to arrears is includable in income under s. 6(1)(f). Since no such allocation had been calculated, the matter was remitted to the Minister for reassessment in accordance with the Tsiaprailis decision. The Queen v. Siftar, 2003 DTC 5243 (F.C.A.), reversing in part 2001 DTC 938 (T.C.C.).

When the taxpayer was injured in an accident, her employer's group disability insurer denied her claim. But, following mediation, the taxpayer received a lump-sum settlement. Paragraph 6(1)(f) was inapplicable, since the settlement amount was not payable on a periodic basis. Fry v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 846 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer was employed with a corporation having a group disability insurance policy. When the policy carrier refused to meet his disability claim, he sued the carrier, but later received a settlement of $138,000 in return for an absolute release. Paragraph 6(1)(f) was inapplicable, since the amount received by the taxpayer was not payable to him on a periodic basis. Whitehouse v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 1616 (T.C.C.).

A taxpayer was not required to include in her income a lump sum settlement of $25,000 she had received under her employer's group long-term disability policy since it did not represent the aggregate of a series of payments which the taxpayer might have received over her lifetime. Landry v. The Queen, 98 DTC 1416 (T.C.C.).

(2) Reasonable standby charge. For the purposes of paragraph (1)(e), a reasonable standby charge for an automobile for the total number of days (in this subsection referred to as the "total available days") in a taxation year during which the automobile is made available to a taxpayer or to a person related to the taxpayer by the employer of the taxpayer or by a person related to the employer (both of whom are in this subsection referred to as the "employer") shall be deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is

(a) the lesser of the total kilometres that the automobile is driven (otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the taxpayer's office or employment) during the total available days and the value determined for the description of B for the year in respect of the standby charge for the automobile during the total available days, if

(i) the taxpayer is required by the employer to use the automobile in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(ii) the distance travelled by the automobile in the total available days is primarily in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(b) the value determined for the description of B for the year in respect of the standby charge for the automobile during the total available days, in any other case;

B is the product obtained when 1,667 is multiplied by the quotient obtained by dividing the total available days by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;

C is the cost of the automobile to the employer where the employer owns the vehicle at any time in the year;

D is the number obtained by dividing such of the total available days as are days when the employer owns the automobile by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;

E is the total of all amounts that may reasonably be regarded as having been payable by the employer to a lessor for the purpose of leasing the automobile during such of the total available days as are days when the automobile is leased to the employer; and

F is the part of the amount determined for E that may reasonably be regarded as having been payable to the lessor in respect of all or part of the cost to the lessor of insuring against

(a) loss of, or damage to, the automobile, or

(b) liability resulting from the use or operation of the automobile.

History: S. 6(2), the descriptions of A and B were replaced by S.C. 2003, c. 15, s. 69(1), applicable to the 2003 and subsequent taxation years. S. 6(2), the descriptions of A and B formerly read:

"A is the lesser of

(a) the total number of kilometres that the automobile is driven (otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the taxpayer's office or employment) during the total available days, and

(b) the value determined for B for the year under this subsection in respect of the standby charge for the automobile during the total available days, except that the amount determined under paragraph (a) shall be deemed to be equal to the amount determined under paragraph (b) unless

(c) the taxpayer is required by the employer to use the automobile in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(d) all or substantially all of the distance travelled by the automobile in the total available days is in connection with or in the course of the office or employment;

B is the product obtained when 1,000 is multiplied by the quotient obtained by dividing the total available days by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;"

Editorial Note: Generally speaking, the standby charge for employer-provided automobiles is reduced only if the distance travelled in the course of employment exceeds the distance of personal travel and the personal travel does not exceed 1,667 kilometres per month.

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Section 6 of the Act is amended by adding the following after subsection (3):

(3.1) Amount receivable for covenant. If an amount (other than an amount to which paragraph (1)(a) applies because of subsection (11)) is receivable at the end of a taxation year by a taxpayer in respect of a covenant, agreed to by the taxpayer more than 36 months before the end of that taxation year, with reference to what the taxpayer is, or is not, to do, and the amount would be included in the taxpayer's income for the year under this subdivision if it were received by the taxpayer in the year, the amount

(a) is deemed to be received by the taxpayer at the end of the taxation year for services rendered as an officer or during the period of employment; and

(b) is deemed not to be received at any other time.

Applicable: To amounts receivable in respect of a covenant agreed to after October 7, 2003.

Explanatory Note:

Amounts Receivable for Covenant

New subsection 6(3.1) of the Act provides that an employee is — if certain circumstances exist — required to include in the employee's income from employment for a taxation year an amount that is receivable at the end of a taxation year in respect of a covenant as to what the employee is, or is not, to do. Subsection 6(3.1) is added consequential to new section 56.4 of the Act which concerns the tax treatment of amounts received or receivable in respect of a restrictive covenant (additional commentary is provided in the explanatory notes accompanying new section 56.4). In contrast, amounts related to covenants made in the context of an office or employment are generally included in income on a "received" basis.

New subsection 6(3.1) applies to a receivable of an employee in respect of a covenant if

- the amount is not receivable under a salary deferral arrangement to which paragraph 6(1)(a) applies because of subsection 6(11) (in such cases, the amount is currently taxable as employment income even though it is receivable),
- the employee agreed to the covenant more than 36 months before the end of the taxation year, and
- the amount would be included in the taxpayer's income, as income from an office or employment, if it were received by the taxpayer in the year.

If applicable, subsection 6(3.1) provides that the amount receivable is deemed to be received by the taxpayer at the end of the taxation year for services rendered as an officer or during the period of employment, and that the amount is deemed not to be received at any other time (thereby precluding an inclusion because of the receipt).

In cases where subsection 6(3.1) deems an amount that is receivable to be received, new paragraph 60(f) provides a deduction in a subsequent taxation year if the amount becomes a bad debt.

Subsection 6(3.1) applies to amounts receivable in respect of a covenant agreed to after October 7, 2003.

(4) Group term life insurance. Where at any time in a taxation year a taxpayer's life is insured under a group term life insurance policy, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from an office or employment the amount, if any, prescribed for the year in respect of the insurance.

History: S. 6(4) was amended by S.C. 1995, c. 3, s. 1(2), applicable to insurance provided in respect of periods that are after June 1994. S. 6(4) formerly read:

"(4) Group term life insurance. Notwithstanding any exception provided for in paragraph (1)(a), there shall be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year as income from an office or employment the premium in respect of any period in the year before July 1994 for any excess over $25,000 of the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under a group term life insurance policy under which any life insurance was effected on the taxpayer's life in respect of, in the course of or because of, the taxpayer's office or employment or former office or employment, determined as the remainder obtained by

(a) dividing that proportion of the total premium (other than a prescribed premium) payable on account of life insurance under the policy in respect of the policy year that ends in the year, minus the amount of any dividend or experience rating refund payable on account of life insurance under the policy in respect of the policy year, that the number of days in that period is of the number of days in the policy year, by the mean of the total amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect under the policy at the beginning of the policy year and the total amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) so in effect at the end of the policy year,

(b) multiplying the quotient obtained under paragraph (a) by the excess over $25,000 of the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under the policy, and

(c) subtracting from the product obtained under paragraph (b) any amount that the taxpayer has reimbursed to the taxpayer's employer, or has paid, in respect of the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in excess of $25,000 in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under the policy, and in the case of a taxpayer on whose life any life insurance was in effect during any period in the year before July 1994 under more than one such group insurance policy,

(d) this subsection shall be read as requiring a separate determination of the amount or amounts, if any, to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of each particular policy, and

(e) the expression '$25,000' in this subsection shall be read as referring, in respect of a particular policy, to that proportion of $25,000 that the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under the policy is of the total amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under all of the policies."

S. 6(4) was amended by S.C. 1995, c. 3, s. 1(1), applicable to insurance provided in respect of periods that are in 1994 and before July 1994. S. 6(4) formerly read:

"(4) Portion of premium under certain group insurance policies. Notwithstanding any exception provided for in paragraph (1)(a), there shall be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year as income from an office or employment the premium in respect of any period in the year for any excess over $25,000 of the amount of life insurance in effect on the life of the taxpayer during that period under a group term life insurance policy under which any life insurance was effected on the life of the taxpayer in respect of, in the course of, or by virtue of the taxpayer's office or employment or former office or employment, determined as the remainder obtained by

(a) dividing that proportion of the total premium payable on account of life insurance under the policy in respect of the policy year ending in the year, minus the amount of any dividend or experience rating refund payable on account of life insurance under the policy in respect of the policy year, that the number of days in that period is of the number of days in the policy year, by the mean of the total amount of life insurance in effect under the policy at the commencement of the policy year and the total amount of life insurance so in effect at the end of the policy year,

(b) multiplying the quotient obtained under paragraph (a) by the excess over $25,000 of the amount of life insurance in effect on the life of the taxpayer during that period under the policy, and

(c) subtracting from the product obtained under paragraph (b) any amount that the taxpayer has reimbursed to the taxpayer's employer, or has paid, in respect of the portion of the premium attributable to the amount of life insurance in excess of $25,000 in effect on the taxpayer's life under the policy,

and in the case of a taxpayer on whose life any life insurance was in effect during any period in the year under more than one such group insurance policy,

(d) this subsection shall be read as requiring a separate determination of the amount or amounts, if any, to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of each particular policy, and

(e) the expression '$25,000' in this subsection shall be read as referring, in respect of a particular policy, to that proportion of $25,000 that the amount of life insurance in effect on the life of the taxpayer during that period under the policy is of the total amount of life insurance in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under all of the policies."

(13) Application. Subsection (11) does not apply in respect of a deferred amount under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of a taxpayer that was established primarily for the benefit of one or more non-resident employees in respect of services to be rendered in a country other than Canada, to the extent that the deferred amount

(a) was in respect of services rendered by an employee who

(i) was not resident in Canada at the time the services were rendered, or

(ii) was resident in Canada for a period (in this subsection referred to as an "excluded period") of not more than 36 of the 72 months preceding the time the services were rendered and was an employee to whom the arrangement applied before the employee became resident in Canada; and

(b) cannot reasonably be regarded as being in respect of services rendered or to be rendered during a period (other than an excluded period) when the employee was resident in Canada.

(14) Part of plan or arrangement. Where deferred amounts under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of a taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as "that arrangement") are required to be included as benefits under paragraph (1)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income and that arrangement is part of a plan or arrangement (in this subsection referred to as the "plan") under which amounts or benefits not related to the deferred amounts are payable or provided, for the purposes of this Act, other than this subsection,

(a) that arrangement shall be deemed to be a separate arrangement independent of other parts of the plan of which it is a part; and

(b) where any person has a right to a deferred amount under that arrangement, an amount received by the person as a benefit at any time out of or under the plan shall be deemed to have been received out of or under that arrangement except to the extent that it exceeds the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all deferred amounts under that arrangement that were included under paragraph (1)(a) as benefits in computing the taxpayer's income for taxation years ending before that time

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) all deferred amounts received by any person before that time out of or under the plan that were deemed by this paragraph to have been received out of or under that arrangement, and

(B) all deferred amounts under that arrangement that were deducted under paragraph 8(1)(o) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or preceding taxation years.

(17) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this subsection and subsection (18).

"disability policy" — "disability policy" means a group disability insurance policy that provides for periodic payments to individuals in respect of the loss of remuneration from an office or employment.

History: S. 6(17), the definition "disability policy" was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 68(1), applicable to payments made after August 10, 1994.

"employer" — "employer" of an individual includes a former employer of the individual.

History: S. 6(17), the definition "employer" was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 68(1), applicable to payments made after August 10, 1994.

"top-up disability payment" — "top-up disability payment" in respect of an individual means a payment made by an employer of the individual as a consequence of the insolvency of an insurer that was obligated to make payments to the individual under a disability policy where

(a) the payment is made to an insurer so that periodic payments made to the individual under the policy will not be reduced because of the insolvency, or will be reduced by a lesser amount, or

(b) the following conditions are satisfied:

(i) the payment is made to the individual to replace, in whole or in part, periodic payments that would have been made under the policy to the individual but for the insolvency, and

(ii) the payment is made under an arrangement by which the individual is required to reimburse the payment to the extent that the individual subsequently receives an amount from an insurer in respect of the portion of the periodic payments that the payment was intended to replace.

For the purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b), an insurance policy that replaces a disability policy is deemed to be the same policy as, and a continuation of, the disability policy that was replaced.

History: S. 6(17), the definition "top-up disability payment" was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 68(1), applicable to payments made after August 10, 1994.

(20) Benefit re eligible housing loss. For the purpose of paragraph (1)(a), an amount paid at any time in a taxation year in respect of an eligible housing loss to or on behalf of a taxpayer or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer in respect of, in the course of or because of, an office or employment is deemed to be a benefit received by the taxpayer at that time because of the office or employment to the extent of the amount, if any, by which

(a) one half of the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is so paid in the year or in a preceding taxation year exceeds $15,000

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income because of this subsection for a preceding taxation year in respect of the loss.

History: S. 6(20) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 2(2), applicable

(a) to the 2001 and subsequent taxation years in respect of an eligible relocation of an individual in connection with which the individual begins employment at a new work location before October 1998; and

(b) in any other case, after February 23, 1998.

Editorial Note: An "eligible housing loss" is defined in subsection 6(22) and is generally a loss incurred on the disposition of a house in respect of an "eligible relocation". An eligible relocation is defined in subsection 248(1) and generally means a relocation to enable the taxpayer to carry on employment or business at a new work location, where the taxpayer's new residence is at least 40 kilometres closer to the new work location than the taxpayer's former residence (the one that gave rise to the loss). One-half of a reimbursement of a taxpayer's eligible housing loss in excess of $15,000 is included in the taxpayer's income under subsection 6(20). In contrast, if the loss is not an eligible housing loss, the reimbursement will be fully included in the taxpayer's income under subsection 6(19).

(21) Housing loss. In this section, "housing loss" at any time in respect of a residence of a taxpayer means the amount, if any, by which the greater of

(a) the adjusted cost base of the residence at that time to the taxpayer or to another person who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, and

(b) the highest fair market value of the residence within the six-month period that ends at that time

exceeds

(c) if the residence is disposed of by the taxpayer or the other person before the end of the first taxation year that begins after that time, the lesser of

(i) the proceeds of disposition of the residence, and

(ii) the fair market value of the residence at that time, and

(d) in any other case, the fair market value of the residence at that time.

Editorial Note: Employee stock option benefits are generally included in income in the year of the exercise or disposition of the option, subject to two major exceptions. In the case of options granted by Canadian-controlled private corporations (subsection 7(1.1)), the inclusion of the benefit is normally deferred to the year in which the subject securities are disposed of. Similarly, in the case of corporate issuers whose shares are listed on a designated stock exchange (subsections 7(8) through (11)), the inclusion of the benefit may be deferred to the year in which the subject securities are disposed of. In either case, the amount of the benefit is added to the adjusted cost base of the securities; see paragraph 53(1)(j). Normally, one-half of the benefit is deductible in computing the employee's taxable income; see paragraphs 110(1)(d) and (d.1).

Cases: In return for helping him to find employment, the taxpayer paid a consultant a portion of the stock option benefits that he received from his new employer. The taxpayer received a lump sum payment in consideration of his releasing a company from its obligations under various stock option agreements. There was a potential conflict between s. 6(1)(g) and s. 7, when attempts were made to construe both groups of provisions as they applied to the taxpayer's employee stock ownership plan. However, the provisions of s. 7 prevailed since its language was more specific than the general language contained in s. 6(1)(g). M.N.R. v. Chrysler Canada Ltd. et al., 92 DTC 6346 (F.C.T.D.).

An agreement executed in Quebec by an employee to purchase shares of a non-arm's length corporation was considered to be a stock option. Gesser v. The Queen, 92 DTC 6273 (F.C.A.), reversing 89 DTC 5274 (F.C.T.D.), and affirming 84 DTC 1570 (T.C.C.).

(1.11) Non-arm's length relationship with trusts. For the purposes of this section, a mutual fund trust is deemed not to deal at arm's length with a corporation only if the trust controls the corporation.

Department of Finance Comfort Letter
[Expansion of Scope of Subsection 7(1.11) — Non-Arm's Length Relationship with Trusts]

December 4, 2006

Dear XXXX

I am writing in response to your letters and e-mails concerning subsection 7(1.11) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). I also acknowledge phone conversations that you and your colleague, XXXX have had with officials of this Branch.

Section 7 of the Act contains provisions dealing with agreements under which an employee of a corporation or mutual fund trust may acquire securities of the employer or of an entity that deals at non-arm's length with the employer. Subsection 7(1.11) deems a mutual fund trust to deal at non-arm's length with a corporation, for the purpose of section 7, only if the trust controls the corporation. Thus, in any other situation in which a corporation and a mutual fund trust deal at non-arm's length, the provisions of section 7 will not apply.

You have suggested that subsection 7(1.11) excludes certain other non-arm's length relationships between a mutual fund trust and a corporation that may not be offensive from a policy perspective, and have asked that the scope of subsection 7(1.11) be expanded accordingly.

We have considered this issue carefully and are prepared to recommend that the scope of subsection 7(1.11) be expanded to include a corporation and a mutual fund trust where the corporation owns securities that would give it more than 50% of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at a meeting of unitholders of the trust. As discussed, the securities to which such voting rights are attached would not be limited to units of the trust and could thus include, for example, securities that are exchangeable into units of the trust.

We will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the proposed amendment apply to rights exercised or disposed of after 2004 under agreements to sell or issue securities made after 2002.

While I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation in this regard, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
General Director — Legislation
Tax Policy Branch

(1.3) Order of disposition of securities. For the purposes of this subsection, subsections (1.1) and (8), subdivision c, paragraph 110(1)(d.01), subparagraph 110(1)(d.1)(ii) and subsections 110(2.1) and 147(10.4), and subject to subsection (1.31) and paragraph (14)(c), a taxpayer is deemed to dispose of securities that are identical properties in the order in which the taxpayer acquired them and, for this purpose,

(a) where a taxpayer acquires a particular security (other than under circumstances to which subsection (1.1) or (8) or 147(10.1) applies) at a time when the taxpayer also acquires or holds one or more other securities that are identical to the particular security and are, or were, acquired under circumstances to which any of subsections (1.1), (8) or 147(10.1) applied, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the particular security at the time immediately preceding the earliest of the times at which the taxpayer acquired those other securities; and

(b) where a taxpayer acquires, at the same time, two or more identical securities under circumstances to which either subsection (1.1) or (8) applied, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the securities in the order in which the agreements under which the taxpayer acquired the rights to acquire the securities were made.

History: S. 7(1.3) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(2), applicable to securities acquired, but not disposed of, before February 28, 2000 and to securities acquired after February 27, 2000. S. 7(1.3) formerly read:

"(1.3) Order of disposition of shares. For the purpose of subsection (1.1), a taxpayer shall be deemed to dispose of shares that are identical properties in the order in which the taxpayer acquired them."

Editorial Note: Subsection 7(1.3) provides that identical securities are disposed of in the order in which they were acquired for the purposes of the deferral rules — that is, those cases where the benefit is included in the year of the disposition of the securities rather than the year of acquisition (see subsections 7(1.1) and 7(8)). The ordering rule also applies for the purposes of determining the capital gain or loss on the disposition of the securities. Furthermore, if a taxpayer acquires securities that qualify for deferral and subsequently acquires identical securities that do not qualify for deferral, the latter are deemed to be acquired first, such that they will be deemed to have been disposed of prior to the deferral securities. Thus, a taxpayer holding both deferral securities and non-deferral securities that are identical will be deemed to dispose of the non-deferral securities first. The effect of the ordering rules is to defer, until all non-deferral securities have been disposed of, the benefit and capital gain or loss in respect of the identical deferral securities. The ordering rules in subsection 7(1.3) are subject to the elective rule in subsection 7(1.31) which can apply where a security is disposed of within 30 days of its acquisition. See also subsection 47(3), which provides that the securities eligible for the deferral are not identical to other securities, such that the averaging cost rules of subsection 47(1) do not apply.

(1.31) Disposition of newly-acquired security. Where a taxpayer acquires, at a particular time, a particular security under an agreement referred to in subsection (1) and, on a day that is no later than 30 days after the day that includes the particular time, the taxpayer disposes of a security that is identical to the particular security, the particular security is deemed to be the security that is so disposed of if

(a) no other securities that are identical to the particular security are acquired, or disposed of, by the taxpayer after the particular time and before the disposition;

(b) the taxpayer identifies the particular security as the security so disposed of in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year in which the disposition occurs; and

(c) the taxpayer has not so identified the particular security, in accordance with this subsection, in connection with the disposition of any other security.

History: S. 7(1.31) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(2), applicable to securities acquired, but not disposed of, before February 28, 2000 and to securities acquired after February 27, 2000.

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total value of the new securities immediately after the disposition

exceeds

(ii) the total amount payable by the taxpayer to acquire the new securities under the new option does not exceed the amount, if any, by which

(iii) the total value of the old securities immediately before the disposition

exceeds

(iv) the amount payable by the taxpayer to acquire the old securities under the exchanged option, for the purposes of this section,

(e) the new option shall be deemed to be the same option as, and a continuation of, the exchanged option, and

(f) the corporation referred to in subparagraph (b)(ii), (iii) or (iv), as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the particular corporation."

S. 7(1.4) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 4(4), applicable to the 1988 and subsequent taxation years, except that where the taxpayer so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing, subsection 7(1.4) is not applicable with respect to dispositions by the taxpayer occurring before July 14, 1990. S. 7(1.4) formerly read:

"(1.4) Rules where options exchanged. For the purposes of this section and paragraph 110(1)(d), where a taxpayer exchanges rights that the taxpayer has acquired under an agreement referred to in this section (in this subsection referred to as an 'exchanged option') on an amalgamation or merger of two or more corporations and receives no consideration for the disposition of the exchanged option other than rights under an agreement of the corporation resulting from the amalgamation or merger to issue or sell to the taxpayer shares of its capital stock or of the capital stock of a corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length (in this subsection referred to as a 'new option'), the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have disposed of the exchanged option and not to have acquired the new option;

(b) the new option shall be deemed to be the same option as, and a continuation of, the exchanged option; and

(c) the amalgamated or merged corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation."

Editorial Note: Subsection 7(1.4) provides a tax-free rollover and effective continuation of the option in the circumstances described therein. A key prerequisite is that the amount, if any, by which the new option is "in the money" (value of new securities in excess of exercise price) cannot exceed the amount by which the old option is in the money; see paragraph 7(1.4)(c).

(f) the qualifying person that issued the new securities is deemed to be the same person as, and a continuation of, the qualifying person that issued the exchanged securities, and

(g) where the exchanged securities were issued under an agreement, the new securities are deemed to have been issued under that agreement.

History: S. 7(1.5) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(5), applicable to dispositions and exchanges of securities by a taxpayer that occur after February 27, 2000. S. 7(1.5) formerly read:

"(1.5) Rules where shares exchanged. For the purposes of this section and paragraph 110(1)(d.1), where

S. 7(1.5) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 4(4), applicable to the 1988 and subsequent taxation years except that, where the taxpayer so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing, subsection 7(1.5) is not applicable with respect to dispositions by the taxpayer occurring before July 14, 1990. S. 7(1.5) formerly read:

"(1.5) Rules where shares exchanged. For the purposes of subsection (1.1) and paragraph 110(1)(d.1), where, in circumstances where subsection 85.1(1) or 87(4) apply, a taxpayer acquires shares of a Canadian corporation (in this subsection referred to as 'new shares') in exchange for shares of a Canadian corporation acquired under an agreement referred to in subsection (1.1) (in this subsection referred to as 'exchanged shares'), the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have disposed of or exchanged the exchanged shares and not to have acquired the new shares;

(b) the new shares shall be deemed to be the same shares as, and a continuation of, the exchanged shares;

(c) the purchaser (within the meaning assigned by section 85.1) or the new corporation (within the meaning assigned by section 87), as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the corporation that issued the exchanged shares; and

(d) where the exchanged shares were issued under an agreement, the new shares shall be deemed to have been issued under that agreement."

Editorial Note: Subsection 7(1.5) effectively provides that the recognition of the benefit in respect of the option under subsection 7(1), which would have been deferred under either subsection 7(1.1) or (8), can continue to be deferred notwithstanding that the taxpayer has acquired the new securities in exchange for the old shares that were acquired under the option. The recognition of the benefit will be deferred until the disposition of the new securities.

(1.7) Rights ceasing to be exercisable. For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(b) and 110(1)(d), where a taxpayer receives at a particular time one or more particular amounts in respect of rights of the taxpayer to acquire securities under an agreement referred to in subsection (1) ceasing to be exercisable in accordance with the terms of the agreement, and the cessation would not, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, constitute a transfer or disposition of those rights by the taxpayer,

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of those rights at the particular time to a person with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length and to have received the particular amounts as consideration for the disposition; and

(b) for the purpose of determining the amount, if any, of the benefit that the taxpayer is deemed by paragraph (1)(b) to have received as a consequence of the disposition referred to in paragraph (a), the taxpayer is deemed to have paid an amount to acquire those rights equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount paid by the taxpayer to acquire those rights (determined without reference to this subsection)

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer before the particular time in respect of the cessation.

History: S. 7(1.7) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(5), applicable to amounts received on or after March 16, 2001, other than amounts received on or after that day

(3) Special provision. If a particular qualifying person has agreed to sell or issue securities of the particular person, or of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, to an employee of the particular person or of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length,

(a) except as provided by this section, the employee is deemed to have neither received nor enjoyed any benefit under or because of the agreement; and

(b) the income for a taxation year of any person is deemed to be not less than its income for the year would have been if a benefit had not been conferred on the employee by the sale or issue of the securities.

History: S. 7(3) was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 3(6), applicable to the 1995 and subsequent taxation years, except that the reference in paragraph 7(3)(b) of the Act to "person" shall be read as "corporation" in respect of benefits conferred before March 1998. S. 7(3) formerly read:

"(3) Special provision. Where a corporation has agreed to sell or issue shares of the capital stock of the corporation or of a corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length to an employee of the corporation or of a corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length

(a) no benefit shall be deemed to have been received or enjoyed by the employee under or by virtue of the agreement for the purpose of this Part except as provided by this section; and

(b) the income for a taxation year of the corporation or of a corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length shall be deemed to be not less than its income for the year would have been if a benefit had not been conferred on the employee by the sale or issue of the shares to the employee or to a person in whom the employee's rights under the agreement have become vested."

Editorial Note: Paragraph 7(3)(a) ensures that the grant of the employee stock option does not itself generate a taxable benefit to the employee. (7) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and in subsection 47(3), paragraphs 53(1)(j), 110(1)(d) and (d.01) and subsections 110(1.5), (1.6) and (2.1).

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The portion of subsection 7(7) of the Act before the definition "qualifying person" is replaced by the following:

(7) Definitions. The following definitions apply in this section and in subsection 47(3), paragraphs 53(1)(j) and 110(1)(d) and (d.01) and subsections 110(1.5) to (1.8) and (2.1).

Applicable: After 1998. However,

(a) it does not apply to a right under an agreement to which subsection 7(7), as enacted by subsection 3(7) of the Income Tax Amendments Act, 1998, does not (except for the purpose of applying paragraph 7(3)(b) of the Act) apply; and

(b) before 2000, the portion of subsection 7(7) before the definition "qualifying person" is to be read as follows:

"(7) The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and in paragraph 110(1)(d) and subsections 110(1.5) to (1.8)."

Explanatory Note: Section 7 of the Act deals with agreements (generally referred to as stock options) under which employees of a corporation or mutual fund trust acquire rights to acquire securities of the employer (or a person with whom the employer does not deal at arm's length).

Subsection 7(7) of the Act defines the expressions "qualifying person" and "security" for the purposes of section 7 and certain other provisions of the Act relating to those agreements. "Qualifying person" is defined as a corporation or a mutual fund trust. "Security" is defined as a share issued by a corporation or a unit of a mutual fund trust.

Subsection 7(7) is amended to have these definitions also apply for the purposes of new subsections 110(1.7) and (1.8) of the Act. New subsection 110(1.7) ensures that a reduction in the exercise price under an employee security option will not disqualify the employee from claiming the security option deduction under paragraph 110(1)(d), provided certain conditions are met. New subsection 110(1.8) sets out the conditions that must be met in order for new subsection 110(1.7) to apply.

This amendment, which applies after 1998, is consequential to the enactment of new subsections 110(1.7) and (1.8). For additional information, see the commentary to those subsections.

History: S. 7(7), the portion before the definition "qualifying person" was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(8), applicable after 1997, except that (a) it does not apply to a right under an agreement to which subsection 7(7) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 3(7) of chapter 22 of the Statutes of Canada, 1999, does not (except for the purpose of applying paragraph 7(3)(b) of the Act) apply [See history for the definitions of "qualifying person" and "security" below for the application of such a right]; and

(b) before 2000, the portion of subsection 7(7) of the Act before the definition "qualifying person" shall be read as follows:

"(7) The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and in paragraph 110(1)(d) and subsections 110(1.5) and (1.6)."

S. 7(7), the portion before the definition "qualifying person" formerly read:

"(7) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and in paragraph 110(1)(d)."

S. 7(7) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 3(7), applicable after 1994. [See also the application below for the definitions "qualifying person" and "security".]

"qualifying person" — "qualifying person" means a corporation or a mutual fund trust.

History: S. 7(7), the definition "qualifying person" was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 3(7), applicable after 1994 but, except for the purpose of applying paragraph 7(3)(b) of the Act, does not apply to a right under an agreement made before March 1998 to sell or issue trust units to an individual unless

(a) the right was outstanding at the end of February 1998 and was not disposed of before March 1998 in circumstances to which paragraph 7(1)(b) of the Act, applies; and

(b) the individual so elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the later of

(i) the filing-due date for the individual's taxation year that includes the earlier of

(A) the time of the individual's death, and

(B) the time that the right was first disposed of after February 1998, and

(ii) the day that is six months after the end of the month in which this Act is assented to [December 31, 1999].

Related Sections: S. 132(6) Meaning of "mutual fund trust".

"security" — "security" of a qualifying person means

(a) if the person is a corporation, a share of the capital stock of the corporation; and

(b) if the person is a mutual fund trust, a unit of the trust.

History: S. 7(7), the definition "security" was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 3(7), applicable after 1994 but, except for the purpose of applying paragraph 7(3)(b) of the Act, does not apply to a right under an agreement made before March 1998 to sell or issue trust units to an individual unless

(a) the right was outstanding at the end of February 1998 and was not disposed of before March 1998 in circumstances to which paragraph 7(1)(b) of the Act applies; and

(b) the individual so elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the later of

(i) the filing-due date for the individual's taxation year that includes the earlier of

(A) the time of the individual's death, and

(8) Deferral in respect of non-CCPC employee options. Where a particular qualifying person (other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation) has agreed to sell or issue securities of the particular qualifying person (or of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length) to a taxpayer who is an employee of the particular qualifying person (or of a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person does not deal at arm's length), in applying paragraph (1)(a) in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of a security under the agreement, the reference in that paragraph to "the taxation year in which the employee acquired the securities" shall be read as a reference to "the taxation year in which the employee disposed of or exchanged the securities" if

(a) the acquisition is a qualifying acquisition; and

(b) the taxpayer elects, in accordance with subsection (10), to have this subsection apply in respect of the acquisition.

History: S. 7(8) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(9), applicable to the 2000 and subsequent taxation years.

Editorial Note: Employee stock option benefits are generally included in income in the year of the exercise or disposition of the option under subsection 7(1). However, where subsection 7(8) applies, the recognition of the benefit is deferred to the year of the disposition of the security acquired under the option. (9) Meaning of "qualifying acquisition". For the purpose of subsection (8), a taxpayer's acquisition of a security under an agreement made by a particular qualifying person is a qualifying acquisition if

(a) the acquisition occurs after February 27, 2000;

(b) the taxpayer would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection (8), be entitled to deduct an amount under paragraph 110(1)(d) in respect of the acquisition in computing income for the taxation year in which the security is acquired;

(c) where the particular qualifying person is a corporation, the taxpayer was not, at the time immediately after the agreement was made, a person who would, if the references in the portion of the definition "specified shareholder" in subsection 248(1) before paragraph (a) to "in a taxation year" and "at any time in the year" were read as references to "at any time" and "at that time", respectively, be a specified shareholder of any of

(i) the particular qualifying person,

(ii) any qualifying person that, at that time, was an employer of the taxpayer and was not dealing at arm's length with the particular qualifying person, and

(iii) the qualifying person of which the taxpayer had, under the agreement, a right to acquire a security; and

(d) where the security is a share,

(i) it is of a class of shares that, at the time the acquisition occurs, is listed on a designated stock exchange, and

(ii) where rights under the agreement were acquired by the taxpayer as a result of one or more dispositions to which subsection (1.4) applied, none of the rights that were the subject of any of the dispositions included a right to acquire a share of a class of shares that, at the time the rights were disposed of, was not listed on any designated stock exchange.

History: S. 7(9)(d)(i) and (ii) were amended by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 68(2), by replacing "prescribed stock exchange" with "designated stock exchange", applicable on and after December 14, 2007.

(10) Election for the purpose of subsection (8). For the purpose of subsection (8), a taxpayer's election to have that subsection apply in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of a particular security under an agreement referred to in subsection (1) is in accordance with this subsection if

(a) the election is filed, in the prescribed form and manner at a particular time that is before January 16 of the year following the year in which the acquisition occurs, with a person who would be required to file an information return in respect of the acquisition if subsection (8) were read without reference to paragraph (8)(b);

(b) the taxpayer is resident in Canada at the time the acquisition occurs; and

(c) the specified value of the particular security does not exceed the amount by which

(i) $100,000

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is the specified value of another security acquired by the taxpayer at or before the particular time under an agreement referred to in subsection (1), where

(A) the taxpayer's right to acquire that other security first became exercisable in the year that the taxpayer's right to acquire the particular security first became exercisable, and

(B) at or before the particular time, the taxpayer has elected in accordance with this subsection to have subsection (8) apply in respect of the acquisition of that other security.

Application

(5) An election by a taxpayer under subsection 7(10) of the Act to have subsection 7(8) of the Act apply is deemed to have been filed in a timely manner if

(a) it is filed on or before the 60th day after the day on which this Act is assented to;

(b) it is in respect of a security acquired by the taxpayer before the day on which this Act is assented to;

(c) the taxpayer is entitled to a deduction under paragraph 110(1)(d) of the Act in respect of the acquisition; and

(d) the taxpayer would not have been so entitled if subsection 110(1.7) of the Act, as enacted by subsection (2), did not apply.

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note:

Extended Deadline for Deferral Election

Where certain conditions are satisfied, subsection 7(8) of the Act allows an employee to defer taxation of a security option benefit to the year in which the employee disposes of the security. One condition is that the employee be eligible to claim the deduction under paragraph 110(1)(d) in respect of the benefit. Another condition is that the employee files an election to defer before January 16th of the year following the year in which the option is exercised (or before August 14, 2001 for securities acquired in 2000).

The coming-into-force provisions for subsections 110(1.7) and (1.8) extend the deferral election deadline for securities which are acquired before this legislation receives Royal Assent, and which become qualified for the deduction under paragraph 110(1)(d) only by reason of amended subsection 110(1.7), to the later of

- the election deadline that would otherwise apply, and
- the day that is 60 days after Royal Assent.

History: S. 7(10) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(9), applicable to the 2000 and subsequent taxation years except that an election under subsection 7(10) to have subsection 7(8) apply in respect of a security acquired in 2000 is deemed to have been filed in a timely manner if it is filed on or before August 13, 2001 [60 days after Royal Assent (June 14, 2001)].

Editorial Note: Effectively, in respect of options that vest in any one year, the election to defer the recognition of the benefit resulting from the exercise of the options is limited to $100,000 worth of securities acquired under the options (value determined at the time the option was granted).

(11) Meaning of "specified value". For the purpose of paragraph (10)(c), the specified value of a particular security acquired by a taxpayer under an agreement referred to in subsection (1) is the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the fair market value, determined at the time the agreement was made, of a security that was the subject of the agreement at the time the agreement was made; and

(a) except where paragraph (b) applies, 1, and

(b) where the number or type of securities that are the subject of the agreement has been modified in any way after the time the agreement was made, the number of securities (including any fraction of a security) that it is reasonable to consider the taxpayer would, at the time the particular security was acquired, have a right to acquire under the agreement in lieu of one of the securities that was the subject of the agreement at the time the agreement was made.

(13) Revoked election. For the purposes of this section (other than this subsection), an election filed by a taxpayer to have subsection (8) apply to the taxpayer's acquisition of a security is deemed never to have been filed if, before January 16 of the year following the year in which the acquisition occurs, the taxpayer files with the person with whom the election was filed a written revocation of the election.

History: S. 7(13) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(9), applicable to the 2000 and subsequent taxation years except that a written request under subsection 7(13), to revoke an election in respect of a security acquired in 2000 is deemed to have been filed in a timely manner if it is filed on or before August 13, 2001 [60 days after the day on which this Act receives Royal Assent (June 14, 2001)].

(14) Deferral deemed valid. For the purposes of this section and paragraph 110(1)(d), where a taxpayer files an election to have subsection (8) apply in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of a particular security and subsection (8) would not apply to the acquisition if this section were read without reference to this subsection, the following rules apply if the Minister so notifies the taxpayer in writing:

(a) the acquisition is deemed, for the purpose of subsection (8), to be a qualifying acquisition;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have elected, in accordance with subsection (10), at the time of the acquisition, to have subsection (8) apply in respect of the acquisition; and

(c) if, at the time the Minister sends the notice, the taxpayer has not disposed of the security, the taxpayer is deemed (other than for the purpose of subsection (1.5)) to have disposed of the security at that time and to have acquired the security immediately after that time other than under an agreement referred to in subsection (1).

(15) Withholding. Where, because of subsection (8), a taxpayer is deemed by paragraph (1)(a) to have received a benefit from employment in a taxation year, the benefit is deemed to be nil for the purpose of subsection 153(1).

History: S. 7(15) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 2(9), applicable to the 2000 and subsequent taxation years.

Editorial Note: Subsection 7(15) effectively provides that tax is not required to be withheld in respect of the benefit that is deferred by reason of subsection 7(8). The provision is silent as to withholding requirements in respect of other benefits taxable by virtue of subsection 7(1), including those deferred by reason of subsection 7(1.1). Historically, the CRA has indicated that withholding is required except in the cases of undue hardship (e.g. where the employee receives insufficient cash remuneration from which tax can be withheld); see the CRA documents listed below.

(b) Legal expenses of employee — amounts paid by the taxpayer in the year as or on account of legal expenses incurred by the taxpayer to collect or establish a right to salary or wages owed to the taxpayer by the employer or former employer of the taxpayer;

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 8(1)(b) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(b) Legal expenses of employee — amounts paid by the taxpayer in the year as or on account of legal expenses incurred by the taxpayer to collect, or to establish a right to, an amount owed to the taxpayer that, if received by the taxpayer, would be required by this subdivision to be included in computing the taxpayer's income;

Applicable: To amounts paid in the 2001 and subsequent taxation years.

Explanatory Note:

Legal Expenses of Employee

Paragraph 8(1)(b) of the Act allows the deduction of amounts paid by the taxpayer to collect or establish a right to salary or wages owed to the taxpayer by the taxpayer's employer or former employer.

Concern has been expressed that where an amount is not owed to the employee directly by the employer, any legal expenses incurred by the taxpayer would not be deductible under paragraph 8(1)(b), even though the amount, when received, would be taxable as employment income. This would be the case, for example, with respect to legal fees incurred by a taxpayer to collect insurance benefits under a sickness or accident insurance policy provided through an employer.

Paragraph 8(1)(b) is amended, effective for amounts paid after 2000, to allow a deduction for legal expenses incurred by a taxpayer to collect, or establish a right to collect, an amount that, if received, would be included in computing the taxpayer's employment income.

Federal Budget Extract

Simplifying Compliance With the Motor Vehicle Tax Provisions

[Reproduced below is an excerpt from the February 26, 2008 Federal Budget, which notes that the CRA plans to reduce the amount of record keeping required for automobile expense claims and taxable benefit calculations.]

To support motor vehicle expense claims and calculate taxable benefits, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) requires individuals to keep a detailed record (i.e. a logbook) of their business driving, including the total and business kilometres driven annually, as well as the date, destination, distance driven and purpose for each business trip. This requirement can be burdensome for taxpayers. The CFIB [Canadian Federation of Independent Business] has indicated that its members have identified the requirement to keep a logbook as the most burdensome aspect of the motor vehicle tax provisions.

In conjunction with the Office of the Secretary of State (Small Business and Tourism) and the CRA, simplification options were reviewed. To reduce the record-keeping burden and allow small business owners more time to devote to growing their firms, Budget 2008 proposes that maintaining a logbook during a sample period of time, that is representative of how the motor vehicle is used, be sufficient to support motor vehicle expense and taxable benefit calculations. To inform the development of the proposed record-keeping requirements, the CRA will undertake consultations in 2008 with key stakeholders, including the CFIB, and will implement a revised administrative policy in 2009.

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The portion of paragraph 8(1)(i) of the Act before subparagraph (i) is replaced by the following:

(i) Dues and other expenses of performing duties — an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year, or on behalf of the taxpayer in the year if the amount paid on behalf of the taxpayer is required to be included in the taxpayer's income for the year, as

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note:

Dues and Other Expenses of Performing Duties

Paragraph 8(1)(i) of the Act permits an employee to deduct certain dues and other employment expenses that are paid by the employee. Paragraph 8(1)(i) is amended, applicable on Royal Assent, to clarify that an expense described in that paragraph that is paid on an employee's behalf is deductible by the employee if the amount paid is required to be included in computing the employee's income.

(i) annual professional membership dues the payment of which was necessary to maintain a professional status recognized by statute,

(ii) office rent, or salary to an assistant or substitute, the payment of which by the officer or employee was required by the contract of employment,

(iii) the cost of supplies that were consumed directly in the performance of the duties of the office or employment and that the officer or employee was required by the contract of employment to supply and pay for,

(iv) annual dues to maintain membership in a trade union as defined

(A) by section 3 of the Canada Labour Code, or

(B) in any provincial statute providing for the investigation, conciliation or settlement of industrial disputes, or to maintain membership in an association of public servants the primary object of which is to promote the improvement of the members' conditions of employment or work,

(v) annual dues that were, pursuant to the provisions of a collective agreement, retained by the taxpayer's employer from the taxpayer's remuneration and paid to a trade union or association designated in subparagraph (iv) of which the taxpayer was not a member,

(vi) dues to a parity or advisory committee or similar body, the payment of which was required under the laws of a province in respect of the employment for the year, and

(vii) dues to a professions board, the payment of which was required under the laws of a province, to the extent that the taxpayer has not been reimbursed, and is not entitled to be reimbursed in respect thereof;

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subsection 8(1) of the Act is amended by adding the following after paragraph (l.1):

(l.2) Quebec parental insurance plan — an amount payable by the taxpayer in the year as an employer's premium under the Act respecting parental insurance, R.S.Q., c. A-29.011 in respect of salary, wages or other remuneration, including gratuities, paid to an individual employed by the taxpayer as an assistant or substitute to perform the duties of the taxpayer's office or employment if an amount is deductible by the taxpayer for the year under subparagraph (i)(ii) in respect of that individual;

Applicable: To the 2006 and subsequent taxation years.

Explanatory Note:

Quebec Parental Insurance Plan Premium

New paragraph 8(1)(l.2) of the Act permits a taxpayer to deduct, in computing income for a taxation year, an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year as an employer's premium under the new Quebec Parental Insurance Plan in respect of salary, wages or other remuneration, including gratuities, paid to an individual employed by the taxpayer as an assistant or substitute to perform the duties of the taxpayer's office or employment if an amount is deductible by the taxpayer for the year under subparagraph 8(1)(i)(ii) in respect of that individual.

This amendment applies to the 2006 and subsequent taxation years and is consequential to the introduction of the new Quebec Parental Insurance Plan on January 1, 2006.

(5) Dues not deductible. Notwithstanding subparagraphs (1)(i)(i), (iv), (vi) and (vii), dues are not deductible under those subparagraphs in computing a taxpayer's income from an office or employment to the extent that they are, in effect, levied

(a) for or under a superannuation fund or plan;

(b) for or under a fund or plan for annuities, insurance (other than professional or malpractice liability insurance that is necessary to maintain a professional status recognized by statute) or similar benefits; or

(c) for any other purpose not directly related to the ordinary operating expenses of the committee or similar body, association, board or trade union, as the case may be.

History: S. 8(5), the portion before paragraph (a) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 69(4), applicable to the 1996 and subsequent taxation years. S. 8(5), the portion before paragraph (a) formerly read:

(6) Apprentice mechanics. For the purpose of paragraph (1)(r),

(a) a taxpayer is an eligible apprentice mechanic in a taxation year if, at any time in the taxation year, the taxpayer

(i) is registered in a program established in accordance with the laws of Canada or of a province that leads to designation under those laws as a mechanic licensed to repair self-propelled motorized vehicles, and

(ii) is employed as an apprentice mechanic;

(b) an eligible tool is a tool (including ancillary equipment) that

(i) is acquired by a taxpayer for use in connection with the taxpayer's employment as an eligible apprentice mechanic,

(ii) has not been used for any purpose before it is acquired by the taxpayer,

(iii) is certified in prescribed form by the taxpayer's employer to be required to be provided by the taxpayer as a condition of, and for use in, the taxpayer's employment as an eligible apprentice mechanic; and

(iv) is, unless the device or equipment can be used only for the purpose of measuring, locating or calculating, not an electronic communication device or electronic data processing equipment; and

(c) a taxpayer who, for a taxation year, is not an eligible apprentice mechanic and has an excess amount determined under the description of C in subparagraph (1)(r)(ii) is, for the taxation year, entitled to claim a deduction under that paragraph as if that excess amount were wholly applicable to an employment of the taxpayer.

History: S. 8(6)(a)(i) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 2, s. 2(3), applicable to property acquired on or after May 2, 2006. S. 8(6)(a)(i) formerly read:

(13) Work space in home. Notwithstanding paragraphs (1)(f) and (i),

(a) no amount is deductible in computing an individual's income for a taxation year from an office or employment in respect of any part (in this subsection referred to as the "work space") of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the individual resides, except to the extent that the work space is either

(i) the place where the individual principally performs the duties of the office or employment, or

(ii) used exclusively during the period in respect of which the amount relates for the purpose of earning income from the office or employment and used on a regular and continuous basis for meeting customers or other persons in the ordinary course of performing the duties of the office or employment;

(b) where the conditions set out in subparagraph (a)(i) or (ii) are met, the amount in respect of the work space that is deductible in computing the individual's income for the year from the office or employment shall not exceed the individual's income for the year from the office or employment, computed without reference to any deduction in respect of the work space; and

(c) any amount in respect of a work space that was, solely because of paragraph (b), not deductible in computing the individual's income for the immediately preceding taxation year from the office or employment shall be deemed to be an amount in respect of a work space that is otherwise deductible in computing the individual's income for the year from that office or employment and that, subject to paragraph (b), may be deducted in computing the individual's income for the year from the office or employment.

Subdivision b — Income or Loss from a Business or Property

Basic Rules

SECTION 9:

(1) Income. Subject to this Part, a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business or property is the taxpayer's profit from that business or property for the year.

Editorial Note: The computation of profit is subject to six "guiding principles" set out by the Supreme Court of Canada in the Canderel (98 DTC 6100 (S.C.C.), reversing 95 DTC 5101 (F.C.A.)) and Toronto College Park (98 DTC 6088 (S.C.C.), reversing 96 DTC 6407 (F.C.A.)) decisions (see "Cases" below). According to these principles, a taxpayer is "free to adopt any method which is not inconsistent with" the provisions of the Act, legal principles and well-accepted business principles, although the method must also provide an accurate picture of the taxpayer's income position. However, since well-accepted business principles are interpretive aids only, and not rules of law, it appears that a method of computing profit which is consistent with the provisions of the Act and the legal principles will suffice, assuming that it provides an accurate picture of income (see, for example, the Urbandale Realty (2000 DTC 6118 (F.C.A.), reversing 97 DTC 5353 (F.C.T.D.) and 93 DTC 154 (T.C.C.)) decision under "Cases" below).

Cases: The taxpayers participated extensively in sports lotteries using a methodology that increased their potential payout and risk significantly. Although they lost 95% of the time, they had net winnings of $5,523,088. However, they were not professional gamblers who had a system to assess and minimize risks. The winnings were not business income but tax-exempt capital gains. Leblanc et al. v. The Queen, 2007 DTC 307 (T.C.C.).

A storage park operation carried on by a limited partnership constituted a source of income. Since it was commercial in nature, with no evidence of any personal element, the REOP test did not arise. Although the taxpayers were clearly motivated by tax considerations when purchasing their partnership interests, this does not detract from the commercial nature of the operation or its characterization as a source of income. The Queen v. Walls et al., 2002 DTC 6960 (S.C.C.), affirming 2000 DTC 6025 (F.C.A.), reversing 96 DTC 6142 (F.C.T.D.).

A two-stage approach is required in determining whether a taxpayer's activities constitute a source of income. First, has the activity been undertaken in pursuit of profit, or is it a personal endeavour? Secondly, if not personal, is the source of income a business or property? If there is a personal element, it will only be considered as a source of income if undertaken in a sufficiently commercial manner. REOP is only one of several considerations to be taken into account at this stage. Stewart v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 6969 (S.C.C.), reversing 2000 DTC 6163 (F.C.A.) and 98 DTC 1600 (T.C.C.).

Considering that the required approval of the taxpayer's invoices for progress payments had been given by its subcontractor prior to June 30, 1991, the holdbacks were receivable in 1991 and, as such, had to be included in income for that year. Supreme Steel Limited v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 5121 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1430 (T.C.C.).

A land developer was entitled to deduct a $2.9 million regional development charge in the year it was paid, even though none of the lands affected by the charge were sold by the taxpayer during that year. Urbandale Realty Corporation Limited v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6118 (F.C.A.), reversing 97 DTC 5353 (F.C.T.D.) and 93 DTC 154 (T.C.C.).

An over-quota levy in relation to the excess production of eggs was deductible since it was incurred as part of the taxpayer's day-to-day operations and was incurred for the purposes of earning income. The characterization of the levy as a "fine or penalty" was of no consequence. 65302 British Columbia Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5814 (S.C.C.), reversing 98 DTC 6002 (F.C.A.), which reversed 96 DTC 2049 (T.C.C.).

The corporate taxpayer had a "participation clause" in its lease, entitling it to a percentage of the lessor's annual net profits. In 1989, the taxpayer accepted a payment from its lessor to "buy-out" and cancel the participation clause. The "buy-out" payment was a capital receipt rather than income. The T. Eaton Company Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5178 (F.C.A.), reversing 96 DTC 1846 (T.C.C.).

The annual profit or loss of a business may be determined by any method that produces an accurate picture of the financial result of the operation of the business, and is consistent with the Act, established case law, and well accepted business principles. Well accepted business principles are not limited to GAAP and are not rules of law, but merely interpretive aids to be applied on a case-by-case basis. Toronto College Park v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6088 (S.C.C.), reversing 96 DTC 6407 (F.C.A.). Canderel Limited v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6100 (S.C.C.), reversing 95 DTC 5101 (F.C.A.).

The measure of damages paid to the taxpayer had been determined by reference to the present value of the income lost as a result of the reduced management fees brought about by its solicitor's errors. Considering that the taxpayer did not lose its capital asset inasmuch as he continued to provide management services and its solicitor's errors did not cripple its profit-making structure, the amounts received as damages were income. Prince Rupert Hotel (1957) Ltd v. The Queen, 95 DTC 5227 (F.C.A.), affirming 93 DTC 5243 (F.C.T.D.).

In reporting his income from his trading in gold futures, the taxpayer had used the "lowest cost of market" method. Although this method had led to substantial deferrals of income, there was nothing "artificial" involved since the taxpayer had reported his losses when they were incurred and his gains when they were realized. The "market to market" method was inappropriate to describe income since it involved recognizing all unrealized losses and gains. The Queen v. Friedberg, 93 DTC 5507 (S.C.C.), affirming 92 DTC 6031 (F.C.A.), reversing in part 89 DTC 5115 (F.C.T.D.).

Amounts earned but not billed were included in the taxpayer's income where the taxpayer had a clear legal right to payment for any electricity delivered and in any amount reasonably estimated. West Kootenay Power and Light Limited v. The Queen, 92 DTC 6023 (F.C.A.), affirming 91 DTC 5214 (F.C.T.D.).

(2) Loss. Subject to section 31, a taxpayer's loss for a taxation year from a business or property is the amount of the taxpayer's loss, if any, for the taxation year from that source computed by applying the provisions of this Act respecting computation of income from that source with such modifications as the circumstances require.

(3) Gains and losses not included. In this Act, "income from a property" does not include any capital gain from the disposition of that property and "loss from a property" does not include any capital loss from the disposition of that property.

Pending Amendment

Interest Deductibility — October 31, 2003

Subsection 9(3) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(3) Gains and losses not included. In this Act, income or loss from a business or property does not include any capital gain or capital loss.

Applicable: To taxation years that begin after 2004.

Explanatory Note: Subsection 9(3) of the Act provides that "income from a property" and "loss from a property" do not include, respectively, any capital gain from the disposition of that property or any capital loss from the disposition of that property.

Subsection 9(3) is amended to clarify that income or loss from a business does not include any capital gains or losses. Income and capital gain (and loss and capital loss) have always been viewed as two different items for tax purposes; therefore, this amendment simply makes clear what was always the case under the law.

[Editorial Note: This amendment is part of the amendments released October 31, 2003 concerning the deductibility of interest and other expenses. Please refer to the notes accompanying proposed section 3.1.]

(1) Valuation of inventory. For the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business that is not an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, property described in an inventory shall be valued at the end of the year at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property or its fair market value at the end of the year, whichever is lower, or in a prescribed manner.

History: S. 10(1) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 70(1), applicable
(a) to taxation years that end after December 20, 1995;
(b) in respect of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, to taxation years of a taxpayer that end before December 21, 1995, except where
(i) the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year is after December 20, 1995, or
(ii) the taxpayer has valued the inventory of the business for the purpose of computing income for the year from the business at an amount that is less than the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property, which valuation is reflected in a return of income, notice of objection or notice of appeal filed or served under the Act before December 21, 1995; and
(c) in respect of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, to fiscal periods of a partnership that end before December 21, 1995, except where
(i) the filing-due dates of all of the members of the partnership for their taxation years that include the end of the fiscal period are after December 20, 1995, or
(ii) the partnership has valued the inventory of the business for the purpose of computing income for the fiscal period from the business at an amount that is less than the cost at which the partnership acquired the property, which valuation is reflected in a return of income, notice of objection or notice of appeal filed or served under the Act before December 21, 1995 by any member of the partnership.

S. 10(1) formerly read:

"(1) Valuation of inventory. For the purpose of computing income from a business, inventory shall be valued at its cost to the taxpayer or its fair market value, whichever is lower, or in such other manner as may be permitted by regulation."

Editorial Note: Since the cost of inventory for purposes of subsection 10(1) means its acquisition cost, under the lower of cost or fair market value method, any write-down in the value of inventory must be written "back up" if the value subsequently increases, but only to the acquisition cost. Regulation 1801 allows all inventories of a business to be valued at fair market value; see regulation 1802 for rules regarding the valuation of animals.

(1.1) Certain expenses included in cost. For the purposes of subsections (1), (1.01) and (10), where land is described in an inventory of a business of a taxpayer, the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the land shall include each amount that is

(a) described in paragraph 18(2)(a) or (b) in respect of the land and for which no deduction is permitted to the taxpayer, or to another person or partnership that is

(i) a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(ii) if the taxpayer is a corporation, a person or partnership that is a specified shareholder of the taxpayer, or

(iii) if the taxpayer is a partnership, a person or partnership whose share of any income or loss of the taxpayer is 10% or more; and

(b) not included in or added to the cost to that other person or partnership of any property otherwise than because of paragraph 53(1)(d.3) or subparagraph 53(1)(e)(xi).

History: S. 10(1.1) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 70(1), applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after December 20, 1995;

(b) in respect of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, to taxation years of a taxpayer that end before December 21, 1995, except where

(i) the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year is after December 20, 1995, or

(ii) the taxpayer has valued the inventory of the business for the purpose of computing income for the year from the business at an amount that is less than the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property, which valuation is reflected in a return of income, notice of objection or notice of appeal filed or served under the Act before December 21, 1995; and

(c) in respect of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, to fiscal periods of a partnership that end before December 21, 1995, except where

(i) the filing-due dates of all of the members of the partnership for their taxation years that include the end of the fiscal period are after December 20, 1995, or

(ii) the partnership has valued the inventory of the business for the purpose of computing income for the fiscal period from the business at an amount that is less than the cost at which the partnership acquired the property, which valuation is reflected in a return of income, notice of objection or notice of appeal filed or served under the Act before December 21, 1995 by any member of the partnership.

S. 10(1.1) formerly read:

"(1.1) Certain expenses included in cost. For the purpose of subsection (1), the cost to a particular taxpayer of land that is described in the inventory of a business carried on by the taxpayer shall include each amount described in paragraph 18(2)(a) or (b) in respect of that land for which no deduction is permitted to the taxpayer or to another person in respect of whom the taxpayer was a person, corporation or partnership described in subparagraph (b)(i), (ii) or (iii) of the definition 'interest on debt relating to the acquisition of land' in subsection 18(3), where that amount was not included in or added to the cost to that other person of any property otherwise than because of paragraph 53(1)(d.3) or subparagraph 53(1)(e)(xi)."

S. 10(1.1) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 6(1), applicable to the 1988 and subsequent taxation years. S. 10(1.1) formerly read:

"(1.1) Non-deductible expenses. For the purposes of subsection (1), the cost to a particular taxpayer of land that is included in the inventory of a business carried on by the taxpayer shall include all amounts described in paragraph 18(2)(a) or (b) in respect of that land for which no deduction is permitted to the taxpayer or, by reason of subsection 18(3), to another taxpayer in respect of whom the particular taxpayer was a person, corporation or partnership described in subparagraph (b)(i), (ii) or (iii) of the definition 'interest on debt relating to the acquisition of land' in subsection 18(3), where the amounts were not included in the cost to that other taxpayer of property."

Editorial Note: Subsection 10(1.1) provides that interest expense and property taxes in respect of land inventory that are not deductible under subsection 18(2) shall form part of the acquisition cost of the inventory, notwithstanding that a shareholder or partner of the taxpayer may add such amounts to the adjusted cost base of its share in the taxpayer under paragraph 53(1)(d.3) or its partnership interest in the taxpayer under subparagraph 53(1)(e)(xi), as the case may be.

(2) Continuation of valuation. Notwithstanding subsection (1), for the purpose of computing income for a taxation year from a business, the inventory at the commencement of the year shall be valued at the same amount as the amount at which it was valued at the end of the preceding taxation year for the purpose of computing income for that preceding year.

(2.1) Methods of valuation to be the same. Where property described in an inventory of a taxpayer's business that is not an adventure or concern in the nature of trade is valued at the end of a taxation year in accordance with a method permitted under this section, that method shall, subject to subsection (6), be used in the valuation of property described in the inventory at the end of the following taxation year for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income from the business unless the taxpayer, with the concurrence of the Minister and on any terms and conditions that are specified by the Minister, adopts another method permitted under this section.

History: S. 10(2.1) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 70(2), applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after December 20, 1995;

(b) in respect of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, to taxation years of a taxpayer that end before December 21, 1995, except where

(i) the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year is after December 20, 1995, or

(ii) the taxpayer has valued the inventory of the business for the purpose of computing income for the year from the business at an amount that is less than the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property, which valuation is reflected in a return of income, notice of objection or notice of appeal filed or served under the Act before December 21, 1995; and

(c) in respect of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, to fiscal periods of a partnership that end before December 21, 1995, except where

(i) the filing-due dates of all of the members of the partnership for their taxation years that include the end of the fiscal period are after December 20, 1995, or

(ii) the partnership has valued the inventory of the business for the purpose of computing income for the fiscal period from the business

(4) Fair market value. For the purpose of subsection (1), the fair market value of property (other than property that is obsolete, damaged or defective or that is held for sale or lease or for the purpose of being processed, fabricated, manufactured, incorporated into, attached to, or otherwise converted into property for sale or lease) that is

(a) work in progress at the end of a taxation year of a business that is a profession means the amount that can reasonably be expected to become receivable in respect thereof after the end of the year; and

(b) advertising or packaging material, parts, supplies or other property (other than work in progress of a business that is a profession) that is included in inventory means the replacement cost of the property.

SECTION 11:

► 11(1) ◄

(1) Proprietor of business. Subject to sections 34.1 and 34.2, where an individual is a proprietor of a business, the individual's income from the business for a taxation year is deemed to be the individual's income from the business for the fiscal periods of the business that end in the year.

History: S. 11(1) was amended by S.C. 1996, c. 21, s. 3(1), applicable to the 1995 and subsequent taxation years. S. 11(1) formerly read:
"(1) Where an individual is a proprietor of a business, the individual's income from the business for a taxation year shall be deemed to be the individual's income from the business for the fiscal period or periods ending in the year."

Editorial Note: The end of the fiscal period of an individual's business must coincide with the calendar year end, unless the individual has elected under subsection 249.1(4) to use the "alternative method" of computing business income under section 34.1.

Related Sections: S. 248(1), "business"; s. 249 Definition of "taxation year"; s. 249.1 Definition of "fiscal period".

Cases: The fiscal period adopted by an individual in respect of a business applies only to income from the business itself. Prefontaine v. M.N.R. (T.C.C.) 84 DTC 1688.

► 11(2) ◄

(2) Reference to "taxation year". Where an individual's income for a taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, unless the context otherwise requires, a reference in this subdivision or section 80.3 to a "taxation year" or "year" shall, in respect of the business, be read as a reference to a fiscal period of the business ending in the year.

History: S. 11(2) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 5(1), applicable to the 1988 and subsequent taxation years. S. 11(2) formerly read:

"(2) Reference to 'taxation year' or 'year'. Where an individual's income for a taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, unless the context otherwise requires, a reference in this Division to a 'taxation year' or 'year' shall, in respect of the business, be read as a reference to a fiscal period of the business ending in the year."

Inclusions

SECTION 12:

► 12(1) ◄

(1) Income inclusions. There shall be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year as income from a business or property such of the following amounts as are applicable:

► 12(1)(a) ◄

(a) Services, etc., to be rendered — any amount received by the taxpayer in the year in the course of a business

(i) that is on account of services not rendered or goods not delivered before the end of the year or that, for any other reason, may be regarded as not having been earned in the year or a previous year, or

(ii) under an arrangement or understanding that it is repayable in whole or in part on the return or resale to the taxpayer of articles in or by means of which goods were delivered to a customer;

Editorial Note: Prepaid (unearned) income included under paragraph 12(1)(a) is often eligible for the paragraph 20(1)(m) reserve. Paragraph 12(1)(a) does not apply to unearned income from property, although such amounts would normally be included under section 9 profit if they had attained the "quality of income". The CRA generally allows the recognition of prepaid income from property to be deferred to the year to which it relates, so that the net result is normally the same as that seen where the paragraph 20(1)(m) reserve applies; see CRA document No. 2004-0105461R3, June 1, 2005.

Cases: Licence fees received in advance for the future use of television productions were eligible for a s. 20(1)(m) reserve. The reference to "amounts described in paragraph 12(1)(a)" does not mean only amounts that were included in income by virtue of s. 12(1)(a). Ellis Vision Incorporated v. The Queen, 2004 DTC 2024 (T.C.C.).

Revenue from the sale of season passes to a recreational facility was included in income but the taxpayer could claim a reserve in respect of services to be rendered after the end of the year. Since the services would all be rendered after October 31, it was reasonable that the entire amount should be deductible as a reserve. Blue Mountain Resorts Limited v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 1886 (T.C.C.).

A waste disposal company was required to perform various tasks associated with reconstituting dump sites for thirty years following the closing thereof. A portion of the fees charged by the taxpayer was intended to meet those future costs. This amount was deductible as a reserve since it was not "earned" in the year it was received. Deputy Minister of Revenue for Quebec v. La Compagnie Meloche Inc., 2002 DTC 7169 (Que. C.A.).

Progress payments received by the taxpayer for the construction of ships had the quality of income when received. Because these amounts were earned, the taxpayer was not entitled to claim a reserve on them. Burrard Yarrows Corporation v. The Queen, 88 DTC 6352 (F.C.A.), affirming 86 DTC 6459 (F.C.T.D.).

An agreement of purchase and sale was entered into one year with the attendant conditions precedent being fulfilled the next. It was held that sale took place, and tax was payable in the year the conditions were fulfilled, as the balance of purchase price was not payable until that time and entitlement to deposits was also contingent upon fulfillment. The Queen v. Imperial General Properties Limited, 85 DTC 5045 (F.C.A.), reversing 83 DTC 5059 (F.C.T.D.).

(b) Amounts receivable — any amount receivable by the taxpayer in respect of property sold or services rendered in the course of a business in the year, notwithstanding that the amount or any part thereof is not due until a subsequent year, unless the method adopted by the taxpayer for computing income from the business and accepted for the purpose of this Part does not require the taxpayer to include any amount receivable in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year unless it has been received in the year, and for the purposes of this paragraph, an amount shall be deemed to have become receivable in respect of services rendered in the course of a business on the day that is the earlier of

(i) the day on which the account in respect of the services was rendered, and

(ii) the day on which the account in respect of those services would have been rendered had there been no undue delay in rendering the account in respect of the services;

Editorial Note: Amounts included under paragraph 12(1)(b) may be eligible for the paragraph 20(1)(n) reserve. It is possible that amounts for services rendered may be receivable under general principles, notwithstanding that they are not deemed to be receivable under the deeming language of paragraph 12(1)(b).

Related Sections: S. 12(1)(e) Reserves for certain goods and services, etc.; s. 12(2) Interpretation; s. 20(1)(n) Reserve for unpaid amounts; s. 20(8) No deduction in respect of property in certain circumstances; s. 34 Professional business.

Tax Window Files: Services Invoiced in Advance, February 4, 2005, CRA Document No. 2004-0101781E5 [Amounts invoiced but not paid in the current taxation year for services to be performed in the subsequent taxation year not included in income for the current taxation year under paragraph 12(1)(a) or (b)]; Contingent Legal Fees, June 20, 2003, CRA Document No. 2003-0015775 [Legal fees under a contingency fee agreement included in income at the earlier of the time the fees are billed or become billable]; Revenue Recognition, July 23, 1996, CRA Document No. 9615915 [Revenues from service contracts recognized when billed or able to be billed].

Cases: Considering that the required approval of the taxpayer's invoices for progress payments had been given by its subcontractor prior to June 30, 1991, the holdbacks were receivable in 1991 and, as such, had to be included in income for that year. Supreme Steel Limited v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 5121 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1430 (T.C.C.).

For an amount to be "receivable", there is no requirement that the right to payment be immediate. In addition, the taxpayer's right to receive the amounts of notes and mortgages became absolute when the obligations were made and signed. The existence of an express right of set off did not convert the absolute obligations to contingent ones. The Queen v. Huang & Danczkay Ltd., 2000 DTC 6549 (F.C.A.), reversing 98 DTC 6393 (F.C.T.D.) and 93 DTC 1028 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer reported income for tax purposes using the "billed method" so that income which was earned but not yet billed was not reported in the period. For general accounting purposes it continued to use the "earned method". The "earned method" produced a "truer picture" of the taxpayer's income and must therefore be used for tax purposes. Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company, Limited v. The Queen, 92 DTC 6191 (F.C.A.), affirming 91 DTC 5038 (F.C.T.D.).

A taxpayer is not necessarily required to use the same method of calculating income for tax purposes as that used for calculating income for accounting purposes. West Kootenay Power and Light Co. Ltd. v. The Queen, 92 DTC 6023 (F.C.A.).

In the absence of a statutory definition, an amount is receivable when the so-called recipient has a clearly legal, though not necessarily immediate, right to receive it. Progress payments to a building contractor that were not to be made until an architect's certificate had been issued were held to be "receivable" only when the certificate had been issued. M.N.R. v. John Colford Contracting Co. Ltd., 62 DTC 1338 (S.C.C.), affirming 60 DTC 1131 (Ex. Ct.) and 57 DTC 45 (T.A.B.).

(c) Interest — subject to subsections (3) and (4.1), any amount received or receivable by the taxpayer in the year (depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income) as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, interest to the extent that the interest was not included in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year;

History: S. 12(1)(c) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that end after September 1997. S. 12(1)(c) formerly read:

"(c) Interest — subject to subsections (3) and (5), any amount received or receivable by the taxpayer in the year (depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income) as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, interest to the extent that the interest was not included in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year;"

S. 12(1)(c) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 71(1), applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after September 1997; and

(b) to a taxpayer's taxation years that end after 1995 and before October 1997 where the taxpayer files an election in accordance with paragraph 81(11)(b).

S. 12(1)(c) formerly read:

"(c) Interest — any amount received or receivable by the taxpayer in the year (depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's profit) as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, interest to the extent that the interest was not included in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year;"

Editorial Note: Despite the receipt and receivable methods of reporting interest set out in paragraph 12(1)(c), corporations, partnerships and certain trusts must generally include interest on an accrual basis under subsection 12(3), even if it is not received or has not become receivable in the year. An accrual rule also applies to individuals in subsection 12(4), although it is based on an accrual of interest up to an "anniversary day" of an "investment contract" in the taxation year (both terms are defined in subsection 12(11)).

Cases: Pre-judgment interest was not "interest" for the purposes of s. 12(1)(c) since it related to damages arising in tort, and not in contract. Since the taxpayer did not have any right to a principal amount prior to judgment, there could be no interest until judgment. Ahmad v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 2065 (T.C.C.).

Since interest was paid to a taxpayer not as compensation for the expropriation of his land but as compensation for the expropriating authority's failure to pay promptly the balance of the value of the land taken, such interest had to be included in his income. The Queen v. Shaw, 93 DTC 5121 (F.C.A.), reversing 93 DTC 6145 (F.C.T.D.).

The sum of $3,090,900 in interest, which had accrued but not been paid on the debentures which the taxpayer had surrendered in return for shares of a joint venture corporation was not included in its income when the shares were not worth their par value because of the conditions attached thereto; the interest had in fact been received by the taxpayer. Praxair Canada Inc. v. The Queen, 93 DTC 5100 (F.C.T.D.).

Cases: The taxpayer operated a club and charged its new members an initiation fee which was amortized over 10 years. There was no basis for the amortization since the initiation fees were earned in the year of receipt. The taxpayer had, in effect, deducted a reserve under s. 20(1)(m). However, it would be a gross distortion of the taxpayer's income picture if the entire balance of its "Deferred Initiation Fees" account were to be taxed in one year under s. 12(1)(e). *Argus Holdings Limited v. Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 1 — Foreign Investment Entities and Non-Resident Trusts — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 12(1)(k) of the Income Tax Act is replaced by the following:

(k) Foreign corporations, trusts and investment entities — any amount required by subdivision i to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

Applicable: To taxation years that begin after 2006, except that paragraph 12(1)(k) also applies to a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if sections 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Explanatory Note: Section 12 of the Income Tax Act provides for the inclusion of various amounts in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from business or property. Paragraph 12(1)(k) refers to certain dividends required by existing sections 90 to 95 to be so added.

Paragraph 12(1)(k) is amended so that it refers to all amounts required to be added in computing income under amended sections 90 to 95, including new sections 94.1 to 94.3 relating to foreign investment entities. For more information, see the commentary on those new sections.

This amendment applies to taxation years that begin after 2006.

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 3 — Amendments Relating to Bijuralism — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subclauses 12(1)(o)(ii)(B)(I) to (V) of the Income Tax Act are replaced by the following:

(I) of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) located in Canada, or from an oil or gas well located in Canada, in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest, or for civil law a right,

(II) of sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas located in Canada, from an oil or gas well located in Canada or from a mineral resource located in Canada, in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest, or for civil law a right,

(III) to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent, of metal, minerals (other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons) or coal from a mineral resource located in Canada in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest, or for civil law a right,

(IV) to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, of iron from a mineral resource located in Canada in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest, or for civil law a right, or

(V) to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent, of petroleum or related hydrocarbons from a deposit located in Canada of bituminous sands or oil shales in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest, or for civil law a right;

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note: As part of the harmonization of federal legislation, the Government has undertaken to review all its legislation where provincial private law concepts are found in order to reflect appropriately the common law and the civil law, in both official languages.

As part of this harmonization initiative, federal tax legislation is being reviewed. Several changes to the legislation have already been implemented, namely by way of the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2000, S.C. 2001, c. 17. The proposed amendments continue this harmonization initiative.

This Part proposes amendments to the Income Tax Act concerning the concepts of "joint and several liability"/"solidary liability", "tangible property"/"corporeal property", "intangible property"/"incorporeal property", "personal property"/"movable property", "real property"/"immovable property", "interest"/"right" which are further described below. The proposed amendments are not intended to change the current application of the amended provisions; they purport to reflect the concepts and terminology of the common law and the civil law in both official languages. They will come into force on Royal Assent to this Bill.

Joint and Several Liability and Solidary Liability

The French version of the current tax legislation uses the term "solidairement", which is appropriate for both civil law and common law. Therefore, the French version does not need to be amended.

In the English version of the current tax legislation, only the term "jointly and severally" is used. This term is maintained for common law purposes. The term "jointly and severally" is no longer adequate in civil law in English and has been replaced with the term "solidarily". Therefore, it is appropriate to add the term "solidarily" in the English version in order to reflect the civil law.

Tangible and Corporeal Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien corporel" is used. In the English version, only the common law term "tangible property" is used.

In the French version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "bien tangible" in order to reflect the common law.

In the English version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "corporeal property" in order to reflect the civil law.

Intangible and Incorporeal Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien incorporel" is used. In the English version, only the common law term "intangible property" is used.

In the French version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "bien intangible" in order to reflect the common law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "bien incorporel ou intangible", which refers to both systems of law.

In the English version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "incorporeal property" in order to reflect the civil law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "intangible or incorporeal property", which refers to both systems of law.

Personal Property and Movable Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien meuble" is used. In the English version, the terms "personal property" and "chattels" are used to reflect the common law.

It is therefore appropriate to add in the French version a reference to the term "bien personnel" in order to reflect the common law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "bien meuble ou personnel", which refers to both systems of law.

In the English version of the legislation, the term "movable" is added in order to reflect the civil law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements are combined in the phrase "personal or movable property", which refers to both systems of law.

Real Property and Immovable Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien immeuble" is used. In the English version, only the common law concept of "real property" is used.

It is therefore appropriate to add a reference, in the French version, to the term "bien réel" in order to reflect the common law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "bien immeuble ou réel", which refers to both systems of law.

In the English version of the legislation, the term "immovable" is added in order to reflect the civil law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "real or immovable property", which refers to both systems of law.

Interest and Right

Generally, in the current tax legislation, the common law term "interest" and the civil law term "droit" are used to refer to the relationship that exists between a person and property. At common law, it is possible to have a right or an interest in property; an interest in property necessarily involves rights in property while the reverse is not always true.

For purposes of the civil law, it is appropriate to limit the application of the term "droit" in the French version to the civil law, unless otherwise provided. In the English version, it is appropriate to add a reference to the concept of "right" in order to address the civil law audience and to similarly limit the application of this term to the civil law, unless otherwise provided.

The term "interest" is a common law concept that is translated into French by the term "intérêt". It is therefore appropriate to add a reference to the concept of "intérêt" in the French version in order to address the common law audience.

History: S. 12(1)(o) was repealed by S.C. 2003, c. 28, s. 1(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006. S. 12(1)(o) formerly read:

"(o) Royalties, etc. — any amount (other than a prescribed amount and an amount referred to in paragraph 18(1)(m))

(i) that became receivable in the year by

(A) Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,

(B) an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, or

(C) a corporation, a commission or an association that is controlled by Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province or by an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, and

(ii) that can reasonably be considered to be a royalty, tax (other than a tax or portion of a tax that can reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax), lease rental or bonus, however described, or to be in respect of the late receipt or non-receipt of any of those amounts, in relation to

(A) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property of the taxpayer, or

(B) the production in Canada

(I) of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) located in Canada, or from an oil or gas well located in Canada, in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest,

(II) of sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas located in Canada, from an oil or gas well located in Canada or from a mineral resource located in Canada, in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest,

(III) to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent, of metal, minerals (other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons) or coal from a mineral resource located in Canada in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest,

(IV) to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, of iron from a mineral resource located in Canada in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest, or

(V) to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent, of petroleum or related hydrocarbons from a deposit located in Canada of bituminous sands or oil shales in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest;"

S. 12(1)(o) was replaced by S.C. 2003, c. 28, s. 1(1), applicable to amounts that become receivable after December 20, 2002.

For each taxation year that ends after 2002 and begins before 2007, paragraph 12(1)(o) of the Act applies only to the percentage of each amount described by that paragraph that is the total of

(a) that proportion of 100% that the number of days in the taxation year that are before 2003 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(b) that proportion of 90% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2003 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(c) that proportion of 75% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2004 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(d) that proportion of 65% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2005 is of the number of days in the taxation year, and

(e) that proportion of 35% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2006 is of the number of days in the taxation year.

[The application of paragraph 12(1)(o) for taxation years that end after 2002 and begin before 2007, noted above] does not apply for the purpose of applying any provision of Part XII of the Income Tax Regulations that makes reference to the income of a taxpayer. S. 12(1)(o) formerly read:

"(o) Royalties, etc. — any amount (other than an amount referred to in paragraph 18(1)(m), paid or payable by the taxpayer, or a prescribed amount) that, because of an obligation imposed by statute or a contractual obligation substituted for an obligation imposed by statute, became receivable in the year by

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province,

(ii) an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, or

(iii) a corporation, commission or association that is controlled by Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or by an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province

as a royalty, tax (other than a tax or portion of a tax that can reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax), lease rental or bonus or as an amount, however described, that can reasonably be regarded as being in lieu of any such amount, or in respect of the late receipt or non receipt of any such amount, and that can reasonably be regarded as being in relation to

(iv) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property of the taxpayer in respect of which the obligation imposed by statute or the contractual obligation, as the case may be, applied, or

(v) the production in Canada

(A) of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) located in Canada or from an oil or gas well located in Canada,

(B) of sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas located in Canada, from an oil or gas well located in Canada or from a mineral resource located in Canada,

(C) to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent, of metal, minerals (other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons) or coal from a mineral resource located in Canada,

(D) to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, of iron from a mineral resource located in Canada, or

(E) to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent, of petroleum or related hydrocarbons from tar sands from a mineral resource located in Canada, in respect of which the taxpayer had an interest to which the obligation imposed by statute or the contractual obligation, as the case may be, applied;"

S. 12(1)(o), the portion after subparagraph (iii), was amended by S.C. 1997, c. 25, s. 2(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1996. That part formerly read:

"as a royalty, tax (other than a tax or portion thereof that may reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax), lease rental or bonus or as an amount, however described, that may reasonably be regarded as being in lieu of any such amount, and that may reasonably be regarded as being in relation to

(iv) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property, or

Department of Finance Comfort Letter
[Proposed Repeal of Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) — Reinsurance Commissions]

December 21, 2005

Dear XXXX,

I am writing in response to your correspondence of October 19, 2005, requesting that paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") be repealed because of the introduction of subsection 18(9.02)of the Act.

Subsection 18(9.02) of the Act, introduced in 2001, generally applies to taxation years that begin after 1999. This provision was introduced to ensure that the acquisition costs (i.e. commissions paid to a broker) that are incurred by an insurer or a reinsurer in respect of a policy are deducted as if they were incurred as consideration for services to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. The deduction of acquisition costs over the term of the policy results in a matching of acquisition costs with the premium income over the period of coverage under the policy.

Prior to the introduction of subsection 18(9.02) of the Act, a different mechanism existed for matching acquisition costs with premium income. In the case of reinsurance, where the insurer cedes to a reinsurer all or part of the risk under a policy issued by the insurer, it receives a reinsurance commission from the reinsurer and is entitled to claim a reserve for unearned premiums. Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Act apply to the reinsurer in the taxation year in which it pays the reinsurance commission and in subsequent taxation years. Essentially, paragraph 12(1)(s) requires the reinsurer to include in computing its income for a particular taxation year the amount the insurer was entitled to claim as a reserve for unearned premiums in respect of the re-insurance premium paid to the insurer by the reinsurer. Paragraph 20(1)(jj) then permits the reinsurer to deduct in computing its income for the following year the amount included in computing its income for the particular taxation year under paragraph 12(1)(s). The effect of this mechanism is to ensure that the acquisition costs of the re-insurer are matched with premium income under the policy. This mechanism also requires the reinsurer to deduct the reinsurance commission, as it is included in the income of the insurer.

With the introduction of subsection 18(9.02), both the insurer and the re-insurer must treat the acquisition costs incurred by the insurer in respect of the policy or reinsurance commission paid by the reinsurer in respect of the reinsurance policy as if they were incurred as consideration for services that are to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. Consequently, there is no need to have paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) apply to the reinsurer. The premium income of the reinsurer from the reinsurance policy will be matched with the reinsurance commission expense of the reinsurer over the period of coverage of the reinsurance policy. In fact, the existence of paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) can cause tax anomalies in the above situation by requiring an inclusion in income to offset a deduction that can no longer be claimed because of subsection 18(9.02).

Given this unintended result, it would seem appropriate to repeal paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Act. We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance such a change for taxation years that begin after 1999. If this recommendation is acted upon, it will be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Tax Legislation Division
Tax Policy Branch

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 12(1)(x) of the Act is amended by adding the following after subparagraph (v):

(v.1) is not an amount received by the taxpayer in respect of a restrictive covenant, as defined by subsection 56.4(1), that was included, under subsection 56.4(2), in computing the income of a person related to the taxpayer,

Applicable: After October 7, 2003.

Explanatory Note:

Inducements, Reimbursements, etc.

Paragraph 12(1)(x) of the Act provides that certain inducements, reimbursements, contributions, allowances and assistance received by a taxpayer in the course of earning income from a business or property must be included in income "to the extent that" the particular amounts have not otherwise been included in income or reduced the cost of a property or the amount of an outlay or expense. Paragraph 12(1)(x) is amended consequential to the restrictive covenant rules in new section 56.4 of the Act (additional commentary is provided in the explanatory notes accompanying new section 56.4).

New subparagraph 12(x)(v.1) provides that the income inclusion referred to in paragraph (x) does not apply to the extent the amount in respect of a restrictive covenant (as defined by new subsection 56.4(1)) was included under subsection 56.4(2) in computing the income of a person related to the taxpayer. In other words, to the extent that a taxpayer receives an amount for a restrictive covenant that a person related to the taxpayer is required under subsection 56.4(2) to include in computing income, paragraph 12(1)(x) will not apply to require the taxpayer to include the amount in computing the taxpayer's income.

New subparagraph 12(1)(x)(v.1) applies after October 7, 2003.

(vi) except as provided by subsection 127(11.1), (11.5) or (11.6), does not reduce, for the purpose of an assessment made or that may be made under this Act, the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be,

(vii) does not reduce, under subsection (2.2) or 13(7.4) or paragraph 53(2)(s), the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be, and

(viii) may not reasonably be considered to be a payment made in respect of the acquisition by the payer or the public authority of an interest in the taxpayer or the taxpayer's business or property;

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 3 — Amendments Relating to Bijuralism — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subparagraph 12(1)(x)(viii) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(viii) may not reasonably be considered to be a payment made in respect of the acquisition by the payer or the public authority of an interest in the taxpayer, an interest in, or for civil law a right in, the taxpayer's business or an interest in, or for civil law a real right in, the taxpayer's property;

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note: [See the Explanatory Note re amendments related to bijuralism following the amendment to paragraph 12(1)(o).]

History: S. 12(1)(x)(i) was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 5(1), applicable to amounts received after February 23, 1998 other than amounts received before 1999 pursuant to an agreement in writing made before February 24, 1998. S. 12(1)(x)(i) formerly read:

"(i) a person (in this paragraph referred to as the 'payer') who pays the particular amount in the course of earning income from a business or property or in order to achieve a benefit or advantage for the payer or for persons with whom the payer does not deal at arm's length, or"

S. 12(1)(x), the portion before subparagraph (vii) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 71(3), applicable to amounts received after 1990 except that, for taxation years that began before 1996, subparagraph 12(1)(x)(vi) of the Act shall be read without reference to "(11.5) or (11.6),". S. 12(1)(x), the portion before subparagraph (vii) formerly read:

"(x) Inducement, reimbursement, etc. — any amount (other than a prescribed amount) received by the taxpayer in the year, in the course of earning income from a business or property, from

(i) a person who pays the amount (in this paragraph referred to as 'the payer') in the course of earning income from a business or property or in order to achieve a benefit or advantage for the payer or for persons with whom the payer does not deal at arm's length, or

(ii) a government, municipality or other public authority where the amount can reasonably be considered to have been received

(iii) as an inducement, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of inducement, or

(iv) as a reimbursement, contribution or allowance or as assistance, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of assistance, in respect of the cost of property or in respect of an outlay or expense to the extent that the amount

(v) was not otherwise included in computing the taxpayer's income, or deducted in computing, for the purposes of this Act, any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts, for the year or a preceding taxation year,

(vi) except as provided by subsection 127(11.1), (11.5) or (11.6), does not reduce, for the purpose of an assessment made or that may be made under this Act, the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be,"

S. 12(1)(x)(vi) was amended by S.C. 1996, c. 21, s. 4(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995. S. 12(1)(x)(vi) formerly read:

"(vi) except as provided by subsection 127(11.1), does not reduce, for the purposes of this Act, the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be,"

Editorial Note: Taxpayers can elect that an amount that would otherwise be included in income under paragraph 12(1)(x) in respect of the cost of a property or the amount of an outlay or expense can instead serve to reduce the cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be (see subsections 12(2.2), 13(7.4) and paragraph 53(2)(s)). However, the elections are not available if the amount is included in income other than under paragraph 12(1)(x) (for example, section 9 profit).

Cases: The tenant inducement payment received by the taxpayer before the enactment of s. 12(1)(x) had to be included in income in the year received. Ikea Limited v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6092 (S.C.C.), affirming 96 DTC 6526 (F.C.A.).

The refund that the taxpayer received in 1994 of the federal sales tax paid and deducted by its predecessors between 1985 and 1989 had to be brought into its income for the years in which it was originally deducted rather than in its 1994 income. Canada Safeway Ltd. v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6060 (F.C.A.), affirming 97 DTC 187 (T.C.C.).

The lease inducement payment received by a taxpayer in the auto glass business upon leasing premises for use as a new head office was included in its income, considering that such payment could not be connected with any capital purpose and was directly and inextricably bound up with the economics of the taxpayer's operation. The Queen v. TCG International Inc. (formerly Trans Canada Glass Ltd.), 96 DTC 6547 (F.C.T.D.) reversing 93 DTC 1260 (T.C.C.).

A tax credit received by the taxpayer under s. 1029.7 of the Quebec Taxation Act was an inducement payment for the purposes of s. 12(1)(x). Tioxide Canada Inc. v. The Queen, 96 DTC 6296 (F.C.A.), affirming 93 DTC 1499 (T.C.C.).

The amount paid to a partnership for entering into a lease could not be considered to be "a reimbursement, contribution, allowance or assistance ... in respect of the costs" of term deposits in which it had been obliged to invest the inducement payments until the commencement of the term of the lease, so that the taxpayer's share was included in his income. Hill v. The Queen, 95 DTC 5225 (F.C.A.), affirming 94 DTC 1078 (T.C.C.).

The $1 million inducement payment received by a taxpayer in consideration for an increased rent was income from his business considering that, from the moment he undertook to lease the premises, the taxpayer had signalled his intention of engaging in the business of subleasing. Had that arrangement been carried out, his profit from business would have been the difference between his rent and the rent charged to his sub-lessees. When the deal was changed so as to increase his own rent, his profit was expected to come from the lease inducement as well as from the rent differential. The Queen v. Remington, 94 DTC 6548 (F.C.A.), reversing 93 DTC 1020 (T.C.C.).

However, when a computer manufacturing taxpayer corporation received lease inducement payments from different landlords with respect to seven leases, such payments were included income. In this case, the primary consideration granted by the taxpayer was its acceptance of its obligations under the various leases to pay rent and these obligations were on revenue account. The inducement payments were just as much revenue payments as were the periodic rental payments to the landlords. IBM Canada Ltd. v. M.N.R., 93 DTC 1266 (T.C.C.).

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Section 12 of the Act is amended by adding the following after subsection (2):

(2.01) No deferral of section 9 income under paragraph (1)(g). Paragraph (1)(g) does not defer the inclusion in income of any amount that would, if this section were read without reference to that paragraph, be included in computing the taxpayer's income in accordance with section 9.

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note:

No Deferral of Section 9 Under Paragraph (1)(g)

New subsection 12(2.01) of the Act, which comes into force on Royal Assent, provides that paragraph 12(1)(g) of the Act does not defer the inclusion in a taxpayer's income of an amount that would otherwise be so included at an earlier time in accordance with section 9 of the Act. Accordingly, where an amount based on production or use would be included in computing a taxpayer's income from a business or property (if section 12 were read without reference to paragraph 12(1)(g)) at a time when the amount is accrued but not yet received, subsection 12(2.01) clarifies that paragraph 12(1)(g) does not apply to defer the inclusion of the amount in income until the time of receipt.

(2.1) Receipt of inducement, reimbursement, etc. For the purposes of paragraph (1)(x), where at a particular time a taxpayer who is a beneficiary of a trust or a member of a partnership has received an amount as an inducement, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of inducement, in respect of the activities of the trust or partnership, or as a reimbursement, contribution, allowance or as assistance, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of assistance, in respect of the cost of property or in respect of an expense of the trust or partnership, the amount shall be deemed to have been received at that time by the trust or partnership, as the case may be, as such an inducement, reimbursement, contribution, allowance or assistance.

Interpretation Bulletins: Secondary — IT-273R2 Government Assistance — General Comments.

(2.2) Deemed outlay or expense. Where

(a) in a taxation year a taxpayer receives an amount that would, but for this subsection, be included under paragraph (1)(x) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of an outlay or expense (other than an outlay or expense in respect of the cost of property of the taxpayer) made or incurred by the taxpayer before the end of the following taxation year, and

(b) the taxpayer elects under this subsection on or before the day on or before which the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year is required to be filed, or would be required to be filed if tax under this Part were payable by the taxpayer for the year or, where the outlay or expense is made or incurred in the following taxation year, for that following year, the amount of the outlay or expense shall be deemed for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income, other than for the purposes of this subsection and paragraphs (1)(x) and 20(1)(hh), to have always been the amount, if any, by which

(c) the amount of the outlay or expense

exceeds

(d) the lesser of the amount elected by the taxpayer under this subsection and the amount so received by the taxpayer, and, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), such assessment or reassessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties under this Act for any taxation year shall be made as is necessary to give effect to the election.

History: S. 12(2.2) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 3(3), applicable to amounts received after January 1990. S. 12(2.2) formerly read:

"(2.2) Where a taxpayer has in a taxation year received an amount that would, but for this subsection, be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year by reason of paragraph (1)(x) in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer in the year, in any of the 3 taxation years immediately preceding the year or in the taxation year immediately following the year (other than an outlay or expense in respect of the cost of property of the taxpayer) and the taxpayer elects under this subsection on or before the day on or before which the taxpayer's return of income under this Part is required to be filed, or would be required to be filed if the taxpayer had tax payable, for the year, or, where the outlay or expense is made or incurred in the taxation year immediately following the year, for that following year, the amount of the outlay or expense shall be deemed, for the purposes of computing the income of the taxpayer, other than for the purposes of this subsection and subparagraphs (1)(x)(iv) and 20(1)(hh)(ii), to have always been the amount, if any, by which

(a) the amount of the outlay or expense

(j) an obligation in respect of a net income stabilization account,

(k) an indexed debt obligation, and

History: S. 12(11), paragraph (d.1) of the definition "investment contract" was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 4(2), applicable to the 2009 and subsequent taxation years.

S. 12(11), paragraph (k) of the definition of "investment contract", was renumbered as paragraph (l) and new paragraph (k) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 6(3), applicable to debt obligations issued after October 16, 1991.

S. 12(11), paragraph (j) of the definition of "investment contract", was amended and paragraph (k) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, S. 3(7), applicable to the 1991 and subsequent taxation years. Paragraph (j) formerly read:

"(j) a prescribed contract."

S. 12(11), the definition of "investment contract", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, S. 7(3), applicable to the 1985 and subsequent taxation years, except that (a) in its application to the 1985 taxation year, the definition "investment contract" in subsection 12(11) of the Act, as enacted by subsection (3), shall be read without reference to paragraphs (a) and (b) of that definition;

(b) in its application to the 1985 to 1989 taxation years, the definition "investment contract" in subsection 12(11) of the Act, as enacted by subsection (3), shall be read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition; and

(c) in applying paragraph (i) of the definition "investment contract" in subsection 12(11) of the Act, as enacted by subsection (3), in respect of debt obligations acquired before 1990, the reference in that paragraph to "not more than one year" shall be read as "not more than 3 years".

S. 12(11), the definition of "investment contract", formerly read:

" 'investment contract' — 'investment contract', in relation to a taxpayer, means any debt obligation (other than a salary deferral arrangement, an income bond, an income debenture, a small business development bond, a small business bond, an obligation in respect of which the taxpayer has, at periodic intervals of not more than one year, included, in computing the taxpayer's income throughout the period in which the taxpayer held an interest in the obligation, the income accrued thereon for such intervals, or a prescribed contract)."

Department of Finance Comfort Letter [Third-Party Life Annuity Contracts]

September 12, 2002

Dear XXXX

This is in reply to your letter dated June 12, 2002 concerning third-party life annuity contracts and the definition of adjusted cost basis (ACB) found in subsection 148(9) of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

In your letter you have recommended that the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act be amended to replace the term "life annuity contract" currently found therein with the term "annuity contract". You have indicated that the term "life annuity contract", as defined in subsection 301(1) of the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations), is overly restrictive because it excludes certain third-party life annuity contracts under which annuity payments are dependent on the life of an individual but the annuitants are either not individuals or are not the individual on whose life the annuity payments are dependent. You have pointed out that subsection 12.2(1) of the Act may inappropriately require an income inclusion in respect of interests in such third-party life annuity contracts because mortality gains and losses affect the determination of the accumulating fund in respect of the interest but not the ACB of the interest.

You have also requested that the amendments be effective for the 1981 and subsequent taxation years (the effective date for subsection 12.2(1)), in order to reflect the historical industry practice which, in your view, provides the appropriate tax result.

We agree with your conclusion that the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations is overly restrictive and can result in inappropriate income inclusions under subsection 12.2(1) of the Act. We do, however, envision a different solution to this issue than that which you have suggested. In particular, we propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations be amended to include life annuity contracts under which the annuitant is a partnership or a person as well as life annuity contracts under which the annuity payments are based on the life of an individual who is not the annuitant. We also propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the proposed amendments to the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations be made applicable to taxation years that end after 1996. However, in calculating the adjusted cost basis to a policyholder of the policyholder's interest in a life insurance policy for taxation years that end after 1996, the proposed amendments will be made applicable, for the purposes of applying the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act, to taxation years that end after 1980.

If the recommendation is accepted we will begin the process of submitting the amendments to the Income Tax Regulations for approval and promulgation.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Department of Finance Comfort Letter [Alter Ego Trusts Acquiring Annuity Contracts]

July 29, 2002

Dear XXXX

Thank you for your letter dated May 6, 2002, concerning section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations (the "Regulations") and its application to alter ego trusts.

Section 304 defines a "prescribed annuity contract" for a taxation year for the purposes of subsection 12.2(1) and paragraph 148(2)(b) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). Alter ego trusts and joint spousal and common-law partner trusts are trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act and as you mentioned in your letter, these trusts would appear to qualify as a specified trust eligible to hold prescribed annuities under clause 304(1)(c)(iii)(A) of the Regulations.

However, it would appear that an alter ego trust would not be able to acquire an annuity contract that is a prescribed annuity contract because subclauses 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II) and 304(1)(c)(iv)(C)(II) require, in the case of a specified trust, that the terms of the contract determine annuity payments by reference to the "spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust". Alter ego trusts do not comply with those subclauses because, in the case of alter ego trusts, the annuity payments would be determined by reference to the individual who is entitled to receive the income of the trust and not by reference to the spouse or common-law partner. As a result, you have requested that those subclauses be amended to allow alter ego trusts to hold prescribed annuity contracts.

From a policy perspective, it appears appropriate to permit an alter ego trust to be eligible to hold a prescribed annuity contract if all the other conditions of section 304 of the Regulations are met. This treatment would be in accordance with the treatment of the other trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that amendments be made to subclauses 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II) and 304(1)(c)(iv)(C)(II) of the Regulations to permit an alter ego trust to hold a prescribed annuity contract. Further, we intend to recommend that the amendments apply to the taxation years that begin after 2001.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Department of Finance Press Release
Proposals Affecting Segregated Fund Policies and Other Annuity Contracts

[A portion of the text of Department of Finance Release No. 96-100, dated December 19, 1996, and part (b) of the accompanying appendix relating to the accrual rules for an annuity contract issued as an RRIF are reproduced below. Most of the release and appendix concerned the issue of segregated funds with respect to the foreign property rules under former Part XI of the Act.]

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced a number of proposed measures affecting the tax treatment of annuity contracts, including segregated fund policies, offered by insurers.

The proposed changes are described in more detail in the attached appendix.

Appendix — Proposed changes for segregated funds and other annuities

Background

There are a number of different types of RRSPs and RRIFs currently available to Canadians. One type is the RRSP or RRIF trust, which is a trust established to hold "qualified investments" for the benefit of the RRSP or RRIF annuitant. Another type is the RRSP or RRIF deposit, which is a contract under which a financial institution agrees to repay a principal amount deposited plus stipulated interest.

[A]nnuities that are issued as RRIFs may technically not be exempt from the accrual rules under section 12.2 of the Act. These rules require income accruing under annuity contracts to be reported annually. The application of these rules to RRIFs is particularly anomalous because annuities issued as RRSPs are exempt from these rules.

Proposed Amendments

(b) Accrual Rules

- An annuity contract issued as a RRIF will not be subject to the accrual rules under section 12.2 of the Act.

• This amendment will be implemented by way of an amendment to subsection 304(1) of the Regulations. It is contemplated that it will apply to taxation years that begin after 1986, given that the original amendments to the Act that gave rise to the need for this amendment applied after 1986.

History: S. 12.2(1) was repealed by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 8(1), applicable to life insurance policies last acquired after 1989. S. 12.2(3) was renumbered as s. 12.2(1) and the portion preceding paragraph (a) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 8(2), effective with respect to life insurance policies last acquired after 1989. S. 12.2(1) formerly read:

"(1) In computing the income for a taxation year of a corporation, partnership, unit trust or any trust of which a corporation or partnership is a beneficiary that holds

(a) an interest, last acquired after December 1, 1982, in a life insurance policy, or

(b) an interest, last acquired after December 19, 1980 and before December 2, 1982, in an annuity contract under which annuity payments did not commence before December 2, 1982, that is not

(c) an interest in an exempt policy, or

(d) an interest, last acquired before December 2, 1982, in a contract under which the policyholder has, under the terms and conditions of a life insurance policy that was not an annuity contract, received the proceeds therefrom in the form of an annuity contract, there shall be included the amount by which the accumulating fund at the end of the calendar year ending in the taxation year, as determined in prescribed manner, in respect of the interest exceeds the adjusted cost basis of the interest to the corporation, partnership, unit trust or trust at the end of that calendar year."

(8) Deemed acquisition of interest in annuity. For the purposes of this section, the first premium that was not fixed before 1990 and that was paid after 1989 by or on behalf of a taxpayer under an annuity contract, other than a contract described in paragraph (1)(d) of this section, or paragraph 12.2(3)(e) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, or to which subsection (1) of this section or subsection 12.2(4) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, applies (as those paragraphs and subsections, the numbers of which are those in force immediately before December 17, 1991, read in their application to life insurance policies last acquired before 1990) or to which subsection 12(3) applies, last acquired by the taxpayer before 1990 (in this subsection referred to as the "original contract") shall be deemed to have been paid to acquire, at the time the premium was paid, an interest in a separate annuity contract issued at that time, to the extent that the amount of the premium was not fixed before 1990, and each subsequent premium paid under the original contract shall be deemed to have been paid under that separate contract to the extent that the amount of that subsequent premium was not fixed before 1990.

History: S. 12.2(8) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 8(4), applicable to premiums paid after 1989. S. 12.2(8) formerly read:

"(8) For the purposes of this section, the first premium that was not fixed before 1990 and that was paid after 1989 by or on behalf of a taxpayer under an annuity contract (other than a contract described in paragraph (1)(d) or (3)(c) or a contract to which subsection (1) or (3) or 12(3) applies) last acquired by the taxpayer before 1990 (in this subsection referred to as the 'original contract') shall be deemed to have been paid to acquire, at the time the premium was paid, an interest in a separate annuity contract issued at that time and each subsequent premium paid under the original contract shall be deemed to have been paid under that separate contract."

► 12.2(9) ◄

(9) Rules where premium paid. [Repealed by S.C. 1990, c. 39, s. 5(4).]

Editorial Note: This provision is still relevant for policies acquired before 1990.

History: S. 12.2(9) was repealed by 1990, c. 39, s. 5(4), applicable with respect to life insurance policies last acquired after 1989. S. 12.2(9) formerly read:

"(9) Where, at any time after December 1, 1982, a prescribed premium (other than a premium referred to in subsection (8)) has been paid by or on behalf of a taxpayer in respect of an interest in a life insurance policy last acquired on or before that date, and

(a) the policy is not an exempt policy, or

(b) there has been a prescribed increase in any benefit on death under the policy, this Act applies after that time with respect to his interest in the policy as if

(c) subsections (1), (3) and (4) and 148(4), paragraph 148(2)(b) and clause 148(9)(e.2)(iv)(A) were read without reference to the words 'last acquired after December 1, 1982';

(A) May 31, 1985, and

(B) the end of the year before the year in which subsection 12.2(9) first applied in respect of the interest, and before that time,;'

(h) subparagraph 148(9)(c)(ix) were read without reference to clause (A) thereof; and

(i) all that portion of subparagraph 148(9)(e.1)(iii) preceding clause (A) thereof were read as follows:

'(iii) that portion of any amount paid, after the later of May 31, 1985 and the time at which subsection 12.2(9) first applied in respect of the interest, under the policy with respect to and, for the purposes of this subsection, paragraph 148(10)(d) shall be read without reference to the expression "(other than a conversion into an annuity contract)".'"

► 12.2(10) ◄

(10) Riders. For the purposes of this Act, a rider added at any time after 1989 to a life insurance policy last acquired before 1990 that provides additional life insurance is deemed to be a separate life insurance policy issued at that time unless

(a) the policy is an exempt policy last acquired after December 1, 1982 or an annuity contract; or

(b) the only additional life insurance provided by the rider is an accidental death benefit.

History: S. 12.2(10) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 72(1), applicable to riders added after 1989. S. 12(10) formerly read:

"(10) Riders. For the purposes of this Act, any rider added at any time after 1989 to a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract) last acquired before 1990 that provides for additional life insurance (other than an accidental death benefit) shall be deemed to be a separate life insurance policy issued at that time."

(11) Definitions. In this section and paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952,

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 1 — Foreign Investment Entities and Non-Resident Trusts — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The portion of subsection 12.2(11) of the Act before the definition "anniversary day" is replaced by the following:

(11) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and in paragraph 94.2(11)(c), and in paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

Applicable: After 2006, except that the portion of subsection 12.2(11) before the definition "anniversary day" also applies to a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if sections 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Explanatory Note: Subsection 12.2(11) of the Act provides the definitions "anniversary day" and "exempt policy" for the purposes of section 12.2 and paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

Subsection 12.2(11) is amended so that it also applies for the purpose of paragraph 94.2(11)(c) of the Act. As a result, references to the expressions "anniversary day" and "exempt policy" in paragraph 94.2(11)(c) will carry the same meaning as that used in section 12.2.

This amendment applies after 2006.

For more detail on subsection 94.2(11), see the commentary on that provision.

"anniversary day" — "anniversary day" of a life insurance policy means

(a) the day that is one year after the day immediately preceding the day on which the policy was issued, and

(b) each day that occurs at each successive one-year interval after the day determined under paragraph (a).

History: S. 12.2(11), the definition of "anniversary day", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 8(5), applicable to life insurance policies last acquired after 1989. S. 12.2(11), the definition of "anniversary day", formerly read:

"'anniversary day' of a life insurance policy means the last day of each calendar year ending after the policy was issued;"

"exempt policy" — "exempt policy" has the meaning prescribed by regulation.

SECTION 12.5: [Insurer's Reserve Inclusion].

(1) Definitions. The definitions in this section apply for the purposes of this section and section 20.4.

"base year" — "base year" of an insurer means the insurer's taxation year that immediately precedes its transition year.

History: S. 12.5(1), the definition "base year" was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

"insurance business" — "insurance business" of an insurer, is an insurance business carried on by the insurer, other than a life insurance business.

History: S. 12.5(1), the definition "insurance business" was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

"reserve transition amount" — "reserve transition amount" of an insurer, in respect of an insurance business carried on by it in Canada in its transition year, is the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

where

A is the maximum amount that the insurer would be permitted to claim under paragraph 20(7)(c) (and that would be prescribed by section 1400 of the Regulations for the purpose of paragraph 20(7)(c)) as a policy reserve for its base year in respect of its insurance policies if

(a) the generally accepted accounting principles that applied to the insurer in valuing its assets and liabilities for its transition year had applied to it for its base year, and

(b) section 1400 of the Regulations were read in respect of the insurer's base year as it reads in respect of its transition year; and

B is the maximum amount that the insurer is permitted to claim under paragraph 20(7)(c) as a policy reserve for its base year.

History: S. 12.5(1), the definition "reserve transition amount" was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

"transition year" — "transition year" of an insurer means the insurer's first taxation year that begins after September 2006.

History: S. 12.5(1), the definition "transition year" was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

(2) Transition year income inclusion. There shall be included in computing an insurer's income for its transition year from an insurance business carried on by it in Canada in the transition year, the positive amount, if any, of the insurer's reserve transition amount in respect of that insurance business.

History: S. 12.5(2) was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

(3) Transition year income deduction reversal. If an amount has been deducted under subsection 20.4(2) in computing an insurer's income for its transition year from an insurance business carried on by it in Canada, there shall be included in computing the insurer's income, for each particular taxation year of the insurer that ends after the beginning of the transition year, from that insurance business, the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B/1825$$

where

A is the amount deducted under subsection 20.4(2) in computing the insurer's income for the transition year from that insurance business; and

B is the number of days in the particular taxation year that are before the day that is 1825 days after the first day of the transition year.

History: S. 12.5(3) was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

(4) Winding-up. If an insurer has, in a winding-up to which subsection 88(1) has applied, been wound-up into another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "parent"), and immediately after the winding-up the parent carries on an insurance business, in applying subsections (3) and 20.4(3) in computing the incomes of the insurer and of the parent for particular taxation years that end on or after the first day (referred to in this subsection as the "start day") on which assets of the insurer were distributed to the parent on the winding-up,

(a) the parent is, on and after the start day, deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the insurer in respect of

(i) any amount included under subsection (2) or deducted under subsection 20.4(2) in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business for its transition year,

(ii) any amount included under subsection (3) or deducted under subsection 20.4(3) in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business for a taxation year of the insurer that begins before the start day, and

(iii) any amount that would — in the absence of this subsection and if the insurer existed and carried on an insurance business on each day that is the start day or a subsequent day and on which the parent carries on an insurance business — be required to be included or deducted, in respect of any of those days, under subsection (3) or 20.4(3) in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business; and (b) the insurer is, in respect of each of its particular taxation years, to determine the value for B in the formulas in subsections (3) and 20.4(3) without reference to the start day and days after the start day.

History: S. 12.5(4) was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

(5) Amalgamations. If there is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) of an insurer with one or more other corporations to form one corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation"), and immediately after the amalgamation the new corporation carries on an insurance business, in applying subsections (3) and 20.4(3) in computing the new corporation's income for particular taxation years that begin on or after the day on which the amalgamation occurred, the new corporation is, on and after that day, deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the insurer in respect of

(a) any amount included under subsection (2) or deducted under subsection 20.4(2) in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business for its transition year;

(b) any amount included under subsection (3) or deducted under subsection 20.4(3) in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business for a taxation year of the insurer that begins before the day on which the amalgamation occurred; and

(c) any amount that would — in the absence of this subsection and if the insurer existed and carried on an insurance business on each day that is the day on which the amalgamation occurred or a subsequent day and on which the new corporation carries on an insurance business — be required to be included or deducted, in respect of any of those days, under subsection (3) or 20.4(3) in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business.

(6) Application of subsection (7). Subsection (7) applies if, at any time, an insurer (referred to in this subsection and subsection (7) as the "transferor") transfers, to a corporation (referred to in this subsection and subsection (7) as the "transferee") that is related to the transferor, property in respect of an insurance business carried on by the transferor in Canada (referred to in this subsection and subsection (7) as the "transferred business") and

(a) subsection 138(11.5) or (11.94) applies to the transfer; or

(b) subsection 85(1) applies to the transfer, the transfer includes all or substantially all of the property and liabilities of the transferred business and, immediately after the transfer, the transferee carries on an insurance business.

History: S. 12.5(6) was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

(7) Transfer of insurance business. If this subsection applies in respect of the transfer, at any time, of property

(a) the transferee is, at and after that time, deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the transferor in respect of

(i) any amount included under subsection (2) or deducted under subsection 20.4(2) in computing the transferor's income for its transition year that can reasonably be attributed to the transferred business,

(ii) any amount included under subsection (3) or deducted under subsection 20.4(3) in computing the transferor's income for a taxation year of the transferor that begins before that time that can reasonably be attributed to the transferred business,

(iii) any amount that would — in the absence of this subsection and if the transferor existed and carried on an insurance business on each day that includes that time or is a subsequent day and on which the transferee carries on an insurance business — be required to be included or deducted, in respect of any of those days, under subsection (3) or 20.4(3) in computing the transferor's income that can reasonably be attributed to the transferred business; and

(b) in determining, in respect of the day that includes that time or any subsequent day, any amount that is required under subsection (3) or 20.4(3) to be included or deducted in computing the transferor's income for each particular taxation year from the transferred business, the description of A in the formulas in those subsections is deemed to be nil.

(8) Ceasing to carry on business. If at any time an insurer ceases to carry on all or substantially all of an insurance business (referred to in this subsection as the "discontinued business"), and none of subsections (4) to (6) apply, there shall be included in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for the insurer's taxation year that includes the time that is immediately before that time, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount deducted under subsection 20.4(2) in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for its transition year; and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included under subsection (3) in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for a taxation year that began before that time.

(9) Ceasing to exist. If at any time an insurer that carried on an insurance business ceases to exist (otherwise than as a result of a winding-up or amalgamation described in subsection (4) or (5)), for the purposes of subsections (8) and 20.4(4), the insurer is deemed to have ceased to carry on the insurance business at the earlier of

(a) the time (determined without reference to this subsection) at which the insurer ceased to carry on the insurance business, and

(b) the time that is immediately before the end of the last taxation year of the insurer that ended at or before the time at which the insurer ceased to exist.

History: S. 12.5(9) was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 5(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subsection 13(1) of the Act is replaced by the following:

SECTION 13:

(1) Recaptured depreciation. If, at the end of a taxation year, the total of the amounts determined for E to K in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) in respect of a taxpayer's depreciable property of a particular prescribed class exceeds the total of the amounts determined for A to D.1 in that definition in respect of that property, the excess shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income of the year.

Applicable: To taxation years that end after February 23, 1998.

Explanatory Note:

Recaptured Depreciation

Subsection 13(1) of the Act provides for the inclusion in a taxpayer's income of recaptured capital cost allowance when the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of depreciable property of a prescribed class exceeds the undepreciated capital cost (UCC) of the property.

Subsection 13(1) is amended to add a reference to the new descriptions of D.1 and K of the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21). Those descriptions provide for an addition to the UCC of a class of certain countervailing duties paid in respect of property of the class ("D.1") and a corresponding reduction for any refunds of those amounts ("K").

This amendment applies to taxation years that end after February 23, 1998, and corrects a technical deficiency.

Editorial Note: Subsection 13(1) includes in income the negative balance of the undepreciated capital cost (UCC) in respect of a class of depreciable property, if any, at the end of a taxation year. In general terms, the inclusion is normally meant to reflect previously deducted depreciation to the extent it is "recaptured" on a sale of depreciable property (for example, when the sole property in a class is sold for proceeds in excess of the UCC). The amount included under subsection 13(1) is added to the UCC balance at the beginning of the next taxation year (see amount B in the UCC definition in subsection 13(21)).

Editorial Note: Subsection 13(2) provides that depreciation recapture will not be included in income in respect of a passenger vehicle with a cost exceeding $20,000 (or such other amount as may be prescribed) — see Regulation 7307(1). However, the recapture, is deemed for the purpose of B in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21) to have been included in the taxpayer's income for the year, ensuring that the result of the computation of undepreciated capital cost of the particular class will be nil.

"(B) in any other case, before the end of the first taxation year following the initial year,"

Explanatory Note:

Exchanges of Property

Subsection 13(4) of the Act allows a taxpayer, who is required under subsection 13(1) to include in income recaptured depreciation resulting from the disposition of certain depreciable property, to elect to defer tax on the recapture to the extent that the taxpayer reinvests the proceeds of disposition in a replacement property within a certain period of time, namely

- in the case of certain involuntary dispositions, e.g., theft or expropriation, before the end of the taxpayer's second taxation year that begins after the property was disposed of, or
- in other situations, before the end of the taxpayer's first taxation year that begins after the property was disposed of.

Subparagraph 13(4)(c)(ii) is amended to accommodate taxation years that are shorter than 12 months, by providing that the periods for acquiring replacement property end at the later of the times mentioned above and

- in the case of involuntary dispositions, within 24 months after the end of the taxation year in which the property was disposed of, or
- in other situations, within 12 months after the end of the taxation year in which the property was disposed of.

These amendments apply, in the case of involuntary dispositions, in respect of dispositions that occur in taxation years that end on or after December 20, 2000, and in any other case, in respect of dispositions that occur in taxation years that end on or after December 20, 2001.

(d) the amount of the reduction determined under paragraph (c) shall be deemed to be proceeds of disposition of a depreciable property of the taxpayer that had a capital cost equal to that amount and that was property of the same class as the replacement property, from a disposition made on the later of

(i) the time the replacement property was acquired by the taxpayer, and

(ii) the time the former property was disposed of by the taxpayer.

History: S. 13(4), the portion after paragraph (b) and before paragraph (c), was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 73(1), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year. S. 13(4), the portion after paragraph (b) and before paragraph (c), formerly read:

"and the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year in which the taxpayer acquires, as a replacement for the former property, a property (in this subsection referred to as a 'replacement property'),"

Editorial Note: Subsection 13(4) allows a taxpayer who is required under subsection 13(1) to include in income recaptured depreciation from the disposition of certain depreciable property to elect to defer tax on the recapture to the extent that the taxpayer reinvests the proceeds of disposition in a replacement property. In the case of certain involuntary dispositions (e.g., theft or expropriation), the proceeds must be reinvested before the end of the taxpayer's second taxation year that begins after the property was disposed of, and, in other situations, before the end of the taxpayer's first taxation year that begins after the property was disposed of.

(4.1) Replacement for a former property. For the purposes of subsection (4), a particular depreciable property of a prescribed class of a taxpayer is a replacement for a former property of the taxpayer if

(a) it is reasonable to conclude that the property was acquired by the taxpayer to replace the former property;

(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer and used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer put the former property;

(b) where the former property was used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business, the particular depreciable property was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from that or a similar business or for use by a person related to the taxpayer for such a purpose;

(c) where the former property was a taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, the particular depreciable property is a taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer; and

(d) where the former property was a taxable Canadian property (other than treaty-protected property) of the taxpayer, the particular depreciable property is a taxable Canadian property (other than treaty-protected property) of the taxpayer.

History: S. 13(4.1)(c) was amended, and paragraph (d) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 6(1), applicable to any disposition that occurs in a taxation year that ends after 1997. S. 13(4.1)(c) formerly read:

"(c) where the former property was taxable Canadian property (or would have been taxable Canadian property if the taxpayer were non-resident throughout the year in which the former property was disposed of and the former property were used in a business carried on by the taxpayer), the particular depreciable property was taxable Canadian property (or would have been taxable Canadian property if the taxpayer were non-resident throughout the year in which the particular property was acquired and the particular property were used in a business carried on by the taxpayer)."

S. 13(4.1)(a) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 73(2), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year.

S. 13(4.1)(a) formerly read:

"(a) it was acquired by the taxpayer for the same or a similar use as the use to which the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer put the former property;"

S. 13(4.1)(a.1) was added by 1998, c. 19, s. 73(2), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year except that, where a taxpayer so elects in respect of a former property that was disposed of before this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998] by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before the filing-due date for the taxpayer's first taxation year that ends after the day on which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998], paragraph 13(4.1)(a.1) of the Act shall, for the purpose of determining whether a property is a replacement property of the former property, be read as follows:

"(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer put the former property;"

S. 13(4.1)(a) to (c) were amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 9(1). Amendments to s. 13(4.1)(a) and (b) are applicable with respect to dispositions of former properties occurring after July 13, 1990. Amendments to s. 13(4.1)(c) are applicable with respect to property acquired as a replacement for a former property disposed of after April 2, 1990, other than a former property disposed of

(a) under an agreement in writing entered into before April 3, 1990; or

(b) pursuant to a written notice of an intention to take the property under statutory authority given before April 3, 1990 or for the sale price of the property sold to a person by whom such a notice was given before April 3, 1990.

S. 13(4.1)(a) to (c) formerly read:

Section 13 of the Act is amended by adding the following after subsection (4.1):

(4.2) Election — limited period franchise, concession or license. Subsection (4.3) applies in circumstances where

(a) a taxpayer (in this subsection and subsection (4.3) referred to as the "transferor") has, pursuant to a written agreement with a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (4.3) referred to as the "transferee"), at any time disposed of or terminated a former property that is a franchise, concession or licence for a limited period that is wholly attributable to the carrying on of a business at a fixed place;

(b) the transferee acquired the former property from the transferor or, on the termination, acquired a similar property in respect of the same fixed place from another person or partnership; and

(c) the transferor and the transferee jointly elect in their returns of income for their taxation years that include that time to have subsection (4.3) apply in respect of the acquisition and the disposition or termination.

(4.3) Effect of election. Where this subsection applies in respect of an acquisition and a disposition or termination,

(a) if the transferee acquired a similar property referred to in paragraph (4.2)(b), the transferee is deemed to have also acquired the former property at the time that the former property was terminated and to own the former property until the transferee no longer owns the similar property;

(b) if the transferee acquired the former property referred to in paragraph (4.2)(b), the transferee is deemed to own the former property until such time as the transferee owns neither the former property nor a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related;

(c) for the purpose of calculating the amount deductible under paragraph 20(1)(a) in respect of the former property in computing the transferee's income, the life of the former property remaining on its acquisition by the transferee is deemed to be equal to the period that was the life of the former property remaining on its acquisition by the transferor; and

(d) any amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, be an eligible capital amount to the transferor or an eligible capital expenditure to the transferee in respect of the disposition or termination of the former property by the transferor is deemed to be

(i) neither an eligible capital amount nor an eligible capital expenditure,

(ii) an amount required to be included in computing the capital cost to the transferee of the former property, and

(iii) an amount required to be included in computing the proceeds of disposition to the transferor in respect of a disposition of the former property.

Applicable: In respect of dispositions and terminations that occur after December 20, 2002.

Explanatory Note:

Election — Limited Period Franchise, Concession or License

Subsection 14(6) of the Act permits a taxpayer to defer tax otherwise arising on the disposition of an eligible capital property, to the extent that the taxpayer reinvests the proceeds of disposition in a replacement property within a certain period of time. A franchise, concession or license with an indefinite term may be such an eligible capital property. However, such a property with a defined term will generally be a depreciable property included in Class 14 of Schedule II of the Income Tax Regulations ("the Regulations") and will not be eligible for similar replacement treatment under subsection 13(4) of the Act because such a property is not a "former business property" as defined in subsection 248(1) of the Act. Further, the replacement property provisions for depreciable property generally apply only to immoveable property.

New subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) of the Act are added, concurrent with the amendment of the definition "former business property", to allow a taxpayer (the "transferor") to use the replacement property rules under subsection 13(4) in respect of the disposition or termination of a property that is the subject of a joint election with the purchaser (the "transferee") of the property.

New subsection 13(4.2) describes the circumstances under which the transferor and the transferee may make a joint election. Property eligible for the election is a "former property" described in subsection 13(4) that is a franchise, concession or license for a limited period that is wholly attributable to the carrying on of a business at a fixed place. The election may be made where the property is disposed of directly by the transferor to the transferee or where the property of the transferor is terminated and the transferee acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place from another person. Both parties must elect in their returns of income for their respective taxation years that include the year of the disposition or termination.

New subsection 13(4.3) provides rules that apply when an election has been made under subsection 13(4.2). If the transferee acquires the property disposed of by the transferor (the "former property"), the transferee is deemed to own that property until such time as the transferee owns neither the former property nor a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related. If the transferee instead acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place (i.e., the life of the former property was terminated), the transferee is deemed to have also acquired the former property and to continue to own it until the transferee no longer owns the similar property.

In either case, for the purpose of claiming a deduction by the transferee under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, the life of the former property in the hands of the transferee is deemed to be the term remaining at the time the transferor originally acquired the property. For instance, a license with a 20-year life when it was originally acquired by the transferor, but with 5 years remaining at the time of the transfer, would be considered to have a 20-year life in the hands of the transferee for the purposes of claiming a deduction under paragraph 20(1)(a).

There may be circumstances where, but for an election under subsection 13(4.2), a portion of the consideration given by a transferee upon the sale of a limited period franchise, license or concession might reasonably be considered to be an eligible capital amount to the transferor and an eligible capital expenditure to the transferee. For instance, a portion of the consideration may reasonably relate to the preferred status that the transferee may receive in obtaining a new property at the end of the term. Where an election under subsection 13(4.2) is made, subsection 13(4.3) provides that such an amount will be neither an eligible capital amount to the transferor, nor an eligible capital expenditure to the transferee, but will instead be included in the cost to the transferee and proceeds of disposition of the transferor of the former property.

In this regard, it is also proposed that section 1101 of the Regulations be amended, applicable after December 20, 2002, by adding the following after subsection (1*af*):

(1*ag*) If more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II, and one or more of the properties is a property in respect of which the taxpayer is a transferee that has elected under subsection 13(4.2) of the Act, a separate class is prescribed for each such property of the taxpayer that would otherwise be included in the same class.

If, subsequent to the acquisition of the former property by the transferee, the life of the former property expires and a similar property in respect of the same fixed place is not acquired by the transferee, the transferee may, under subsection 20(16) of the Act, be entitled to a terminal loss in respect of the former property. Refer to the commentary to new paragraph 20(16.1)(b) of the Act regarding limitations in respect of the deduction of such a terminal loss.

New subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) apply in respect of dispositions and terminations that occur after December 20, 2002.

Ms. Mubarak is a franchisee with 5 years remaining of a 20-year agreement. The original cost was $60,000, and the undepreciated capital cost ("UCC") is $15,000. The agreement is transferable, so she agrees to sell the franchise to Mr. Grando at its fair market value of $85,000. Ms. Mubarak will, in the same taxation year, purchase from Ms. Vincent a replacement franchise that has 15 years remaining of a 20-year term, for $100,000.

But for the making of an election under subsection 13(4.2), Ms. Mubarak would have a capital gain of $25,000 (i.e., $85,000 – $60,000) and a UCC balance of $55,000 (i.e., $15,000 + $100,000 – $60,000) before deducting any capital cost allowance for the year. The adjusted cost base ("ACB") of her replacement franchise would be $100,000. Mr. Grando would have acquired a Class 14 property with an ACB and capital cost of $85,000, depreciable over 5 years.

If Ms. Mubarak and Mr. Grando jointly elect under subsection 13(4.2), Ms. Mubarak may elect under subsections 13(4) and 44(1) to defer the capital gain, such that the ACB and capital cost of the replacement franchise will be deemed to be $75,000 (i.e., $100,000 less the $25,000 deferred capital gain). Furthermore, Ms. Mubarak's UCC balance for Class 14 will be $30,000 (i.e., an increase equivalent to the $100,000 cost of the replacement franchise less the $85,000 proceeds from the former property), to be amortized over the remaining 15-year term. In this regard, note that the term for amortizing Ms. Mubarak's replacement franchise is unaffected by her and Mr. Grando's joint election in respect of the former property. Mr. Grando, on the other hand, will be required to amortize his $85,000 cost of the former property over 20 years, which was the term of the former property when it was first acquired by Ms. Mubarak.

If Mr. Grando does not enter into a new agreement with the franchisor after the 5-year period, he will be eligible for a terminal loss (even if there are other Class 14 assets, because the $85,000 property will be in a "separate class"). However, a terminal loss will not be available if a person dealing non-arm's length with Mr. Grando, at any time before the time that is 24 months after the expiry of the old agreement, enters into a new franchise agreement in respect of the same fixed place.

Consider the same example, except that the original franchise agreement of Ms. Mubarak (the former property) is not transferable, but instead must be terminated and renewed with the franchisor. Suppose that it is renewed by Mr. Grando for a period of 12 years, with an additional amount of $120,000 paid by Mr. Grando to the franchisor for the new agreement.

In this case it is arguable that, for Mr. Grando, the $85,000 payment to Ms. Mubarak is, absent an election under subsection 13(4.2), an eligible capital expenditure by Mr. Grando. That is, Mr. Grando will pay a separate amount of $120,000 to the franchisor for a Class 14 asset, but the $85,000 payment to Ms. Mubarak is, in effect, incurred to acquire the right to renew the franchise, not to acquire a Class 14 property. Ms. Mubarak has likewise received proceeds of disposition of an eligible capital property (i.e., an "eligible capital amount", 3/4 of which would reduce her Cumulative Eligible Capital balance), not proceeds of disposition of a Class 14 property. Absent an election under subsection 13(4.2), Ms. Mubarak would not be entitled to acquire a replacement eligible capital property, but could be entitled to claim a terminal loss on the termination of the original franchise agreement (if she had no other Class 14 assets on hand at the end of the taxation year of disposition). Subsection 14(1) would apply to the eligible capital amount received by Ms. Mubarak.

The $120,000 cost of the new agreement to Mr. Grando, paid to the franchisor, could be written off by Mr. Grando over its 12-year term.

If Ms. Mubarak and Mr. Grando jointly elect under subsection 13(4.2), no part of the proceeds of disposition for the former property will be an eligible capital amount or an eligible capital expenditure. The results are the same as in Example 1, except that Mr. Grando will now have two Class 14 properties:

- the new franchise agreement, the $120,000 cost of which may be written off by him over its 12-year term; and
- the former property, deemed to have been acquired by him and included in a separate class, the $85,000 cost of which may be written off by him over its deemed 20-year term.

Example 3

Consider again Example 1, but suppose that the replacement franchise, purchased by Ms. Mubarak from Ms. Vincent, is itself the subject of a joint election by them under subsection 13(4.2). Ms. Mubarak is required to amortize her $30,000 UCC (see Example 1) over the original 20-year term of Ms. Vincent, not over its remaining 15 years.

Editorial Note: Draft subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) allow elections under subsections 13(4) and 44(1) (to defer recapture of depreciation and capital gains, respectively) to be made in respect of a franchise, concession or limited period license if the transferor and transferee elect jointly. However, paragraph 20(16.1)(b) provides that a terminal loss will not be available to the transferee in respect of such property.

(5) Reclassification of property. Where one or more depreciable properties of a taxpayer that were included in a prescribed class (in this subsection referred to as the "old class") become included at any time (in this subsection referred to as the "transfer time") in another prescribed class (in this subsection referred to as the "new class"), for the purpose of determining at any subsequent time the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of the old class and the new class

(a) the value of A in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) shall be determined as if each of those depreciable properties were

(i) properties of the new class acquired before the subsequent time, and

(ii) never included in the old class; and

(b) there shall be deducted in computing the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of the old class before the subsequent time, and added in computing the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of the new class before the subsequent time, the greater of

(i) the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of each of those depreciable properties, and

B is the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of the old class at the transfer time, and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that would have been deducted under paragraph 20(1)(a) in respect of a depreciable property that is one of those properties in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ended before the transfer time and at the end of which the property was included in the old class if

(A) the property had been the only property included in a separate prescribed class, and

(B) the rate allowed by the regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) in respect of that separate class had been the effective rate that was used by the taxpayer to calculate a deduction under that paragraph in respect of the old class for the year.

History: S. 13(5) was amended by S.C. 1997, c. 25, s. 3(1), applicable to properties of a prescribed class that, after 1996, become included in property of another prescribed class. S. 13(5) formerly read:

"(5) Transferred property. Where depreciable property of a taxpayer that was included in a prescribed class (in this subsection referred to as the 'former class') has been transferred to another prescribed class (in this subsection referred to as the 'other class'), for purposes of determining the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of the former class and of the other class at any time after the transfer

(a) the transferred property shall be deemed to be depreciable property of the other class acquired before that time and not depreciable property of the former class acquired before that time; and

(b) an amount equal to the greater of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the capital cost to the taxpayer of the transferred property exceeds the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of the former class immediately before the transfer, and

(ii) the total of all amounts that would have been deducted by the taxpayer in respect of the transferred property under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for taxation years ending before the transfer had that property been the only property included in a separate prescribed class and had the rate allowed by the regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) in respect of that separate class been the effective rate that was used by the taxpayer to calculate a deduction under that paragraph in respect of the former class for taxation years at the end of which the transferred property was included in the former class shall be included in computing the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of the other class before that time and not included in computing the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of the former class before that time."

(a) the leasehold interest shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) the capital cost immediately before that time of the leasehold interest

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts claimed by the taxpayer in respect of the leasehold interest and deductible under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income in previous taxation years;

(b) the particular property shall be deemed to be depreciable property of a prescribed class of the taxpayer acquired by the taxpayer at that time and there shall be added to the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property an amount equal to the capital cost referred to in subparagraph (a)(i); and

(c) the total referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii) shall be added to the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer before that time in respect of the class to which the particular property belongs.

(a) the property shall be deemed to have been acquired by the taxpayer at that time at a cost equal to the lesser of

(i) the fair market value of the property at that time determined without reference to any option with respect to that property, and

(ii) the total of the cost or the capital cost (determined without reference to this subsection) of the property to the taxpayer and all amounts (other than amounts paid or payable to a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length) each of which is an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length at any time for the use of, or the right to use, the property, and for the purposes of this paragraph and subsection (5.3), where a particular corporation has been incorporated or otherwise formed after the time any other corporation with which the particular corporation would not have been dealing at arm's length had the particular corporation been in existence before that time, the particular corporation shall be deemed to have been in existence from the time of the formation of the other corporation and to have been not dealing at arm's length with the other corporation;

(b) the amount by which the cost to the taxpayer of the property determined under paragraph (a) exceeds the cost or the capital cost thereof (determined without reference to this subsection) shall be added to the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer before that time in respect of the prescribed class to which the property belongs; and

(c) where the property would, but for this paragraph, not be depreciable property of the taxpayer, it shall be deemed to be depreciable property of a separate prescribed class of the taxpayer.

Editorial Note: Subsection 13(5.2) applies when a taxpayer has paid rent for property (e.g., a building) and later acquires the property. Essentially, if the property is later sold for a profit, the rent paid is "recaptured" because it is treated as CCA claimed, which is recaptured under subsection 13(1).

(I) the fair market value of the property at that later time exceeds the total of

(II) the cost to the taxpayer of the property as determined under clause (A), and

(III) twice the amount deducted by the taxpayer under section 110.6 in respect of the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that later time exceeds the cost to the taxpayer of the property as determined under clause (A);

(c) where property has, since it was acquired by a taxpayer, been regularly used in part for the purpose of gaining or producing income and in part for some other purpose, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired, for the purpose of gaining or producing income, the proportion of the property that the use regularly made of the property for gaining or producing income is of the whole use regularly made of the property at a capital cost to the taxpayer equal to the same proportion of the capital cost to the taxpayer of the whole property and, if the property has, in such a case, been disposed of, the proceeds of disposition of the proportion of the property deemed to have been acquired for gaining or producing income shall be deemed to be the same proportion of the proceeds of disposition of the whole property;

(d) where, at any time after a taxpayer has acquired property, there has been a change in the relation between the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for gaining or producing income and the use regularly made of the property for other purposes,

(i) if the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for the purpose of gaining or producing income has increased, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired at that time depreciable property of that class at a capital cost equal to the total of

(A) the proportion of the lesser of

(I) its fair market value at that time, and

(II) its cost to the taxpayer at that time determined without reference to this subparagraph, subparagraph (ii) and paragraph (a)

that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for that purpose is of the whole of the use regularly made of the property, and

(B) ½ of the amount, if any, by which

(I) the amount deemed under subparagraph 45(1)(c)(ii) to be the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property in respect of the change

exceeds the total of

(II) that proportion of the cost to the taxpayer of the property as determined under subclause (A)(II) that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for that purpose is of the whole of the use regularly made of the property, and

(III) twice the amount deducted by the taxpayer under section 110.6 in respect of the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subclause (I) exceeds the amount determined under subclause (II), and

(ii) if the use regularly made of the property for the purpose of gaining or producing income has decreased, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed at that time of depreciable property of that class and the proceeds of disposition shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the proportion of the fair market value of the property as of that time that the amount of the decrease in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for that purpose is of the whole use regularly made of the property;

(e) notwithstanding any other provision of this Act except subsection 70(13), where at a particular time a person or partnership (in this paragraph referred to as the "taxpayer") has, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, acquired (otherwise than as a consequence of the death of the transferor) a depreciable property (other than a timber resource property) of a prescribed class from a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor") and, immediately before the transfer, the property was a capital property of the transferor,

(i) where the transferor was an individual resident in Canada or a partnership any member of which was either an individual resident in Canada or another partnership and the cost of the property to the taxpayer at the particular time determined without reference to this paragraph exceeds the cost, or where the property was depreciable property, the capital cost of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it, the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer at the particular time shall be deemed to be the amount that is equal to the total of

(A) the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before the particular time, and

(B) 1/2 of the amount, if any, by which

(I) the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the total of

(II) the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, to the transferor immediately before the particular time,

(III) twice the amount deducted by any person under section 110.6 in respect of the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subclause (I) exceeds the amount determined under subclause (II), and

(IV) the amount, if any, required by subsection 110.6(21) to be deducted in computing the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property at that time and, for the purposes of paragraph (b) and subparagraph (d)(i), the cost of the property to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the same amount,

(ii) where the transferor was neither an individual resident in Canada nor a partnership any member of which was either an individual resident in Canada or another partnership and the cost of the property to the taxpayer at the particular time determined without reference to this paragraph exceeds the cost, or where the property was depreciable property, the capital cost of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it, the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer at that time shall be deemed to be the amount that is equal to the total of

(A) the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before the particular time, and

(B) 1/2 of the amount, if any, by which the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, to the transferor immediately before the particular time and, for the purposes of paragraph (b) and subparagraph (d)(i), the cost of the property to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the same amount, and

(iii) where the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it exceeds the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer at that time determined without reference to this paragraph, the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer at that time shall be deemed to be the amount that was the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it and the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed to the taxpayer in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for taxation years ending before the acquisition of the property by the taxpayer;

(e.1) where a taxpayer is deemed by paragraph 110.6(19)(a) to have disposed of and reacquired a property that immediately before the disposition was a depreciable property, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property from himself, herself or itself and, in so having acquired the property, not to have been dealing with himself, herself or itself at arm's length;

(f) where a corporation is deemed under paragraph 111(4)(e) to have disposed of and reacquired depreciable property (other than a timber resource property), the capital cost to the corporation of the property at the time of the reacquisition is deemed to be the amount that is equal to the total of

(i) the capital cost to the corporation of the property at the time of the disposition, and

(ii) 1/2 of the amount, if any, by which the corporation's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the capital cost to the corporation of the property at the time of the disposition;

(g) where the cost to a taxpayer of a passenger vehicle exceeds $20,000 or such other amount as is prescribed, the capital cost to the taxpayer of the vehicle shall be deemed to be $20,000 or that other prescribed amount, as the case may be; and

(h) notwithstanding paragraph (g), where a passenger vehicle is acquired by a taxpayer at any time from a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, the capital cost at that time to the taxpayer of the vehicle shall be deemed to be the least of

(i) the fair market value of the vehicle at that time,

(ii) the amount that immediately before that time was the cost amount to that person of the vehicle, and

(iii) $20,000 or such other amount as is prescribed.

Ss. 13(7)(a) and (b) were amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 9(3), applicable to changes in use occurring after May 22, 1985, except that (a) in applying paragraph 13(7)(a) to changes in use occurring before May 1988, it shall be read as follows:

"(a) where a taxpayer, having acquired property for the purpose of gaining or producing income therefrom or for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business, has begun at a later time to use it for some other purpose, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed of it at that later time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at that time and to have reacquired it immediately thereafter at a cost equal to that fair market value;"

and

(b) in applying clause 13(7)(b)(ii)(B) of the Act,

(i) to changes in use of property by a person or partnership in taxation years and fiscal periods ending before 1988, the references, if any, therein to "3/4" and "4/3 of" shall be read as "1/2" and "2 times", respectively,

(ii) to changes in use of property by an individual or a partnership in taxation years and fiscal periods ending after 1987 and before 1990, the references, if any, therein to "3/4" and "4/3" shall be read as "2/3" and "3/2", respectively,

(iii) to changes in use of property by a corporation in taxation years ending after 1987 and beginning before 1990 throughout which the corporation was a Canadian-controlled private corporation, the reference in that clause to "3/4" shall, in respect of the corporation for the year, be read as a reference to the fraction determined as the total of

(A) the proportion of 1/2 that the number of days in the year that are before 1988 is of the number of days in the year,

(B) the proportion of 2/3 that the number of days in the year that are after 1987 and before 1990 is of the number of days in the year, and

(C) the proportion of 3/4 that the number of days in the year that are after 1989 is of the number of days in the year, and

(iv) to changes in use of property by a corporation in taxation years ending after 1987 and beginning before 1990 where throughout the year the corporation was not a Canadian-controlled private corporation, the reference in that clause to "3/4" shall, in respect of the corporation for the year, be read as a reference to the fraction determined as the total of

(A) the proportion of 1/2 that the number of days in the year that are before July 1988 is of the number of days in the year,

(B) the proportion of 2/3 that the number of days in the year that are after June 1988 and before 1990 is of the number of days in the year, and

(C) the proportion of 3/4 that the number of days in the year that are after 1989 is of the number of days in the year.

Ss. 13(7)(a) and (b) formerly read:

"(a) where a taxpayer, having acquired property for the purpose of gaining or producing income, has commenced at a later time to use it for some other purpose, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed of it at that later time at its fair market value at that later time;

(b) where a taxpayer, having acquired property for some other purpose, has commenced at a later time to use it for the purpose of gaining or producing income, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired it at that later time at a capital cost to the taxpayer equal to the lesser of

(i) its fair market value at that later time, and

(ii) the total of

(A) its cost to the taxpayer at that later time determined without reference to this paragraph, paragraph (a) and subparagraph (d)(ii), and

(B) 3/4 of the amount, if any, by which

(I) the fair market value of the property at that later time exceeds the total of

(II) the cost to the taxpayer of the property immediately before that later time, and

(III) 4/3 of the amount deducted by the taxpayer under section 110.6 in respect of the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that later time exceeds the cost to the taxpayer of the property immediately before that later time;"

S. 13(7)(c) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 9(4), applicable to changes in use occurring after April 1988. S. 13(7)(c) formerly read:

"(c) where property (other than a motor vehicle in respect of which section 67.3 applies) has, since it was acquired by a taxpayer, been regularly used in part for the purpose of gaining or producing income and in part for some other purpose, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired, for the purpose of gaining or producing income, the proportion of the property that the use regularly made of the property for gaining or producing income is of the whole use regularly made of the property at a capital cost to the taxpayer equal to the same proportion of the capital cost to the taxpayer of the whole property; and, if the property has, in such a case, been disposed of, the proceeds of disposition of the proportion of the property deemed to have been acquired for gaining or producing income shall be deemed to be the same proportion of the proceeds of disposition of the whole property;"

Ss. 13(7)(d)(i)(B)(II) and (III) were amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 9(5), applicable to changes in use occurring after May 22, 1985, except that

(a) in applying subclause 13(7)(d)(i)(B)(III) of the Act,

(i) to changes in use of property by a person or partnership in taxation years and fiscal periods ending before 1988, the references, if any, therein to "3/4" and "4/3 of" shall be read as "1/2" and "2 times", respectively,

(7.1) Deemed capital cost of certain property. For the purposes of this Act, where section 80 applied to reduce the capital cost to a taxpayer of a depreciable property or a taxpayer deducted an amount under subsection 127(5) or (6) in respect of a depreciable property or received or is entitled to receive assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority in respect of, or for the acquisition of, depreciable property, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, investment allowance or as any other form of assistance other than (a) an amount described in paragraph 37(1)(d),

(b) an amount deducted as an allowance under section 65, or

(b.1) an amount included in income by virtue of paragraph 12(1)(u) or 56(1)(s), the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer at any particular time shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the total of

(c) the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer, determined without reference to this subsection, subsection (7.4) and section 80, and

(d) such part, if any, of the assistance as has been repaid by the taxpayer, pursuant to an obligation to repay all or any part of that assistance, in respect of that property before the disposition thereof by the taxpayer and before the particular time

(7.5) Deemed capital cost. For the purposes of this Act,

(a) where a taxpayer, to acquire a property prescribed in respect of the taxpayer, is required under the terms of a contract made after March 6, 1996 to make a payment to Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or to a Canadian municipality in respect of costs incurred or to be incurred by the recipient of the payment

(i) the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at a capital cost equal to the portion of that payment made by the taxpayer that can reasonably be regarded as being in respect of those costs, and

(ii) the time of acquisition of the property by the taxpayer is deemed to be the later of the time the payment is made and the time at which those costs are incurred;

(b) where

(i) at any time after March 6, 1996 a taxpayer incurs a cost on account of capital for the building of, for the right to use or in respect of, a prescribed property, and

(ii) the amount of the cost would, if this paragraph did not apply, not be included in the capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of a prescribed class, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at that time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the cost;

(c) where a taxpayer acquires an intangible property as a consequence of making a payment to which paragraph (a) applies or incurring a cost to which paragraph (b) applies,

(i) the property referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is deemed to include the intangible property, and

(ii) the portion of the capital cost referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) that applies to the intangible property is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the lesser of the amount of the payment made or cost incurred and the amount determined for C,

B is the fair market value of the intangible property at the time the payment was made or the cost was incurred, and

C is the fair market value at the time the payment was made or the cost was incurred of all intangible properties acquired as a consequence of making the payment or incurring the cost; and

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced]

Paragraph 13(7.5)(c) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(c) where a taxpayer acquires an intangible property, or for civil law an incorporeal property, as a consequence of making a payment to which paragraph (a) applies or incurring a cost to which paragraph (b) applies,

(i) the property referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is deemed to include the intangible or incorporeal property, and

(ii) the portion of the capital cost referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) that applies to the intangible or incorporeal property is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the lesser of the amount of the payment made or cost incurred and the amount determined for C,

B is the fair market value of the intangible or incorporeal property at the time the payment was made or the cost was incurred, and

C is the fair market value at the time the payment was made or the cost was incurred of all intangible or incorporeal properties acquired as a consequence of making the payment or incurring the cost; and

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note: [See the Explanatory Note re amendments related to bijuralism following the amendment to paragraph 12(1)(o).]

(d) any property deemed by paragraph (a) or (b) to have been acquired at any time by a taxpayer as a consequence of making a payment or incurring a cost

(i) is deemed to have been acquired for the purpose for which the payment was made or the cost was incurred, and

(ii) is deemed to be owned by the taxpayer at any subsequent time that the taxpayer benefits from the property.

"proceeds of disposition" — "proceeds of disposition" of property includes

(a) the sale price of property that has been sold,

(b) compensation for property unlawfully taken,

(c) compensation for property destroyed and any amount payable under a policy of insurance in respect of loss or destruction of property,

(d) compensation for property taken under statutory authority or the sale price of property sold to a person by whom notice of an intention to take it under statutory authority was given,

(e) compensation for property injuriously affected, whether lawfully or unlawfully or under statutory authority or otherwise,

(f) compensation for property damaged and any amount payable under a policy of insurance in respect of damage to property, except to the extent that the compensation or amount, as the case may be, has within a reasonable time after the damage been expended on repairing the damage,

(g) an amount by which the liability of a taxpayer to a mortgagee or hypothecary creditor is reduced as a result of the sale of mortgaged or hypothecated property under a provision of the mortgage or hypothec, plus any amount received by the taxpayer out of the proceeds of the sale, and

(h) any amount included because of section 79 in computing a taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property;

History: S. 13(21), paragraph (g) of the definition "proceeds of disposition" was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s 196(2), applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 13(21), paragraph (g) of the definition "proceeds of disposition" formerly read:

Cases: When, following the taxpayers' mortgage default, their mortgagee was allowed to purchase their condominium property for a stipulated sum and granted judgment for the balance of the amount owing, the taxpayers could report as "proceeds of disposition" their shares of the stipulated sum rather than their shares of the full principal amount still outstanding on the mortgage. Brill et al. v. The Queen, 96 DTC 6572 (F.C.A.), reversing in part 95 DTC 5435 (F.C.T.D.).

Since paragraph (h) of the definition "proceeds of disposition" in s. 13(21) specifically refers to any amount included in a taxpayer's proceeds of disposition by virtue of s. 79(c), the taxpayers' principal indebtedness to the mortgagees at the time they acquired the beneficial ownership of various condominiums in consequence of the failure to pay the mortgage amount owing was included in their proceeds of disposition. Farn et al. v. The Queen, 95 DTC 5426 (F.C.T.D.).

"timber resource property" — "timber resource property" of a taxpayer means

(a) a right or licence to cut or remove timber from a limit or area in Canada (in this definition referred to as an "original right") if

(i) that original right was acquired by the taxpayer (other than in the manner referred to in paragraph (b)) after May 6, 1974, and

(ii) at the time of the acquisition of the original right

(A) the taxpayer may reasonably be regarded as having acquired, directly or indirectly, the right to extend or renew that original right or to acquire another such right or licence in substitution therefor, or

(B) in the ordinary course of events, the taxpayer may reasonably expect to be able to extend or renew that original right or to acquire another such right or licence in substitution therefor, or

(b) any right or licence owned by the taxpayer to cut or remove timber from a limit or area in Canada if that right or licence may reasonably be regarded

(i) as an extension or renewal of or as one of a series of extensions or renewals of an original right of the taxpayer, or

(ii) as having been acquired in substitution for or as one of a series of substitutions for an original right of the taxpayer or any renewal or extension thereof;

Cases: The proceeds from the transfer of cutting licences were income from the disposition of "timber resource properties" because original rights become timber resource properties when initially obtained, renewed, extended or substituted for earlier rights after May 6, 1974 and it is irrelevant whether the licenses were extensions, renewals or substitutions for original rights initially acquired before or after May 6, 1974. *The Queen v. "undepreciated capital cost" — "undepreciated capital cost" to a taxpayer of depreciable property of a prescribed class as of any time means the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of a depreciable property of the class acquired before that time,

B is the total of all amounts included in the taxpayer's income under this section for a taxation year ending before that time, to the extent that those amounts relate to depreciable property of the class,

C is the total of all amounts each of which is such part of any assistance as has been repaid by the taxpayer, pursuant to an obligation to repay all or any part of that assistance, in respect of a depreciable property of the class subsequent to the disposition thereof by the taxpayer that would have been included in an amount determined under paragraph (7.1)(d) had the repayment been made before the disposition,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount repaid in respect of a property of the class subsequent to the disposition thereof by the taxpayer that would have been an amount described in paragraph (7.4)(b) had the repayment been made before the disposition,

D.1 is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount paid by the taxpayer before that time as or on account of an existing or proposed countervailing or anti-dumping duty in respect of depreciable property of the class,

E is the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of the class before that time,

E.1 is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount by which the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of that class is required (otherwise than because of a reduction in the capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property) to be reduced at or before that time because of subsection 80(5),

F is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a disposition before that time of property (other than a timber resource property) of the taxpayer of the class, and is the lesser of

(a) the proceeds of disposition of the property minus any outlays and expenses to the extent that they were made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition, and

(b) the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property,

G is the total of all amounts each of which is the proceeds of disposition before that time of a timber resource property of the taxpayer of the class minus any outlays and expenses to the extent that they were made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition,

H is, where the property of the class was acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a mine and the taxpayer so elects in prescribed manner and within a prescribed time in respect of that property, the amount equal to that portion of the income derived from the operation of the mine that is, by virtue of the provisions of the Income Tax Application Rules relating to income from the operation of new mines, not included in computing income of the taxpayer or any other person,

I is the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 127(5) or (6), in respect of a depreciable property of the class of the taxpayer, in computing the taxpayers' tax payable for a taxation year ending before that time and subsequent to the disposition of that property by the taxpayer,

J is the total of all amounts of assistance that the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive before that time, in respect of or for the acquisition of a depreciable property of the class of the taxpayer subsequent to the disposition of that property by the taxpayer, that would have been included in an amount determined under paragraph (7.1)(f) had the assistance been received before the disposition; and

K is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer before that time in respect of a refund of an amount added to the undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of the class because of the description of D.1;

History: S. 13(21), the formula in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 6(2), applicable after February 23, 1998. S. 13(21), the formula in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" formerly read:

(21.1) Disposition of building. Notwithstanding subsection (7) and the definition "proceeds of disposition" in section 54, where at any particular time in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes of a building of a prescribed class and the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this subsection and subsection (21.2) are less than the lesser of the cost amount and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the building immediately before the disposition, for the purposes of paragraph (a) of the description of F in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) and subdivision c,

(a) where in the year the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length disposes of land subjacent to, or immediately contiguous to and necessary for the use of, the building, the proceeds of disposition of the building are deemed to be the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of the fair market value of the building at the particular time and the fair market value of the land immediately before its disposition

exceeds

(B) the lesser of the fair market value of the land immediately before its disposition and the amount, if any, by which the cost amount to the vendor of the land (determined without reference to this subsection) exceeds the total of the capital gains (determined without reference to subparagraphs 40(1)(a)(ii) and (iii)) in respect of dispositions of the land within 3 years before the particular time by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length to the taxpayer or to another person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, and

(ii) the greater of

(A) the fair market value of the building at the particular time, and

(B) the lesser of the cost amount and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the building immediately before its disposition, and, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the proceeds of disposition of the land are deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

(iii) the total of the proceeds of disposition of the building and of the land determined without reference to this subsection and subsection (21.2)

exceeds

(iv) the proceeds of disposition of the building as determined under this paragraph,

and the cost to the purchaser of the land shall be determined without reference to this subsection; and

(b) where paragraph (a) does not apply with respect to the disposition and, at any time before the disposition, the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length owned the land subjacent to, or immediately contiguous to and necessary for the use of, the building, the proceeds of disposition of the building are deemed to be an amount equal to the total of

(i) the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this subsection and subsection (21.2), and

(ii) 1/2 of the amount by which the greater of

(A) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the building, and

(B) the fair market value of the building

immediately before its disposition exceeds the proceeds of disposition referred to in subparagraph (i).

History: S. 13(21.1)(b)(ii) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 6(6), by replacing the reference to the fraction "1/4" with a reference to the fraction "1/2", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxpayer's taxation year that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference in subparagraph 13(21.1)(b)(ii) to the fraction "1/2" shall be read as a reference to the fraction determined when the fraction in paragraph 38(a) of the Act that applies to the taxpayer for the year is subtracted from 1.

S. 13(21.1) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 73(4), subject to section 247 of this Bill (see Application below), applicable to dispositions of property that occur after April 26, 1995 except that, where the portion of subparagraph 13(21.2)(e)(iii) of the Act before clause (A) shall be read as follows:

(a) a property is disposed of after April 26, 1995 and before June 20, 1996, and

(b) the transferor elects in writing, filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998],

"(iii) the transferor is deemed to own a property that was acquired before the beginning of the taxation year that includes the particular time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the excess described in paragraph (b), and that is of a separate prescribed class that is the same class as the particular class, until the time that is immediately before the first time, after the particular time,"

(B) the lesser of the fair market value of the land immediately before its disposition and the amount, if any, by which the cost amount to the vendor of the land (determined without reference to this subsection) exceeds the total of the capital gains (determined without reference to subparagraphs 40(1)(a)(ii) and (iii)) in respect of dispositions of the land within the 3 year period preceding the particular time by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length to the taxpayer or to another person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, and

(ii) the greater of

(A) the fair market value of the building at the particular time, and
(B) the lesser of the cost amount and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the building immediately before its disposition and, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the proceeds of disposition of the land shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which
(iii) the total of the proceeds of disposition of the building and of the land determined without reference to this subsection
exceeds
(iv) the proceeds of disposition of the building as determined under this paragraph,
and the cost to the purchaser of the land shall be determined without reference to this subsection; and

(b) where paragraph (a) does not apply with respect to the disposition and, at any time before the disposition, the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length owned the land subjacent to, or immediately contiguous to and necessary for the use of, the building, the proceeds of disposition of the building shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the total of
(i) the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this subsection, and
(ii) 1/4 of the amount by which the greater of
(A) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the building, and

247. [Exception to coming-into-force.]

(1) Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(a) to a person who was obliged on April 26, 1995 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of
(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or
(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election. Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation. For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

Editorial Note: Subsection 13(21.1) applies before subsection 13(21.2), but does not prevent subsection 13(21.2) from applying. If both apply, subsection 13(21.2) may defer the recognition of a terminal loss arising after the application of subsection 13(21.1).

Cases: The taxpayer leased its shopping plaza for 25 years on August 31, 1961, granting the lessee an option to purchase it no later than 60 days prior to the end of the term. On January 20, 1986, an assignee of the lessee exercised such option and on August 29, 1986, the plaza was sold. Since the taxpayer was bound to give effect to the option granted by it to its original lessor in 1961 and the written agreement was in effect on May 9, 1985, s. 13(21.1) permitted the taxpayer to allocate the entire proceeds of sale to the land and to claim a terminal loss on the building. *The Queen v. the following rules apply:

(d) sections 85 and 97 do not apply to the disposition,

(e) for the purposes of applying this section and section 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) to the transferor for taxation years that end after the particular time,
(i) the transferor is deemed to have disposed of the transferred property for proceeds equal to the lesser of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (b)(i) and (ii) with respect to the transferred property,
(ii) where two or more properties of a prescribed class of the transferor are disposed of at the same time, subparagraph (i) applies as if each property so disposed of had been separately disposed of in the order designated by the transferor or, if the transferor does not designate an order, in the order designated by the Minister,
(iii) the transferor is deemed to own a property that was acquired before the beginning of the taxation year that includes the particular time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the excess described in paragraph (b), and that is property of the particular class, until the time that is immediately before the first time, after the particular time,
(A) at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the transferor nor a person affiliated with the transferor owns or has a right to acquire the transferred property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, hypothec, agreement for sale or similar obligation),

(B) at which the transferred property is not used by the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor for the purpose of earning income and is used for another purpose,

(C) at which the transferred property would, if it were owned by the transferor, be deemed by section 128.1 or subsection 149(10) to have been disposed of by the transferor,

(D) that is immediately before control of the transferor is acquired by a person or group of persons, where the transferor is a corporation, or

(E) at which the winding-up of the transferor begins (other than a winding-up to which subsection 88(1) applies), where the transferor is a corporation, and

(iv) the property described in subparagraph (iii) is considered to have become available for use by the transferor at the time at which the transferred property is considered to have become available for use by the subsequent owner,

(f) for the purposes of subparagraphs (e)(iii) and (iv), where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after the particular time, the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist, and each person who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this paragraph, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership, until the time that is immediately after the first time described in clauses (e)(iii)(A) to (E), and

(g) for the purposes of applying this section and section 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) to the subsequent owner,

(i) the subsequent owner's capital cost of the transferred property is deemed to be the amount that was the transferor's capital cost of the transferred property, and

(ii) the amount by which the transferor's capital cost of the transferred property exceeds its fair market value at the particular time is deemed to have been deducted under paragraph 20(1)(a) by the subsequent owner in respect of property of that class in computing income for taxation years that ended before the particular time.

History: S. 13(21.2)(a) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 6(7), applicable after November 1999 except that, if an individual (other than a trust) so elects in writing and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the individual's filing-due date for the taxation year in which this Act receives royal assent [June 14, 2001], [paragraph 13(21.2)(a)] does not apply in respect of the disposition of a property by the individual before July 2000

(a) to a person who was obliged on November 30, 1999 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before December 1999, other than a transaction or series of transactions a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

S. 13(21.2)(a) formerly read:

"(a) a corporation, trust or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the 'transferor') disposes at a particular time (otherwise than in a disposition described in any of paragraphs (c) to (g) of the definition 'superficial loss' in section 54) of a depreciable property of a particular prescribed class of the transferor,"

S. 13(21.2)(c) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 196(3), applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 13(21.2)(c) formerly read:

"(c) on the 30th day after the particular time, a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the 'subsequent owner') who is the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor owns or has a right to acquire the transferred property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, agreement for sale or similar obligation),"

S. 13(21.2)(e)(ii) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 6(8), applicable after November 1999. S. 13(21.2)(e)(ii) formerly read:

"(ii) where 2 or more properties of a prescribed class of the transferor are disposed of at the same time, subparagraph (i) applies as if each property so disposed of had been separately disposed of in the order designated by the taxpayer or, if the taxpayer does not designate an order, in the order designated by the Minister,"

S. 13(21.2)(e)(iii)(A) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 196(4), applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 13(21.2)(e)(iii)(A) formerly read:

"(A) at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the transferor nor a person affiliated with the transferor owns or has a right to acquire the transferred property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, agreement for sale or similar obligation),"

S. 13(21.2) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 73(4), applicable, subject to section 247 of this Bill (see Application below) to dispositions of property that occur after April 26, 1995 except that, where

(a) a property is disposed of after April 26, 1995 and before June 20, 1996, and

(b) the transferor elects in writing, filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998],

the portion of subparagraph 13(21.2)(e)(iii) of the Act before clause (A) shall be read as follows:

"(iii) the transferor is deemed to own a property that was acquired before the beginning of the taxation year that includes the particular time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the excess described in paragraph (b), and that is of a separate prescribed class that is the same class as the particular class, until the time that is immediately before the first time, after the particular time,"

Sec. 247, Chap. 19, 1998

247. [Exception to coming-into-force.] (1) Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(a) to a person who was obliged on April 26, 1995 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election. Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation. For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

(22) Deduction for insurer. For the purposes of E in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21), an insurer shall be deemed to have been allowed a deduction for depreciation for property of a prescribed class under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing income for taxation years before its 1977 taxation year equal to the total of

(a) the amount determined, immediately after the end of its 1976 taxation year, for E in that definition, with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer (determined without reference to this subsection),

(b) the lesser of

(i) the amount of its 1975-76 excess capital cost allowance with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer, and

(ii) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which its 1975 branch accounting election deficiency exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 138(4.1)(d)(ii) that

(A) the amount of its 1975-76 excess capital cost allowance with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer

is of

(B) the total of all its 1975-76 excess capital cost allowances with respect to properties of a prescribed class of the insurer, and

(c) the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the undepreciated capital cost of property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer immediately after the end of its 1976 taxation year (determined without reference to this subsection),

exceeds

(B) the amount determined under paragraph (b) in respect of property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer, and

(ii) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which its 1975 branch accounting election deficiency exceeds the total of

(A) the amount determined under subparagraph 138(4.1)(d)(ii),

(B) the total of all amounts determined under paragraph (b) with respect to property of a prescribed class of the insurer,

(C) the total described in subclause 138(4.1)(a)(ii)(B)(IV),

(D) the amount determined under subparagraph 138(4.1)(b)(ii), and

(E) the amount determined under subparagraph 138(4.1)(a)(ii)

that

(F) the undepreciated capital cost of property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer immediately after the end of its 1976 taxation year (determined without reference to this subsection),

(23) Deduction for life insurer. For the purposes of E in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21), a life insurer shall be deemed to have been allowed a deduction for depreciation for property of a prescribed class under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing income for taxation years before its 1978 taxation year equal to the total of

(a) the amount determined immediately after the end of its 1977 taxation year for E in that definition, with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer (determined without reference to this subsection), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all maximum amounts the insurer was entitled to claim with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer in taxation years ending before 1978 and after 1968

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined under paragraph (a).

(24) Acquisition of control. Where control of a corporation has been acquired at any time by a person or group of persons and, within the 12-month period that ended immediately before that time, the corporation or a partnership of which it was a majority interest partner acquired depreciable property (other than property that was owned by the corporation or partnership or by a person that would, if section 251.1 were read without reference to the definition "controlled" in subsection 251.1(2) [(sic) 251.1(3) — CCH], be affiliated with the corporation throughout the period that began immediately before the 12-month period began and ended at the time the property was acquired by the corporation or partnership) that was not used, or acquired for use, by the corporation or partnership in a business that was carried on by it immediately before the 12-month period began,

(a) for the purposes of the description of A in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) and of sections 127 and 127.1, the property is, subject to paragraph (b), deemed not to have been acquired by the corporation or partnership before that time and to have been acquired by it immediately after that time; and

(b) where the property was disposed of by it before that time and was not reacquired by it before that time, for the purpose of the description of A in that definition, the property is deemed to have been acquired by the corporation or partnership immediately before the property was disposed of.

History: S. 13(24) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 73(5), applicable to acquisitions of control that occur after April 26, 1995. S. 13(24) formerly read:

(26) Restriction on deduction before available for use. In applying the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) and any regulations made for the purpose of that paragraph, in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business or property, no amount shall be included in calculating the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of a prescribed class in respect of the capital cost to the taxpayer of a property of that class (other than property that is a certified production, as defined by regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a)) before the time the property is considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer.

History: S. 13(26) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 9(11), applicable to property acquired by a taxpayer after 1989, other than property acquired

(a) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired, or

(b) in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, subsection 55(2) of the Act would not apply to the dividend because of the application of paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, where the property was depreciable property of the person from whom it was acquired and was owned by that person before 1990.

Editorial Note: Subsection 13(26) essentially provides that if depreciable property is not "available for use", as defined in subsection 13(27) and (28), no CCA can be claimed for the year the property is acquired or the following year. However, this limitation is effectively restricted by the "two-year rolling start" rule in paragraphs 13(27)(b) and 13(28)(c). When a CCA claim has been delayed under subsection 13(26), the full (not half) claim will be available once subsection 13(26) ceases to apply. This is because the "half-year rule" in Regulation 1100(2)(a)(i) applies only to property "acquired in the year." Also, see Regulation 1100(2)(a)(vii).

Cases: The taxpayer's predecessor corporations received consideration for setting aside non-competition agreements. The agreements were eligible capital property and setting them aside was a disposition of that property. If they had made the payments, rather than having received them, they would have incurred an eligible capital expenditure. Therefore, the payments were included in income under s. 14(1). RCI Environnement Inc. v. The Queen, 2009 DTC 5037 (F.C.A.), affirming 2008 DTC 2277 (T.C.C.).

The city expropriated the land and building in which the taxpayer carried on its business. The city paid the taxpayer $12 million, of which $9 million was damages to compensate for the inability to relocate its business. Since the city did not pay the $9 million for the purposes of earning income from a business, it was not an eligible capital expenditure and was therefore a non-taxable capital receipt in the taxpayer's hands. *The Queen v. The taxpayers received payments as consideration for signing non-competition agreements with Loblaws, after selling their shares of their own supermarket corporation to Loblaws. The Tax Court of Canada held that the payments were not eligible capital amounts since the taxpayers were not personally involved in operating the corporation's business. (1.01) Election re capital gain. A taxpayer may, in the taxpayer's return of income for a taxation year, or with an election under subsection 83(2) filed on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxation year, elect that the following rules apply to a disposition made at any time in the year of an eligible capital property in respect of a business, if the taxpayer's actual proceeds of the disposition exceed the taxpayer's eligible capital expenditure in respect of the acquisition of the property, that eligible capital expenditure can be determined and, for taxpayers who are individuals, the taxpayer's exempt gains balance in respect of the business for the taxation year is nil:

(a) for the purpose of subsection (5) other than the description of A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital", the proceeds of disposition of the property are deemed to be equal to the amount of that eligible capital expenditure;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed at that time of a capital property that had, immediately before that time, an adjusted cost base to the taxpayer equal to the amount of that eligible capital expenditure, for proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds; and

(c) if the eligible capital property is

(i) a qualified farm property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 110.6(1)) of the taxpayer at that time, the capital property deemed by paragraph (b) to have been disposed of by the taxpayer is deemed to be a qualified farm property of the taxpayer at that time, and

(ii) a qualified fishing property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 110.6(1)) of the taxpayer at that time, the capital property deemed by paragraph (b) to have been disposed of by the taxpayer is deemed to be a qualified fishing property of the taxpayer at that time.

History: S. 14(1.01)(c) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 2, s. 3(2), applicable to dispositions of property that occur on or after May 2, 2006. S. 14(1.01)(c) formerly read:

"(c) where the eligible capital property is at that time a qualified farm property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 110.6(1)) of the taxpayer, the capital property deemed by paragraph (b) to have been disposed of by the taxpayer is deemed to have been at that time a qualified farm property of the taxpayer."

S. 14(1.01), the portion before paragraph (c) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 2, s. 3(1), applicable to dispositions of eligible capital property that occur in taxation years that end after February 27, 2000, except that, in its application to those dispositions of eligible capital property that occur before December 21, 2002, the portion of subsection 14(1.01) before paragraph (c) is to be read as follows:

"(1.01) A taxpayer may, in the taxpayer's return of income for a taxation year, elect that the following rules apply to a disposition made at any time in the taxation year of an eligible capital property (other than goodwill) in respect of a business, if the taxpayer's actual proceeds of the disposition exceed the taxpayer's cost of the property, that cost can be determined and, for taxpayers who are individuals, the taxpayer's exempt gains balance in respect of the business for the taxation year is nil:

(a) for the purposes of subsection (5), the proceeds of disposition of the property are deemed to be equal to that cost;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed at that time of a capital property that had, immediately before that time, an adjusted cost base to the taxpayer equal to that cost, for proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds; and"

S. 14(1.01), the portion before paragraph (c) formerly read:

"(1.01) Election re capital gain. Where, at any time in a taxation year, a taxpayer disposes of an eligible capital property (other than goodwill) in respect of a business, the cost of the property to the taxpayer can be determined, the proceeds of the disposition (in this subsection referred to as the 'actual proceeds') exceed that cost, the taxpayer's exempt gains balance in respect of the business for the year is nil and the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income for the year,

(a) for the purposes of subsection (5), the proceeds of disposition of the property are deemed to be equal to that cost;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed at that time of a capital property that had at that time an adjusted cost base to the taxpayer equal to that cost, for proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds; and"

S. 14(1.01) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 7(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000.

Editorial Note: Subsection 14(1.01) allows eligible capital (other than goodwill) to be treated as a capital gain: where the taxpayer so elects, it is deemed to have disposed of a capital property with an ACB equal to the identified cost, and proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds of the property, and the property is removed from the eligible capital pool. The consequences of this election can be far-reaching, as it brings into play the capital gains regime rather than eligible capital. For example, capital loss balances can shelter the gain (pre-existing capital losses would offset the capital dividend account addition). It appears that the election permits a reserve, whereas a disposition of eligible capital does not. While the taxable portion of eligible capital is subject to corporate "business rates", a subsection 14(1.01) election made by a CCPC will attract refundable tax treatment (including the $6\frac{1}{3}\%$ refundable tax on investment income, per section 123.3, and the denial of the corporate tax reduction in section 123.4). The election may be filed with the capital dividend election.

The wording of this provision suggests that the election may be restricted to property acquired from a third party. (The prospect of meeting this requirement by transferring the property to another taxpayer on a rollover basis pursuant to subsections 85(1) or (2) is foreclosed by paragraph 14(1.03)(b).)

(c) if the eligible capital property is

Explanatory Note:

Acquisition of Eligible Capital Property

Subsection 14(3) of the Act provides rules regarding non-arm's length transfers of eligible capital property. The provision prevents the deduction, under paragraph 20(1)(b) of the Act, of the portion of the purchaser's cost that is reflected in a capital gains exemption claimed by the vendor under section 110.6 of the Act. Absent any claim by the vendor of a capital gains exemption under subsection 110.6, the eligible capital expenditure to the purchaser generally equals the proceeds of disposition of the vendor. That is, the eligible capital expenditure of the purchaser equals 4/3 of the amount determined in respect of the vendor under the description of E in the formula in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) of the Act.

Paragraph 14(3)(a) is amended, for taxation years that end after February 27, 2000, to ensure that, if the eligible capital property is the subject of an election by the vendor under subsection 14(1.01) or (1.02) of the Act, the eligible capital expenditure of the purchaser will, subject to the adjustments in subsection 14(3) for deductions under section 110.6, equal the actual proceeds of disposition to the vendor.

except that, where the taxpayer disposes of the property after the particular time, the amount of the eligible capital expenditure deemed by this subsection to be made by the taxpayer in respect of the property shall be determined at any time after the disposition as if the total of the amounts determined under paragraphs (b), (b.1) and (b.2) in respect of the disposition were the lesser of

Explanatory Note:

Definition of Cumulative Eligible Capital

The definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) of the Act provides for the calculation of a taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital property pool for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's allowable deduction in respect of eligible capital property (ECP) for the year.

Variable A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" represents 3/4 of the eligible capital expenditures of a taxpayer as the result of the acquisition of an eligible capital property after the taxpayer's "adjustment time" (generally since 1987). Variable A is amended to ensure that the taxpayer's pool includes only the taxable portion of the gain realized by the non-arm's length transferor on the disposition after December 20, 2002 of eligible capital property.

Variable A is generally reduced by 1/2 of the gain of the transferor in respect of the property under paragraph 14(1)(b) or 38(a) of the Act. (Where the transferor has claimed a capital gains exemption in respect of the transfer under subsection 110.6 of the Act, subsection 14(3) of the Act reduces the taxpayer's eligible capital expenditure accordingly. The reduction in Variable A will therefore not include 1/2 of the amount of that claim.) Where the transferor has realized such a gain in a taxation year in respect of more than one property, the amount of the gain of the transferor for the purposes of this calculation is that proportion of the gain that the proceeds of disposition of the eligible capital property acquired by the taxpayer is of the total proceeds of disposition of all such property disposed of in the transferor's taxation year.

The reduction to Variable A does not apply where the eligible capital property has previously been disposed of by the taxpayer or was acquired on or before December 20, 2002.

Mr. X purchased a farm production quota several years ago for $300,000 and claimed no cumulative eligible capital amounts, such that his cumulative eligible capital at the end of his previous taxation year was $225,000. This year he sold the production quota to his sister, Mrs. Y, for its fair market value of $1,200,000. Mr. X reported income of $450,000 under paragraph 14(1)(b) of the Act, and did not claim a capital gains exemption under section 110.6 of the Act. (Alternatively, Mr. X could have made an election under subsection 14(1.01) of the Act to report a taxable capital gain under paragraph 38(a) of the Act.)

Because Mrs. Y purchased the production quota in a non-arm's length transaction, the amount included in Variable A of her cumulative eligible capital balance at the end of the year of acquisition would be $675,000 (i.e. 3/4 of $1,200,000, less 1/2 of the taxable gain of Mr. X of $450,000). This result may also be illustrated as the total of the taxable gain of Mr. X of $450,000 and 3/4 of his eligible capital expenditure of $300,000.

Example 2

Assume the same facts as Example 1, except that Mr. X claimed a capital gains exemption of $250,000 in respect of his $450,000 taxable gain under paragraph 14(1)(b) of the Act.

Mrs. Y's eligible capital expenditure under subsection 14(3) of the Act is deemed to be $700,000, calculated as 4/3 of the excess of

- 3/4 of the actual proceeds of disposition of $1,200,000 (i.e. $900,000)

- 3/2 of the $250,000 capital gains exemption claimed by Mr. X (i.e. $375,000)

The amount included in Variable A of Mrs. Y's cumulative eligible capital balance is calculated as follows:

• 3/4 of her deemed eligible capital expenditure of $700,000		$525,000 less 1/2 of the amount by which
• the taxable gain of Mr. X	$450,000
exceeds
• the capital gains exemption claimed by Mr. X	250,000
	200,000
Amount included in Variable A		$425,000

The calculation of "cumulative eligible capital" is designed so that the pool cannot be negative immediately after the end of the year. In this regard, variable F in the calculation generally reduces the pool by the total amount of ECP deductions claimed in prior years (generally, variable P), net of amounts included in income in prior years (variable R) under subsection 14(1) of the Act as recapture of ECP deductions or as deemed capital gains.

Variable R in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" is amended to ensure that amounts included in the income of a corporation under former paragraph 14(1)(b) of the Act (as it applied to taxation years that ended before February 28, 2000) continue to be included in the calculation of variable F.

The amendments generally apply to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000.

Cases: The taxpayer's predecessor corporations received consideration for setting aside non-competition agreements. The agreements were eligible capital property and setting them aside was a disposition of that property. If they had made the payments, rather than having received them, they would have incurred an eligible capital expenditure. Therefore, the payments were included in income under s. 14(1). RCI Environnement Inc. v. The Queen, 2009 DTC 5037 (F.C.A.), affirming 2008 DTC 2277 (T.C.C.).

The city paid the taxpayer $12 million, of which $9 million was damages to compensate for the inability to relocate its business. (ii) the amount determined by the formula

where

C is the amount designated in the election that was made under subsection 110.6(19) in respect of the business, and

D is the fair market value at the end of February 22, 1994 of the property referred to in clause (i)(A), and

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Section 14 of the Act is amended by adding the following after subsection (5):

(5.1) Restrictive covenant amount. The description of E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) does not apply to an amount that is received or receivable by a taxpayer in a taxation year if that amount is required to be included in the taxpayer's income because of subsection 56.4(2).

Applicable: After October 7, 2003.

Explanatory Note:

Restrictive Covenant Amount

New subsection 14(5.1) of the Act provides that the description E of the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) does not apply to an amount if the amount is required to be included in the taxpayer's income because of subsection 56.4(2). However, subsection 56.4(2) does not apply to an amount if paragraph 56.4(3)(b) applies to the amount, in which case the amount may be a cumulative eligible capital receipt for the purposes of applying section 14. As well, if new subparagraph 56.4(7)(d)(i) or (ii) applies, consideration that could reasonably be regarded as being for the restrictive covenant granted by a taxpayer for nil proceeds may be — depending on the circumstances — a goodwill amount (as defined by new subsection 56.4(1)) that is to be included in computing the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer, or the taxpayer's eligible corporation (as defined by new subsection 56.4(1)). New section 56.4 is more fully described below in the notes accompanying that provision.

New subsection 14(5.1) is consequential to the rules for restrictive covenant amounts as set out in new section 56.4, and applies after October 7, 2003.

(6) Exchange of property. Where in a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "initial year") a taxpayer disposes of an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as the taxpayer's "former property") and the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income for the year in which the taxpayer acquires an eligible capital property that is a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property, such amount, not exceeding the amount that would otherwise be included in the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) (if the description of E in that definition were read without reference to "3/4 of") in respect of a business, as has been used by the taxpayer before the end of the first taxation year after the initial year to acquire the replacement property

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The portion of subsection 14(6) of the Act before paragraph (a) is replaced by the following:

(6) Exchange of property. If in a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "initial year") a taxpayer disposes of an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as the taxpayer's "former property") and the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income for the year in which the taxpayer acquires an eligible capital property that is a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property, the amount, not exceeding the amount that would otherwise be included in the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) (if the description of E in that definition were read without reference to "3/4 of") in respect of a business, that has been used by the taxpayer to acquire the replacement property before the later of the end of the first taxation year after the initial year and 12 months after the end of the initial year

Applicable: In respect of dispositions that occur in taxation years that end on or after December 20, 2001.

Explanatory Note:

Exchange of Property

Where a taxpayer has disposed of an eligible capital property in a taxation year and has acquired a replacement eligible capital property before the end of the subsequent taxation year, subsection 14(6) of the Act allows the taxpayer to elect to defer the inclusion of an amount in income under subsection 14(1) of the Act that would normally result from a negative balance in the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital account at the end of the year of disposition.

Subsection 14(6) is amended to accommodate taxation years that are shorter than 12 months, by providing that the period for acquiring a replacement property ends at the later of the end of the subsequent taxation year and the time that is 12 months after the end of the taxation year in which the property was disposed of. This amendment applies in respect of dispositions of eligible capital property that occur in taxation years that end on or after December 20, 2001.

(a) shall, subject to paragraph (b), not be included in the amount determined for E in that definition for the purpose of determining the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business; and

(b) shall, to the extent of 3/4 thereof, be included in the amount determined for E in that definition for the purpose of determining the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business at a time that is the later of

(i) the time the replacement property was acquired by the taxpayer, and

(ii) the time the former property was disposed of by the taxpayer.

History: S. 14(6), the portion before paragraph (a), was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 74(3), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year. S. 14(6), the portion before paragraph (a), formerly read:

"(6) Exchange of property. Where in a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the 'initial year') a taxpayer has disposed of an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as the taxpayer's 'former property'), if the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year in which the taxpayer acquires, as a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property, an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as a 'replacement property'), such amount not exceeding the amount that would otherwise be included in the amount determined for E in the definition 'cumulative eligible capital' in subsection (5) (if the description of E in that definition were read without reference to '3/4 of') in respect of a business as has been used by the taxpayer before the end of the first taxation year following the initial year to acquire the replacement property"

(7) Replacement property. For the purposes of subsection (6), a particular eligible capital property of a taxpayer is a replacement property for a former property of the taxpayer if

(a) it is reasonable to conclude that the property was acquired by the taxpayer to replace the former property;

(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer put the former property;

(b) it was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the same or a similar business as that in which the former property was used; and

(c) where the former property was used by the taxpayer in a business carried on in Canada, the particular property was acquired for use by the taxpayer in a business carried on by the taxpayer in Canada.

History: S. 14(7)(a) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 74(4), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year. S. 14(7)(a) formerly read:

"(a) it was acquired by the taxpayer for the same or a similar use as the use to which the taxpayer put the former property;"

S. 14(7)(a.1) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 74(4), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year.

S. 14(7)(c) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 10(4), applicable to property acquired as a replacement for a former property disposed of after April 2, 1990, other than a former property disposed of

(a) under an agreement in writing entered into before April 3, 1990; or

(b) pursuant to a written notice of an intention to take the property under statutory authority given before April 3, 1990 or for the sale price of the property sold to a person by whom such a notice was given before April 3, 1990.

S. 14(7)(c) formerly read:

(1) Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(a) to a person who was obliged on April 26, 1995 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election. Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation. For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

(13) Deemed identical property. For the purpose of subsection (12),

(a) a right to acquire a property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, hypothec, agreement for sale or similar obligation) is deemed to be a property that is identical to the property; and

(b) where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after the disposition, the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist and each person who, immediately before the partnership would, but for this paragraph, have ceased to exist, was a member of the partnership is deemed to remain a member of the partnership, until the time that is immediately after the first time described in paragraphs (12)(c) to (g).

History: S. 14(13)(a) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 197(2), applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 14(13)(a) formerly read:

"(a) a right to acquire a property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, agreement for sale or similar obligation) is deemed to be a property that is identical to the property; and"

S. 14(13) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 74(5), applicable subject to section 247 of this Bill (see Application below) to dispositions of property that occur after April 26, 1995.

Sec. 247, Chap. 19, 1998

247. [Exception to coming-into-force.]

(1) Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(a) to a person who was obliged on April 26, 1995 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election. Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [Royal Assent June 18, 1998] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation. For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

(1) Benefit conferred on shareholder. Where at any time in a taxation year a benefit is conferred on a shareholder, or on a person in contemplation of the person becoming a shareholder, by a corporation otherwise than by

(a) the reduction of the paid-up capital, the redemption, cancellation or acquisition by the corporation of shares of its capital stock or on the winding-up, discontinuance or reorganization of its business, or otherwise by way of a transaction to which section 88 applies,

(b) the payment of a dividend or a stock dividend,

(i) where

(A) the voting rights attached to a particular class of common shares of the capital stock of a corporation differ from the voting rights attached to another class of common shares of the capital stock of the corporation, and

(B) there are no other differences between the terms and conditions of the classes of shares that could cause the fair market value of a share of the particular class to differ materially from the fair market value of a share of the other class, the shares of the particular class shall be deemed to be property that is identical to the shares of the other class, and

(ii) rights are not considered identical if the cost of acquiring the rights differs, or

(d) an action described in paragraph 84(1)(c.1), (c.2) or (c.3), the amount or value thereof shall, except to the extent that it is deemed by section 84 to be a dividend, be included in computing the income of the shareholder for the year.

History: S. 15(1)(c) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 9(1), applicable to benefits conferred after December 19, 1991. S. 15(1)(c) formerly read:

S. 15(1)(c) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 5(2), applicable to benefits conferred on or after December 20, 1991. S. 15(1)(c) formerly read:

S. 15(1)(b) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 11(1), applicable to benefits conferred after June 1988. S. 15(1)(b) formerly read:

"(b) the payment of a dividend,"

Editorial Note: The shareholder benefit under subsection 15(1) is included as ordinary income and not as a dividend, such that the dividend tax credit (individual shareholder) and the inter-corporate deduction (corporate shareholder) are not applicable. The corporation will not normally be allowed a deduction on account of the benefit. Unlike the shareholder loan inclusion rules (subsection 15(2) and paragraph 20(1)(j)), there is no offsetting provision that allows the shareholder to deduct a repayment of the benefit.

Cases: A release of claims under a guarantee did not constitute a shareholder's benefit since there were no quantifiable claims at the time the release was granted and all obligations under the guarantee were satisfied. Axa Canada Inc. v. The Queen, 2006 DTC 2198 (T.C.C.).

There was no shareholder's benefit where payments owed to a corporation were paid directly to a shareholder who then used the funds to acquire assets for the company. Although the transactions were not properly recorded in the corporation's financial statements, the taxpayer himself received no benefit. The Queen v. Franklin, 2002 DTC 6803 (F.C.A.), affirming 2000 DTC 2456 (T.C.C.).

Although certain expenses claimed by a family corporation were disallowed, they were not to be included in a shareholder's income since there was no evidence of an intent to confer a benefit, or that any benefit was actually conferred. Even if they could be construed as benefits, they should be allocated among all of the company's shareholders. Robson et al. v. The Queen, (T.C.C.) 2001 DTC 1039.

When a taxpayer did not know of the bookkeeping error resulting in the overstated credit balance in his shareholder loan account and did not attempt to use it for his own benefit or advantage, the amount was not to be included in his income since, in order for the value of a benefit to be included in a shareholder's income, it must be conferred with his knowledge or consent. The Queen v. Chopp, (F.C.A.) 98 DTC 6014, affirming (T.C.C.) 95 DTC 527.

The taxpayer's corporation purchased a condominium which was occupied by the taxpayer and his wife during part of the year. This gave rise to a shareholder's benefit, calculated on the assumption that the condominium had been acquired for personal use. The calculation was based on what the corporation could have earned on the money committed to the acquisition and renovation, not just on the fair rental value for the periods of personal use. It was calculated on the basis of what the taxpayer would have had to pay to get the same benefit from a company of which he was not a shareholder. The Queen v. Fingold, (F.C.A.) 97 DTC 5449, reversing (T.C.C.) 96 DTC 1305.

Payments made by a corporation to a taxpayer's divorced spouse constituted a shareholder benefit to the taxpayer. Osadchuk v. The Queen, (F.C.A.) 96 DTC 6083, affirming (T.C.C.) 95 DTC 98.

A house built by the taxpayer's corporation on land which was to be subdivided was not built for business purposes and was a shareholder benefit. The calculation should be based on the company's rate of return, expressed as a percentage of its equity in the house, as opposed to free-market rental. Youngman v. The Queen, (F.C.A.) 90 DTC 6322, reversing (F.C.T.D.) 86 DTC 6584 and (T.R.B.) unreported.

The word "benefit" refers to the monetary amounts received from a corporation and not the shareholder's overall financial or physical well-being. Therefore amounts received by a shareholder from one corporation used to meet losses of another corporation were shareholder benefits and properly included in income. Vine Estate v. The Queen, (F.C.T.D.) 89 DTC 5528.

(1.1) Conferring of benefit. Notwithstanding subsection (1), if in a taxation year a corporation has paid a stock dividend to a person and it may reasonably be considered that one of the purposes of that payment was to significantly alter the value of the interest of any specified shareholder of the corporation, the fair market value of the stock dividend shall, except to the extent that it is otherwise included in computing that person's income under any of paragraphs 82(1)(a), (a.1) and (c) to (e), be included in computing the income of that person for the year.

History: S. 15(1.1) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 2, s. 43(1), applicable to dividends paid after 2005. S. 15(1.1) formerly read:

"(1.1) Conferring of benefit. Notwithstanding subsection (1), where in a taxation year a corporation has paid a stock dividend to a person and it may reasonably be considered that one of the purposes of that payment was to significantly alter the value of the interest of any specified shareholder of the corporation, the fair market value of the stock dividend shall, except to the extent that it is otherwise included in computing that person's income under paragraph 82(1)(a), be included in computing the income of that person for the year."

Related Sections: S. 248(1), "stock dividend".

Interpretation Bulletins: Secondary — IT-432R2 Benefits conferred on shareholders.

Cases: A corporation declared stock dividends to the controlling shareholder and his wife and children (who owned non-voting shares). Although the effect of issuing the stock dividends was to significantly alter the controlling shareholder's interest in the corporation, this was not the purpose of the payment. Subsection 15(1.1) was inapplicable. Wong et al. v. The Queen, 99 DTC 458 (T.C.C.)

(1.2) Forgiveness of shareholder debt. For the purpose of subsection (1), the value of the benefit where an obligation issued by a debtor is settled or extinguished at any time shall be deemed to be the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation.

History: S. 15(1.2) was amended by S.C. 1995, c. 21, s. 4(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. S. 15(1.2) formerly read:

"(1.2) Forgiveness of shareholder loans. For the purposes of subsection (1), the value of the benefit or advantage conferred on a shareholder, in circumstances where a loan or other obligation to pay an amount is settled or extinguished at any time without any payment by that shareholder or by payment by the shareholder of an amount that is less than the amount of the obligation outstanding at that time, shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the obligation outstanding at that time exceeds the total of the amount, if any, of the benefit in respect of the obligation that was included in the shareholder's income at the time the obligation arose and the amount, if any."

(1.3) Cost of property or service. To the extent that the cost to a person of purchasing a property or service or an amount payable by a person for the purpose of leasing property is taken into account in determining an amount required under this section to be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year, that cost or amount payable, as the case may be, shall include any tax that was payable by the person in respect of the property or service or that would have been so payable if the person were not exempt from the payment of that tax because of the nature of the person or the use to which the property or service is to be put.

Cases: The Act does not require a provision for repayment of a shareholder's loan on a certain date. All that is required is simply an arrangement for payment within a reasonable time. In addition, any bona fide repayment arrangement does not have to be in writing, but certainly does have to be contractually binding. Davidson v. The Queen, 99 DTC 933 (T.C.C.).

When the five-year promissory note dated January 10, 1986 on the strength of which a corporation's shareholder borrowed $100,000 to purchase a house provided for annual capital repayments of $20,000 and no capital payments were made until 1992, it still could be said that at the time of the loan there were bona fide arrangements made for its repayments within a reasonable time. Kalousdian v. The Queen, 94 DTC 1722 (T.C.C.).

JK, who was related to the taxpayers, sold them shares in exchange of demand promissory notes which he assigned to a corporation controlled by him. The amounts of their respective indebtedness to the company were included in their income under s. 15(2) which should not be confined to situations where the indebtedness to the corporation has arisen directly rather than by way of the assignment to it of debt from a third party. Kwong et al. v. The Queen, 93 DTC 588 (T.C.C.).

When a corporation caused its Canadian subsidiary, of which the taxpayer was an employee and shareholder, to advance $55,000 to him to be repayable in full if he were to quit or sell his property, this amount was included in his income as a shareholder loan since, pursuant to the arrangement, the loan was not to be reimbursed within a reasonable time. The Queen v. Silden, 93 DTC 5362 (F.C.A.), reversing 90 DTC 6576.

(2) Rules for small business development bonds. Where a corporation (in this section referred to as the "issuer") has issued an obligation that is at any time a small business development bond, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act,

(a) in computing the issuer's income for a taxation year, no deduction shall be made in respect of any amount paid or payable (depending on the method regularly followed in computing the issuer's income) as or on account of interest on the obligation in respect of a period that includes that time;

(b) except for the purpose of subsection 129(1), to the extent that any amount paid by the issuer as or on account of interest on the obligation is not allowed as a deduction because of paragraph (a), it shall, when paid, be deemed to have been paid as a taxable dividend; and

(c) except for the purposes of paragraph 125(1)(b), the issuer's taxable income for any taxation year that includes a period throughout which the obligation was a small business development bond but

(i) the issuer was not an eligible small business corporation, or

(ii) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation cannot reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuer or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of an active business carried on in Canada immediately before the obligation was issued shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the total of

(iii) the amount paid or payable (depending on the method regularly followed in computing the issuer's income) as or on account of interest on the obligation in respect of that period, and

(iv) the issuer's taxable income otherwise determined for the year.

History: S. 15.1(2) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. S. 15.1(2) formerly read:

"(2) Idem. Where a corporation, in this section referred to as the 'issuer', has issued an obligation that is at any time a small business development bond, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the following rules apply:

(a) in computing the income of the issuer for a taxation year, no deduction shall be made in respect of any amount paid or payable (depending on the method regularly followed by the issuer in computing its income) for a period that includes that time as or on account of interest on the bond;

(b) except for the purposes of subsection 129(1), to the extent that any amount paid by the issuer as or on account of interest on the bond is not allowed as a deduction by virtue of paragraph (a), it shall, when paid, be deemed to have been paid as a taxable dividend; and

(d) except for the purposes of paragraph 125(1)(b), the taxable income of the issuer for any taxation year that includes a period throughout which the obligation was a small business development bond shall, where

(i) the issuer was not an eligible small business corporation,

(ii) the property acquired with the proceeds of the bond or the property referred to in subparagraph (d)(iii) of the definition 'qualifying debt obligation' in subsection (3)

(A) was not property used for specified purposes by the issuer, or

(B) was not owned by the issuer, or

(iii) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of an obligation issued in circumstances described in subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii) of the definition 'qualifying debt obligation' in subsection (3) cannot reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuer or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of an active business carried on in Canada immediately before the time of its issuance, be deemed to be an amount equal to the total of

(iv) the amount paid or payable (depending on the method regularly followed by the issuer in computing its income) for that period as or on account of interest on the obligation, and

(v) its taxable income otherwise determined for the year."

(3) Definitions. In this section,

History: S. 15.1(3), that portion preceding the definition of "eligible small business corporation", was repealed and re-enacted by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. S. 15.1(3), that portion preceding the definition of "eligible small business corporation", was not amended by the repeal and re-enactment.

"eligible small business corporation" — "eligible small business corporation" at any time means a taxable Canadian corporation that at that time is

(a) a small business corporation, or

(b) a cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 136(2)) all or substantially all of the assets of which are used in an active business carried on by it in Canada;

History: S. 15.1(3), the definition of "eligible small business corporation", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'eligible small business corporation' at any time means a taxable Canadian corporation that at that time is

(a) a small business corporation, or

(b) a cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 136(2)) all or substantially all of the assets of which are used in an active business carried on by it in Canada;"

Related Sections: S. 89(1), "taxable Canadian corporation"; s. 136(2) Definition of "cooperative corporation"; s. 248(1), "active business", "small business corporation", "taxable Canadian corporation".

"joint election" — "joint election" means an election that is made in prescribed form, containing prescribed information, jointly by the issuer of an obligation and the person who is the holder of the obligation at the time of the election, that is filed with the Minister by the holder, and in which the holder and the issuer elect that this section apply to the obligation;

History: S. 15.1(3), the definition of "joint election", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'joint election' means an election made in prescribed form jointly by the issuer of an obligation and the person who is the holder of the obligation at the election time and filed with the Minister by the holder in which the issuer and the holder elect that the provisions of this section apply with respect to that obligation and in which the issuer declares that

(a) it is an eligible small business corporation, and

(b) the property, if any, acquired with the proceeds of or financed or refinanced by the obligation is property used for specified purposes;"

Related Sections: S. 248(1), "prescribed".

"majority interest partner" — [Repealed by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 76(1).]

History: S. 15.1(3), the definition of "majority interest partner", was repealed by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 76(1), applicable after April 26, 1995. S. 15.1(3), the definition "majority interest partner", formerly read:

" 'majority interest partner' — 'majority interest partner' of a partnership means a taxpayer who, if subsection 97(3.1) applied to this section, would be deemed to be a majority interest partner of the partnership;"

S. 15.1(3), the definition of "majority interest partner", was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992.

"property used for specified purposes" — [Repealed by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1).]

History: S. 15.1(3), the definition of "property used for specified purposes", was repealed by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'property used for specified purposes' means property used primarily in the carrying on of an active business in Canada but does not include

(a) property that is used by an issuer primarily for the purpose of being leased to any person, other than an eligible small business corporation,

(i) that does not use the property primarily for the purpose of leasing it to any other person, and

(ii) that would be associated with the issuer if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 251(5)(b), or

(b) property used in a business carried on by an issuer as a member of a partnership;"

"qualifying debt obligation" — "qualifying debt obligation" of a corporation at a particular time means an obligation that is a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or similar obligation issued after February 25, 1992 and before 1995,

(a) the principal amount of which is not less than $10,000 or more than $500,000,

(b) that is issued for a term of not more than 5 years and, except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the obligation, not less than one year, and if the obligation is issued by the corporation

(c) that was issued not more than 5 years before the particular time,

(d) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that has been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(e) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets are under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(f) at a time when, because of financial difficulty, the corporation is in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt held by a person with whom the corporation was dealing at arm's length and the obligation is issued, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that debt;

History: S. 15.1(3), the portion of the definition "qualifying debt obligation" before paragraph (a) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 198, applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 15.1(3), the portion of the definition "qualifying debt obligation" before paragraph (a) formerly read:

" 'qualifying debt obligation' — 'qualifying debt obligation' of a corporation at a particular time means an obligation that is a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation issued after February 25, 1992 and before 1995,"

S. 15.1(3), the part before paragraph (a) of the definition of "qualifying debt obligation", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 8, s. 1(1), applicable to obligations issued after 1992, and, for the purpose of the definition "small business development bond" in subsection 15.1(3) of the Act, an election made after 1992 and before the day that is 91 days after the day this Act is assented to [Royal Assent May 12, 1994] in respect of an obligation issued after 1992 and before 1995 shall be deemed to have been made within 90 days after the day the obligation was issued.

S. 15.1(3), the part before paragraph (a) of the definition of "qualifying debt obligation" formerly read:

" 'qualifying debt obligation' of a corporation at a particular time means an obligation that is a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation issued after December 11, 1979 and before 1988 or after February 25, 1992 and before 1993,"

S. 15.1(3), the definition of "qualifying debt obligation", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'qualifying debt obligation' of a corporation at any particular time means an obligation that is a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation issued after December 11, 1979 and before 1988,

(a) the principal amount of which is not less than $10,000 or more than $500,000,

(b) that is issued for a term of not more than five years and, except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the obligation, not less than one year, and

(c) that was issued not more than five years before the particular time

if

(d) all of the proceeds from the issuance before February 1, 1982 of the obligation are used by the corporation

(i) to acquire after December 11, 1979 and before February 1, 1982 property that is specified property of the corporation,

(ii) to finance qualified expenditures (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 127(10.1)(c)) made by the corporation after December 11, 1979 and before February 1, 1982 in respect of scientific research,

(iii) to repay at any time before February 1, 1982, in whole or in part, one or more obligations of the corporation to the extent of an amount not exceeding the cost to the corporation of property referred to in subparagraph (i) or qualified expenditures referred to in subparagraph (ii) that was acquired or that were incurred by the corporation after December 11, 1979 and before the time of the repayment, or

(iv) for any combination of purposes described in subparagraphs (i) to (iii), or

(e) the obligation is issued by the corporation

(i) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that has been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets are under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the corporation is in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt held by a person with whom the corporation was dealing at arm's length and it is issued, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that debt;"

S. 15.1(3), the definition of "qualifying debt obligation", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. V, s. 90(1), to change "Bankruptcy Act" to "Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act", deemed to have come into force November 30, 1992.

"small business development bond" — "small business development bond" at any time means

(a) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued after 1981 and before 1988 by a Canadian-controlled private corporation in respect of which a joint election was made within 90 days after the later of its issue date and March 30, 1983,

(b) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued after February 25, 1992 by a Canadian-controlled private corporation in respect of which a joint election was made within 90 days after its issue date, or

(c) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued by a Canadian-controlled private corporation if

(i) it is reasonable to consider that the corporation and the holder of the obligation intended that this section apply to the obligation, having regard to such factors as may be relevant, including the rate of interest stipulated under the terms of the obligation and the manner in which the corporation and the holder have treated the obligation for the purposes of this Act, and

(ii) the holder files with the Minister a joint election in respect of the obligation within 90 days after the date of notification by the Minister that a joint election in respect of the obligation has not been filed.

History: S. 15.1(3), the definition of "small business development bond", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992, except that an election made in respect of an obligation after February 25, 1992 and before September 9, 1993, shall be deemed to have been made within 90 days after the day the obligation was issued.

S. 15.1(3), the definition of "small business development bond", formerly read:

" 'small business development bond' at any time means

(a) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued before 1982 by a Canadian-controlled private corporation in respect of which a joint election was made at a particular time that is within 90 days after the later of its issue date and February 26, 1981, or

(b) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued after 1981 by a Canadian-controlled private corporation in respect of which a joint election was made at a particular time that is within 90 days after the later of its issue date and March 30, 1983;"

"specified property" — [Repealed by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1).]

History: S. 15.1(3), the definition of "specified property", was repealed by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'specified property' of an issuer means property acquired by the issuer that is

(a) depreciable property that has not been used for any purpose whatever before it was acquired by the issuer, or

(b) capital property that is land (excluding any building or other structure affixed to land) other than land acquired by the issuer from a person with whom it was not dealing at arm's length, but does not include any

(c) automobile, or

(d) transportation equipment used principally for the purpose of transporting persons other than passengers who pay for the transportation services."

(2) Rules for small business bonds. Where an individual or a partnership (in this section referred to as the "issuer") has issued an obligation that is at any time a small business bond, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act,

(a) in computing the issuer's income for a taxation year, no deduction shall be made in respect of any amount paid or payable (depending on the method regularly followed in computing the issuer's income) as or on account of interest on the bond in respect of a period that includes that time; and

(b) for any taxation year that includes a period throughout which the obligation was a small business bond but

(i) the issuer was not an eligible issuer, or

(ii) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation were not used by the issuer in the financing of an active business carried on by the issuer in Canada immediately before the time of the issue of the obligation, there shall be added to the tax otherwise payable under this Part by the issuer for that taxation year an amount equal to 29% of the amount of interest paid or payable (depending on the method regularly followed in computing the issuer's income) in respect of the bond for that period.

History: S. 15.2(2) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. S. 15.2(2) formerly read:

"(2) Idem. Where an individual or partnership (in this section referred to as the 'issuer') has issued an obligation that is at any time a small business bond, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the following rules apply:

(3) Definitions. In this section,

History: S. 15.2(3), that portion preceding the definition of "eligible issuer", was repealed and re-enacted by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992.

"eligible issuer" — "eligible issuer" at any time means

(a) an individual (other than a trust) who is resident in Canada and who,

(i) has not made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business bond,

(ii) is not a majority interest partner of a partnership that has made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business bond, and

(iii) neither controls nor is a member of a related group that controls

(A) a corporation that has made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business development bond, or

(B) a corporation that is associated with a corporation referred to in clause (A), or

(b) a partnership

(i) each member of which is an individual (other than a trust) who is resident in Canada,

(ii) each majority interest partner, if any, of which is an eligible issuer, and

(iii) that has not made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business bond;

History: S. 15.2(3), the definition of "eligible issuer", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'eligible issuer' means

(a) an individual (other than a trust) resident in Canada who has not, or is not a majority interest partner (within the meaning assigned by subsection 97(3.1)) of a partnership that has previously made a joint election in respect of a small business bond or who does not control or is not a member of a related group that controls a corporation that has previously made a joint election in respect of a small business development bond, or

(b) a partnership, all the members of which are individuals who are eligible issuers under paragraph (a);"

"joint election" — "joint election" means an election that is made in prescribed form, containing prescribed information, jointly by the issuer of an obligation and the person who is the holder of the obligation at the time of the election, that is filed with the Minister by the holder and in which the holder and the issuer elect that the provisions of this section apply to that obligation;

History: S. 15.2(3), the definition of "joint election", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'joint election' means an election made in prescribed form jointly by the issuer of an obligation and the person who is the holder of the obligation at the election time and filed with the Minister by the holder in which the issuer and the holder elect that the provisions of this section apply with respect to that obligation and in which the issuer declares that

(a) it is an eligible issuer, and

(b) the requirements of paragraph (d) of the definition 'qualifying debt obligation' in this subsection have been met;"

"majority interest partner" — [Repealed by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 77(1).]

History: S. 15.2(3), the definition of "majority interest partner", was repealed by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 77(1), applicable after April 26, 1995. S. 15.2(3), the definition of "majority interest partner", formerly read:

" 'majority interest partner' — 'majority interest partner' of a partnership means a taxpayer who, if subsection 97(3.1) applied to this section, would be deemed to be a majority interest partner of the partnership;"

S. 15.2(3), the definition of "majority interest partner" was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992.

"qualifying debt obligation" — "qualifying debt obligation" of an issuer at a particular time means an obligation that is a bill, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or similar obligation issued after February 25, 1992 and before 1995,

(a) the principal amount of which is not less than $10,000 or more than $500,000,

(b) that is issued for a term of not more than 5 years and, except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the obligation, not less than one year, and if the obligation is issued

(d) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, the issuer's creditors that has been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(e) at a time when all or substantially all of the issuer's assets are under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(f) at a time when, because of financial difficulty, the issuer is in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt incurred in the course of the issuer's business and held by a person with whom the issuer was dealing at arm's length or, where the issuer is a partnership, by a person with whom each member of the partnership was dealing at arm's length, and it is issued, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that debt, and the funds from the issue of the obligation are used in Canada in a business of the issuer carried on immediately before the time of issue;

History: S. 15.2(3), the portion of the definition "qualifying debt obligation" before paragraph (a) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 199, applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 15.2(3), the portion of the definition "qualifying debt obligation" before paragraph (a) formerly read:

" 'qualifying debt obligation' — 'qualifying debt obligation' of an issuer at a particular time means an obligation that is a bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation issued after February 25, 1992 and before 1995,"

S. 15.2(3), the portion of the definition of "qualifying debt obligation" preceding paragraph (a), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 8, s. 2(1), applicable to obligations issued after 1992, and, for the purpose of the definition "small business bond" in subsection 15.2(3) of the Act, an election made after 1992 and before the day that is 91 days after the day this Act is assented to (May 12, 1994) in respect of an obligation issued after 1992 and before 1995 shall be deemed to have been made within 90 days after the day the obligation was issued.

S. 15.2(3), the portion of the definition of "qualifying debt obligation" preceding paragraph (a), formerly read:

" 'qualifying debt obligation' of an issuer at a particular time means an obligation that is a bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation issued after November 12, 1981 and before 1988 or after February 25, 1992 and before 1993,"

S. 15.2(3), the definition of "qualifying debt obligation", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992. That definition formerly read:

" 'qualifying debt obligation' of an individual or a partnership at any time means an obligation that is a bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation issued after November 12, 1981 and before 1988,

(a) the principal amount of which is not less than $10,000 or more than $500,000,

(b) that is issued for a term of not more than five years and, except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the obligation, not less than one year, and

(c) that was issued not more than five years before that time

if

(d) the obligation is issued

(i) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, the individual's or partnership's creditors, as the case may be, that has been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of the individual's or partnership's assets, as the case may be, are under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the individual or partnership is in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt incurred in the course of the business of the individual or partnership, as the case may be, and held by a person with whom the individual or each member of the partnership was dealing at arm's length and it is issued, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that debt, and the funds from the issuance thereof are used in Canada in a business of the individual or partnership carried on immediately before the time of issuance;"

S. 15.2(3)(a)(iii)(A) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. V, s. 90(1), to change "Bankruptcy Act" to "Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act", deemed to have come into force November 30, 1992.

"small business bond" — " small business bond " at any time means

(a) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation, issued by an individual or a partnership, in respect of which a joint election was made within 90 days after its issue date, or

(b) an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued by an individual or a partnership if

(i) it is reasonable to consider that the issuer and the holder of the obligation intended that this section apply to the obligation, having regard to such factors as may be relevant, including the rate of interest stipulated under the terms of the obligation and the manner in which the issuer and the holder have treated the obligation for the purposes of this Act, and

(ii) the holder files with the Minister a joint election in respect of the obligation within 90 days after the date of notification by the Minister that a joint election in respect of the obligation has not been filed under paragraph (a).

History: S. 15.2(3), the definition of "small business bond", was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 6(1), applicable to obligations issued after February 25, 1992, except that an election made in respect of an obligation after February 25, 1992 and before September 9, 1993, shall be deemed to have been made within 90 days after the day the obligation was issued.

S. 15.2(3), the definition of "small business bond", formerly read:

" 'small business bond' at any time means an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued by an individual or partnership in respect of which a joint election was made at a particular time that is within 90 days after the later of its issue date and March 30, 1983."

(1) Income and capital combined. Where, under a contract or other arrangement, an amount can reasonably be regarded as being in part interest or other amount of an income nature and in part an amount of a capital nature, the following rules apply:

(a) the part of the amount that can reasonably be regarded as interest shall, irrespective of when the contract or arrangement was made or the form or legal effect thereof, be deemed to be interest on a debt obligation held by the person to whom the amount is paid or payable; and

(b) the part of the amount that can reasonably be regarded as an amount of an income nature, other than interest, shall, irrespective of when the contract or arrangement was made or the form or legal effect thereof, be included in the income of the taxpayer to whom the amount is paid or payable for the taxation year in which the amount was received or became due to the extent it has not otherwise been included in the taxpayer's income.

Editorial Note: The courts have applied paragraph 16(1)(a) to deferred payment transactions where the deferred purchase price of property can reasonably be considered to contain an interest element. Generally speaking, where property is disposed of and the payment of the purchase price is deferred, the extent to which the purchase price (not including stipulated interest thereon) exceeds the fair market value of the property at the time of the disposition may be considered interest. (6) Indexed debt obligations. Subject to subsection (7) and for the purposes of this Act, where at any time in a taxpayer's taxation year

(a) an interest in an indexed debt obligation is held by the taxpayer,

(i) an amount determined in prescribed manner shall be deemed to be received and receivable by the taxpayer in the year as interest in respect of the obligation, and

(ii) an amount determined in prescribed manner shall be deemed to be paid and payable in respect of the year by the taxpayer as interest under a legal obligation of the taxpayer to pay interest on borrowed money used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property;

(b) an indexed debt obligation is an obligation of the taxpayer,

(i) an amount determined in prescribed manner shall be deemed to be payable in respect of the year by the taxpayer as interest in respect of the obligation, and

(ii) an amount determined in prescribed manner shall be deemed to be received and receivable by the taxpayer in the year as interest in respect of the obligation; and

(c) the taxpayer pays or credits an amount in respect of an amount determined under subparagraph (b)(i) in respect of an indexed debt obligation, the payment or crediting shall be deemed to be a payment or crediting of interest on the obligation.

History: S. 16(6), the portion before paragraph (a), was amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 78(1), applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after September 1997; and

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The portion of subsection 16.1(1) of the Act before paragraph (a) is replaced by the following:

SECTION 16.1:

(1) Leasing properties. Where a taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "lessee") leases tangible property, or for civil law corporeal property, that is not prescribed property and that would, if the lessee acquired the property, be depreciable property of the lessee, from a person resident in Canada other than a person whose taxable income is exempt from tax under this Part, or from a non-resident person who holds the lease in the course of carrying on a business through a permanent establishment in Canada, as defined by regulation, any income from which is subject to tax under this Part, who owns the property and with whom the lessee was dealing at arm's length (in this section referred to as the "lessor") for a term of more than one year, if the lessee and the lessor jointly elect in prescribed form filed with their returns of income for their respective taxation years that include the particular time when the lease began, the following rules apply for the purpose of computing the income of the lessee for the taxation year that includes the particular time and for all subsequent taxation years:

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note: [See the Explanatory Note re amendments related to bijuralism following the amendment to paragraph 12(1)(o).]

(a) in respect of amounts paid or payable for the use of, or for the right to use, the property, the lease shall be deemed not to be a lease;

(b) the lessee shall be deemed to have acquired the property from the lessor at the particular time at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time;

(c) the lessee shall be deemed to have borrowed money from the lessor at the particular time, for the purpose of acquiring the property, in a principal amount equal to the fair market value of the property at that time;

(d) interest shall be deemed to accrue on the principal amount of the borrowed money outstanding from time to time, compounded semi-annually, not in advance, at the prescribed rate in effect

(i) at the earlier of

(A) the time, if any, before the particular time, at which the lessee last entered into an agreement to lease the property, and

(B) the particular time, or

(ii) where the lease provides that the amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property varies according to prevailing interest rates in effect from time to time, and the lessee so elects, in respect of all of the property that is subject to the lease, in the lessee's return of income under this Part for the taxation year of the lessee in which the lease began, at the beginning of the period for which the interest is being calculated;

(e) all amounts paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property in the year shall be deemed to be blended payments, paid or payable by the lessee, of principal and interest on the borrowed money outstanding from time to time, calculated in accordance with paragraph (d), applied firstly on account of interest on principal, secondly on account of interest on unpaid interest and thirdly on account of unpaid principal, if any, and the amount, if any, by which any such payment exceeds the total of those amounts shall be deemed to be paid or payable on account of interest, and any amount deemed by reason of this paragraph to be a payment of interest shall be deemed to have been an amount paid or payable, as the case may be, pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest in respect of the year on the borrowed money;

(f) at the time of the expiration or cancellation of the lease, the assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property by the lessee, the lessee shall (except where subsection (4) applies) be deemed to have disposed of the property at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of

(A) the amount referred to in paragraph (c), and

(B) all amounts received or receivable by the lessee in respect of the cancellation or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) all amounts deemed under paragraph (e) to have been paid or payable, as the case may be, by the lessee on account of the principal amount of the borrowed money, and

(B) all amounts paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee in respect of the cancellation or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property;

(g) for the purposes of subsections 13(5.2) and (5.3), each amount paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee that would, but for this subsection, have been an amount paid or payable for the use of, or the right to use, the property shall be deemed to have been deducted in computing the lessee's income as an amount paid or payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property after the particular time;

(h) any amount paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee in respect of the granting or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property that would, but for this paragraph, be the capital cost to the lessee of a leasehold interest in the property shall be deemed to be an amount paid or payable, as the case may be, by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property for the remaining term of the lease; and

(i) where the lessee elects under this subsection in respect of a property and, at any time after the lease was entered into, the owner of the property is a non-resident person who does not hold the lease in the course of carrying on a business through a permanent establishment in Canada, as defined by regulation, any income from which is subject to tax under this Part, for the purposes of this subsection the lease shall be deemed to have been cancelled at that time.

History: S. 16.1(1), the portion before paragraph (a) was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 7(1), applicable to leases entered into by a taxpayer or partnership after 3:30 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, August 18, 1998, other than such leases entered into after that time pursuant to an agreement in writing

(a) made before that time under which the taxpayer or partnership was required to enter into the lease, and

(b) in respect of which there is no agreement or other arrangement under which the obligation of the taxpayer or partnership to enter into the lease can be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act, and for the purpose of this subsection, a lease in respect of which a material change has been agreed to by the parties to the lease, effective at any particular time that is after 3:30 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, August 18, 1998, is deemed to have been entered into at that particular time. That portion formerly read:

(a) the lease shall be deemed not to be a lease;

(b) the lessee shall be deemed to have acquired the property from the lessor at the particular time at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time;

(c) the lessee shall be deemed to have borrowed money from the lessor at the particular time, for the purpose of acquiring the property, in a principal amount equal to the fair market value of the property at that time;

(d) interest shall be deemed to accrue on the principal amount of the borrowed money outstanding from time to time, compounded semi-annually, not in advance, at the prescribed rate in effect at the particular time (or, where a particular lease provides that the amount paid or payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property varies according to prevailing interest rates in effect from time to time, and the lessee so elects, in respect of all of the property that is subject to the particular lease, in the lessee's return of income under this Part for the taxation year of the lessee in which the particular lease was entered into, the prescribed rate that is in effect at the time the interest is being calculated);".

S. 16.1(1)(i) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 12(2), applicable to leases and subleases entered into after 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989, other than

(a) leases entered into under an agreement in writing entered into at or before 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989 under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property, and

(b) subleases of properties that are subject to leases described in paragraph (a) or to leases entered into at or before 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989, except that, with respect to leases and subleases entered into after 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989 and before June 12, 1989, subsection 16.1(1) shall be read without reference to paragraph 16.1(1)(i) of the Act, to the words "resident in Canada (or from a non-resident person who holds the lease in the course of carrying on a business through a permanent establishment in Canada, as defined by regulation, any income from which is subject to tax under this Part)" and to the words "and with whom the lessee was dealing at arm's length", and, with respect to leases and subleases entered into after June 11, 1989 and before July 13, 1990, subsection 16.1(1) shall be read without reference to clause 16.1(1)(d)(i)(A) of the Act, to the words "the earlier of" and to the words "any income from which is subject to tax under this Part".

S. 16.1(1)(i) formerly read:

"(i) where the lessee has made an election under this subsection in respect of a property and, at any time after the lease was entered into, the owner of the property is a person not resident in Canada (except where the person holds the lease in the course of carrying on a business through a permanent establishment in Canada, as defined by regulation), for the purposes of this subsection, the lease shall be deemed to have been cancelled at that time."

(2) Assignments and subleases. Subject to subsections (3) and (4), where at any particular time a lessee who has made an election under subsection (1) in respect of a leased property assigns the lease or subleases the property to another person (in this section referred to as the "assignee"),

(a) subsection (1) shall not apply in computing the income of the lessee in respect of the lease for any period after the particular time; and

(b) if the lessee and the assignee jointly elect in prescribed form filed with their returns of income under this Part for their respective taxation years that include the particular time, subsection (1) shall apply to the assignee as if

(i) the assignee leased the property at the particular time from the owner of the property for a term of more than one year, and

(ii) the assignee and the owner of the property jointly elected under subsection (1) in respect of the property with their returns of income under this Part for their respective taxation years that include the particular time.

History: s. 16.1(2)(b) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 12(3), applicable to leases and subleases entered into after 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989, other than

(a) leases entered into under an agreement in writing entered into at or before 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989 under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property, and

(b) subleases of properties that are subject to leases described in paragraph (a) or to leases entered into at or before 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989.

S. 16.1(2)(b) formerly read:

"(b) if the lessee and the assignee have jointly elected by filing the prescribed form with their returns of income under this Part for their respective taxation years that include the time at which the assignment or sublease was entered into, subsection (1) shall apply to the assignee as if the assignee leased the property at that time from the owner of the property for a term of more than one year."

► 16.1(3) ◄

(3) Idem. Subject to subsection (4), where at any particular time a lessee who has made an election under subsection (1) in respect of a leased property assigns the lease or subleases the property to another person with whom the lessee is not dealing at arm's length, the other person shall, for the purposes of subsection (1) and for the purposes of computing that person's income in respect of the lease for any period after the particular time, be deemed to be the same person as, and a continuation of, the lessee, except that, notwithstanding paragraph (1)(b), that other person shall be deemed to have acquired the property from the lessee at the time that it was acquired by the lessee at a cost equal to the amount that would be the lessee's proceeds of disposition of the property determined under paragraph (1)(f) if that amount were determined without reference to clauses (1)(f)(i)(B) and (ii)(B).

► 16.1(4) ◄

(4) Amalgamations and windings-up. Notwithstanding subsection (2), where at any time a particular corporation that has made an election under subsection (1) in respect of a lease assigns the lease

(a) by reason of an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)), or

(b) in the course of the winding-up of a Canadian corporation in respect of which subsection 88(1) applies, to another corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length, the other corporation shall, for the purposes of subsection (1) and for the purposes of computing its income in respect of the lease after that time, be deemed to be the same person as, and a continuation of, the particular corporation.

► 16.1(5) ◄

(5) Replacement property. For the purposes of subsection (1), where at any time a property (in this subsection referred to as a "replacement property") is provided by a lessor to a lessee as a replacement for a similar property of the lessor (in this subsection referred to as the "original property") that was leased by the lessor to the lessee, and the amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the replacement property is the same as the amount that was so payable in respect of the original property, the replacement property shall be deemed to be the same property as the original property.

History: S. 16.1(5) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 12(4), applicable to leases and subleases entered into after 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989, other than

(a) leases entered into under an agreement in writing entered into at or before 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989 under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property, and

(b) the lessor and the lessee of the original property have jointly elected under subsection (1) in respect of the original property, and

(c) as a consequence of the addition or alteration, the total amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the original property and the additional property exceeds the amount so payable in respect of the original property,

the following rules apply:

(d) the lessee shall be deemed to have leased the additional property from the lessor at the particular time,

(e) the term of the lease of the additional property shall be deemed to be greater than one year,

(f) the lessor and the lessee shall be deemed to have jointly elected under subsection (1) in respect of the additional property,

(g) the prescribed rate in effect at the particular time in respect of the additional property shall be deemed to be equal to the prescribed rate in effect in respect of the original property at the particular time,

(h) the additional property shall be deemed not to be prescribed property, and

(i) the excess referred to in paragraph (c) shall be deemed to be an amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the additional property.

History: S. 16.1(6) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 12(4), applicable to leases and subleases entered into after 10:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, April 26, 1989, other than (a) the amount of interest that would be included in computing the corporation's income for the year in respect of the amount owing if that interest were computed at the prescribed rate for the period in the year during which the amount was owing

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) an amount included in computing the corporation's income for the year as, on account of, in lieu of or in satisfaction of, interest in respect of the amount owing,

(ii) an amount received or receivable by the corporation from a trust that is included in computing the corporation's income for the year or a subsequent year and that can reasonably be attributed to interest on the amount owing for the period in the year during which the amount was owing, or

(iii) an amount that is included in computing the corporation's income for the year or a subsequent year under subsection 91(1) and that can reasonably be attributed to interest on the amount owing for the period in the year during which the amount was owing.

Department of Finance Comfort Letter [Amount Owing by Non-Resident to Corporation Resident in Canada]

September 3, 2002

Dear XXXX:

I am writing in reply to your letter dated March 20, 2002 to Mr. Wally Conway in which you requested amendments to subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) and subsection 17(2) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

Subsection 17(1) of the Act generally applies where a non-resident owes an amount, to a corporation resident in Canada, at any time in a particular taxation year of the corporation, that amount owing to the corporation has been or remains outstanding for more than one year and the corporation does not include, in computing its income for the particular taxation year, interest, computed at a reasonable rate, on the amount owing to the corporation for the period in the particular taxation year during which the amount was owing. Where subsection 17(1) applies, the corporation is treated as having received interest, computed at a prescribed rate, on the amount owing for the period in the particular taxation year during which the amount was owing to the corporation.

Subsection 17(2) is an anti-avoidance rule that supports subsection 17(1) and is intended to prevent the use of indirect arrangements to circumvent subsection 17(1). Subsection 17(2) generally provides that, where a corporation resident in Canada (Canco) makes a loan, or transfers property, to an intermediary which in turn uses the loaned money or the transferred property to make a loan or transfer property to another non-resident person (the ultimate debtor), the ultimate debtor is treated as if it owes to Canco an amount equal to the amount owing by the ultimate debtor that arose because of the arrangement.

Subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) addresses cases where subsection 17(1) applies to a corporation resident in Canada (Canco) in respect of an amount equal to an amount owing to a controlled foreign affiliate (CFA) of Canco by a non-resident person because that amount is deemed under subsection 17(2) to be an amount owing to Canco by the non-resident person. In those cases, subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) was to provide for a reduction in the subsection 17(1) income inclusion of Canco in a particular taxation year of Canco. The reduction is intended to equal the amount of foreign accrual property income of CFA that is included in Canco's income for the particular year or a subsequent year under subsection 91(1) of the Act that can reasonably be attributed to the interest income of CFA derived from the amount owing to CFA by the non-resident person for the period in the particular year of Canco during which that amount was so owing to CFA and during which an amount equal to that amount owing to CFA was deemed to be owing to Canco by the non-resident person. For example, subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) is intended to apply where Canco transfers property to CFA, CFA then uses the property to make an interest-bearing loan to another non-resident person (the ultimate debtor), CFA earns foreign accrual property income from the interest-bearing loan made to the ultimate debtor, Canco includes that foreign accrual property income of CFA in its income, the ultimate debtor is deemed under subsection 17(2) to owe an amount to Canco equal to the amount it owes to CFA and subsection 17(1) applies to Canco in respect of the amount deemed to be owed to it by the ultimate debtor.

In your letter you noted that, in cases where subsection 17(2) applies, the deemed amount owing to Canco by the non-resident person to which subsection 17(1) applies and to which subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) refers is not the actual amount owing to CFA by the non-resident person that gives rise to the foreign accrual property income of CFA. Therefore, you noted that, in those cases, subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) would not apply to reduce Canco's income inclusion under subsection 17(1). From a tax policy point of view, we agree with your conclusion that the non-application of subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) in those cases would be inappropriate. We also agree with your submission that, from a tax policy point of view, it would be appropriate to amend subsection 17(2) so that the amount deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owed to Canco by the non-resident borrower is the actual amount owed to CFA by the non-resident borrower, rather than merely an equivalent amount.

In your letter, you also gave an example involving the interaction of subsections 17(1), (2) and (11.2). In that example, a corporation resident in Canada (Canco) transfers property to a controlled foreign affiliate (CFA) of Canco, CFA uses the property to make an interest-bearing loan (Loan #1) to another non-resident person (Forco1) and then Forco1 uses the funds to make a non interest-bearing loan (Loan #2) to another non-resident person (Forco2). Subsection 17(11.2) could apply to deem Loan #2 to have been made directly by CFA to Forco2. Thus, it is Loan #2 rather than Loan #1 that would be deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owing to Canco by CFA. From a tax policy point of view, we agree with your conclusion that, since it is the interest income earned by CFA on Loan #1 that would be included in computing CFA's foreign accrual property income, it would be appropriate in those cases to give reference to Loan #1 when applying subsection 17(2) in conjunction with subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) where Loan #1 can be linked to Loan #2.

We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 17(2) of the Act be amended to provide that the amount that is deemed by that subsection to be owing to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person who is described in paragraph 17(2)(a) is the amount owing by that non-resident person to the particular person or partnership who is described in that paragraph under the same terms and conditions that apply to the amount owing by that non-resident person to the particular person or partnership, notwithstanding that the amount remains owing by that non-resident person to the particular person or partnership.

We are also prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) of the Act be amended. The recommended amendments to that paragraph would provide for the inclusion of amounts in respect of a corporation resident in Canada that are amounts that, under subsection 91(1) of the Act, are included in computing the income of the corporation resident in Canada for the particular year or a subsequent year and that can reasonably be attributed to interest income of a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada derived from specified amounts in respect of the corporation resident in Canada that are owing to the controlled foreign affiliate when they qualified as such amounts. Amounts will, at a particular time, qualify as specified amounts in respect of a corporation resident in Canada that are owing to a controlled foreign affiliate of that corporation, if at that time,

- the amounts are owing to the controlled foreign affiliate by the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1), the amounts are deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owed to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person and the amounts are the amounts to which subsection 17(1) applies in respect of the corporation, or
- the amounts (not exceeding the actual amounts owing to which subsection 17(1) applies) are owing to the controlled foreign affiliate by a non-resident person and

1. would be deemed by subsection 17(2), if section 17 were read without reference to subsection 17(11.2), to be owed to the corporation resident in Canada by that non-resident person,

2. are loans made by the controlled foreign affiliate that are deemed, under paragraph 17(11.2)(b), not to have been made by the controlled foreign affiliate, and

3. are loans made by the controlled foreign affiliate to persons other than the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1) that resulted in a loan being made to the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1) that — is deemed by paragraph 17(11.2)(a) to have been made by the controlled foreign affiliate to the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1) for the purposes of subsection 17(2), and — is deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owed to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person and is the amount owing to which subsection 17(1) applies.

We will recommend that the amendments apply to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director
Tax Legislation Division
Tax Policy Branch

History: S. 17(1) was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998 except that in its application to a taxation year that includes March 10, 1999, the amount determined under subsection 17(1) of the Act is deemed to be the amount that is equal to the total of

(i) the amount that would have been determined under that subsection if the taxation year had ended at the end of March 10, 1999 and if subsection 17(7) of the Act had read as follows:

"(7) Subsection (1) does not apply in respect of an amount owing to a corporation resident in Canada by a non-resident person if a tax has been paid under Part XIII on the amount owing."

(ii) the amount that would have been determined under subsection 17(1) of the Act if the taxation year had begun immediately after the end of March 10, 1999. S. 17(1) formerly read:

"S. 17. Loan to non-resident.

(1) Where a corporation resident in Canada has lent money to a non-resident person and the loan remained outstanding for one year or longer without interest on the loan computed at a reasonable rate having been included in computing the lender's income, the corporation shall be deemed to have received, on the last day of each taxation year during which the loan was outstanding, interest on the loan at the prescribed rate computed for the period in the taxation year during which it was outstanding."

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(1) was enacted to prevent corporations resident in Canada from avoiding Canadian tax by providing loans or other amounts at low interest or no interest to non-residents. For the provision to apply, (a) a corporation resident in Canada must be owed funds by a non-resident person (the creditor must be a Canadian resident corporation but the debtor can be any person who is a non-resident), (b) the amount owed to the Canadian resident corporation must have been outstanding for more than a year, and (c) the Canadian resident corporation must have included in its income for the year, an amount of interest in respect of the outstanding amount that is less than interest computed at a reasonable rate for the period in the year during which the amount was owing. If these conditions are satisfied, the difference between the amount of such interest received (if any) and interest calculated at the prescribed interest rate under Regulation 4301 is included in the Canadian resident corporation's income for the year.

It should be noted that section 17 contains many anti-avoidance rules which may cause a loan or transfer to be "caught" and that exceptions to the application of subsection 17(1) are found in subsections (7), (8) and (9). It should also be noted that subsection 17(1) was amended applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998. Before this amendment, the provision only applied to loans, and the amendment extended the application significantly by including any amount outstanding. The term "interest computed at a reasonable rate" is not defined in the Act but the CRA has published numerous technical interpretations setting out its views on the meaning of this term. It should also be noted that if a non-resident owes an amount to a Canadian resident and such amount is not subject to subsection 17(1) because of an exception to section 17 or because the amount is not owed to a Canadian resident corporation, section 247 which deals with transfer pricing may apply.

(2) Anti-avoidance rule — indirect loan. For the purpose of this section and subject to subsection (3), where

(a) a non-resident person owes an amount at any time to a particular person or partnership (other than a corporation resident in Canada), and

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that the particular person or partnership entered into the transaction under which the amount became owing or the particular person or partnership permitted the amount owing to remain outstanding because

(i) a corporation resident in Canada made a loan or transfer of property, or

(ii) the particular person or partnership anticipated that a corporation resident in Canada would make a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, to or for the benefit of any person or partnership (other than an exempt loan or transfer), the non-resident person is deemed at that time to owe to the corporation an amount equal to the amount owing to the particular person or partnership.

History: S. 17(2) was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1999. S. 17(2) formerly read:

"(2) Exception. Subsection (1) does not apply if a tax has been paid on the amount of the loan under Part XIII."

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(2) is an anti-avoidance provision which deals with indirect loans. For the subsection to apply, the following tests must be met: (a) a non-resident person owes an amount at any time to a person or partnership other than a Canadian resident corporation; (b) a Canadian resident corporation made a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly in any manner whatsoever to or for the benefit of any person or partnership; and (c) it is reasonable to conclude that the particular person or partnership entered into the transaction under (a) above, because of the loan or transfer under (b) above. If these conditions are met, the non-resident person is deemed to owe money to the Canadian resident corporation in an amount equal to the amount owing to the particular person or partnership. It should be noted that because the test is a subjective "reasonable to conclude" test, it is often difficult to ascertain when this anti-avoidance provision applies. It should also be noted that the provision does not apply if it involves an "exempt loan or transfer" which is defined in subsection 17(15) to generally include (a) loan made by a Canadian resident corporation at arm's length interest; (b) a transfer of property or payment at arm's length (other than a transfer of property made for the purpose of acquiring shares of a foreign affiliate of a corporation or a corporation with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length); (c) a dividend paid by a Canadian resident corporation; and (d) payment made by a Canadian resident corporation on a reduction of paid-up capital, or if the exception provided in subsection (3) applies.

Subsection 17(2) is extended by further anti-avoidance rules dealing with partnerships, trusts and multi-tiered entities found in subsections (4), (5) and (6) and an anti-avoidance rule relating to back-to-back loans found in subsection (11.2).

(3) Exception to anti-avoidance rule — indirect loan. Subsection (2) does not apply to an amount owing at any time by a non-resident person to a particular person or partnership where

(a) at that time, the non-resident person and the particular person or each member of the particular partnership, as the case may be, are controlled foreign affiliates of the corporation resident in Canada; or

(b) at that time,

(i) the non-resident person and the particular person are not related or the non-resident person and each member of the particular partnership are not related, as the case may be,

(ii) the terms or conditions made or imposed in respect of the amount owing, determined without reference to any loan or transfer of property by a corporation resident in Canada described in paragraph (2)(b) in respect of the amount owing, are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them at the time that they were entered into, and

(iii) if there were an amount of interest payable on the amount owing at that time that would be required to be included in computing the income of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year, that amount of interest would not be required to be included in computing the foreign accrual property income of the affiliate for that year.

History: S. 17(3) was amended by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1999. S. 17(3) formerly read:

"(3) Further exception. Subsection (1) does not apply if the loan was made to a subsidiary controlled corporation and it is established that the money that was lent was used in the subsidiary corporation's business for the purpose of gaining or producing income."

Editorial Note: One exception to the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 17(2) is found in subsection (3) which provides that subsection (2) does not apply to an amount owing at any time by a non-resident person to a particular person or a partnership if (a) the non-resident person and the particular person or each member of the particular partnership as the case may be, are controlled foreign affiliates of the corporation resident in Canada; or (b) the non-resident person and the particular person are not related, the terms in respect of the amount owing are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them, and, if there were an amount of interest payable on the amount owing at the time that would be required to be included in computing the income of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, that amount of interest would not be required to be included in computing the FAPI of the affiliate for the year.

The second exception deals with debts owed to unrelated third parties on arm's length terms. An example would be a Canadian resident corporation lending funds at a preferential rate to an unrelated third party in order to induce the third party to make a loan to one of its non-resident suppliers and the loan from the third party to the non-resident is on arm's length terms and any interest payable is not FAPI to the Canadian resident corporation.

It should be noted that for purposes of section 17, the definition of "controlled foreign affiliate" which is defined in subsection 95(1) (subject to the interpretational rules in subsections 95(2.01) and (2.02)) is modified by subsections 17(10), (12), (13) and (15). These modifications are generally designed to ensure that, in determining whether an income inclusion under section 17 is warranted, it is the level of Canadian ownership of the foreign entity that is ultimately determinative. For example, a foreign entity will not be considered a "controlled foreign affiliate" of a corporation resident in Canada (and therefore no exemption from the income inclusion rules in section 17 will be available) if the entity is considered a "controlled foreign affiliate" of the corporation resident in Canada solely because of the attribution of shareholdings in the foreign entity by another foreign entity that is related to the corporation resident in Canada (i.e., a foreign parent or sister company).

It should also be noted that for purposes of determining whether parties are related, reference should be made to subsection 251 as modified by subsections 17(10), (11), (11.1) and (11.3).

(4) Anti-avoidance rule — loan through partnership. For the purpose of this section, where a non-resident person owes an amount at any time to a partnership and subsection (2) does not deem the non-resident person to owe an amount equal to that amount to a corporation resident in Canada, the non-resident person is deemed at that time to owe to each member of the partnership, on the same terms as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the partnership, that proportion of the amount owing to the partnership at that time that

(a) the fair market value of the member's interest in the partnership at that time

is of

(b) the fair market value of all interests in the partnership at that time.

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(4) is an anti-avoidance rule which deals with situations where a non-resident person owes an amount to a partnership and subsection (2) does not deem a like amount to be owing to a Canadian resident corporation. In such case, the non-resident person is deemed to owe each member of the partnership a portion of the amount owing at the particular time. A similar anti-avoidance rule applies to amounts owed to a trust under subsection 17(5). In such case, if the trust is a non-discretionary trust, the non-resident person is deemed to owe an amount to each beneficiary of the trust based on the beneficiary's interest in the trust. For purposes of this provision, "non-discretionary trust" is defined in subsection 17(15). In the case of any other trust, the non-resident person is deemed to owe each settlor an amount equal to the entire amount owing to the trust. Therefore, if there is more than one settlor, the same amount owing may give rise to more than one income inclusion. The definition of "settlor" is also found in subsection 17(15). Subsection 17(6) provides a similar anti-avoidance rule for tiered entities. It applies where a partnership owes an amount to any person or any other partnership. In such event, each member of the partnership owing the amount is deemed to owe a share of the amount owing. The apportionment of the amount owing is based on the fair market value of the interest of each member of the partnership owing the amount.

History: S. 17(4) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(5) Anti-avoidance rule — loan through trust. For the purpose of this section, where a non-resident person owes an amount at any time to a trust and subsection (2) does not deem the non-resident person to owe an amount equal to that amount to a corporation resident in Canada,

(a) where the trust is a non-discretionary trust at that time, the non-resident person is deemed at that time to owe to each beneficiary of the trust, on the same terms as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the trust, that proportion of the amount owing to the trust that

(i) the fair market value of the beneficiary's interest in the trust at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all the beneficial interests in the trust at that time; and

(b) in any other case, the non-resident person is deemed at that time to owe to each settlor in respect of the trust, on the same terms as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the trust, an amount equal to the amount owing to the trust.

Editorial Note: See the Editorial Note following subsection 17(4).

History: S. 17(5) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

► 17(6) ◄

(6) Anti-avoidance rule — loan to partnership. For the purpose of this section, where a particular partnership owes an amount at any time to any person or any other partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "lender"), each member of the particular partnership is deemed to owe at that time to the lender, on the same terms as those that apply in respect of the amount owing by the particular partnership to the lender, that proportion of the amount owing to the lender that

(a) the fair market value of the member's interest in the particular partnership at that time

is of

(b) the fair market value of all interests in the particular partnership at that time.

► 17(7) ◄

(7) Exception. Subsection (1) does not apply in respect of an amount owing to a corporation resident in Canada by a non-resident person if a tax has been paid under Part XIII on the amount owing, except that, for the purpose of this subsection, tax under Part XIII is deemed not to have been paid on that portion of the amount owing in respect of which an amount was repaid or applied under subsection 227(6.1).

History: S. 17(7) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998 except that in its application to such a taxation year that ends before March 10, 1999, subsection 17(7) of the Act shall be read as follows:

"(7) Subsection (1) does not apply in respect of an amount owing to a corporation resident in Canada by a non-resident person if a tax has been paid under Part XIII on the amount owing."

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(7) provides another exception to the inclusion rule in subsection (1). Specifically, if there is an amount owing to a Canadian resident corporation by a non-resident person, subsection 17(1) does not apply if withholding tax has been paid under Part XIII of the Act on the amount owing. However, if withholding tax was refunded under subsection 227(6.1) in respect of a repayment of a non-resident shareholder loan, Part XIII non-resident withholding tax is deemed not to have been paid for the purpose of subsection 17(7).

(8) Exception. Subsection (1) does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a non-resident person if the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation throughout the period in the year during which the amount is owing to the extent that it is established that the amount owing

(a) arose as a loan or advance of money to the affiliate that the affiliate has used, throughout the period that began when the loan or advance was made and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid,

(i) for the purpose of earning

(A) income from an active business, as defined in subsection 95(1), of the affiliate, or

(B) income that was included in computing the income from an active business of the affiliate under subsection 95(2), or

(ii) for the purpose of making a loan or advance to another controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation where, if interest became payable on the loan or advance at any time in the period and the affiliate was required to include the interest in computing its income for a taxation year, that interest would not be required to be included in computing the affiliate's foreign accrual property income for that year; or

(b) arose in the course of an active business, as defined in subsection 95(1), carried on by the affiliate throughout the period that began when the amount owing arose and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid.

History: S. 17(8), the portion before paragraph (a) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 10(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998 and, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), any assessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that begins after February 23, 1998 and ends before October 2, 2007 shall be made that is necessary to take the amendment to the portion of subsection 17(8) before paragraph (a) into account.

S. 17(8), the portion before paragraph (a) formerly read:

"(8) Exception. Subsection (1) does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a non-resident person if the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation throughout the period in the year during which the amount is owing and it is established that the amount owing"

S. 17(8) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(8) is another exception to subsection (1) and limits, in certain circumstances, the income inclusion to a Canadian resident under subsection (1) if the non-resident person owing the amount is a controlled foreign affiliate of the Canadian resident corporation throughout the period during which the amount is owed. The definition of "controlled foreign affiliate" is found in subsection 95(1) (subject to the interpretational rules in subsection 95(2.01) and (2.02), as modified for purposes of section 17 (see the Editorial Note for subsection 17(3))).

Subparagraph 17(8)(a)(i) provides that there is no income inclusion to the extent that a loan or advance of money was made and that loan or advance was used by the controlled foreign affiliate either to earn income from an active business or to earn income that was included in the affiliate's income from an active business pursuant to subsection 95(2). It should be noted that this use must occur throughout the period that began when the loan or advance was made and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid.

Subparagraph 17(8)(a)(ii) provides that there is no income inclusion to the extent that a loan or advance was made and that loan or advance was used by the controlled foreign affiliate to make a loan or advance to another controlled foreign affiliate of the Canadian resident corporation and interest, if payable, and included in the first affiliate's income will not be required to be included in computing the first affiliate's FAPI for the year.

Paragraph 17(8)(a) limits the income inclusion under subsection 17(1) only in circumstances where a controlled foreign affiliate owes an amount to a corporation resident in Canada as a loan or advance of money. Paragraph 17(8)(b) limits the income inclusion in circumstances where a controlled foreign affiliate owes other amounts to the Canadian-resident corporation to the extent the amounts arose in the course of an active business carried on by the controlled foreign affiliate. The active business must be carried on by the affiliate throughout the period that began when the amount owing arose and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid.

(8.1) Borrowed money. Subsection (8.2) applies in respect of money (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (8.2) as "new borrowings") that a controlled foreign affiliate of a particular corporation resident in Canada has borrowed from the particular corporation to the extent that the affiliate has used the new borrowings

(a) to repay money (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (8.2) as "previous borrowings") previously borrowed from any person or partnership, if

(i) the previous borrowings became owing after the last time at which the affiliate became a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular corporation, and

(ii) the previous borrowings were, at all times after they became owing, used for a purpose described in subparagraph (8)(a)(i) or (ii); or

(b) to pay an amount owing (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (8.2) as the "unpaid purchase price") by the affiliate for property previously acquired from any person or partnership, if

(i) the property was acquired, and the unpaid purchase price became owing, by the affiliate after the last time at which it became a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular corporation,

(ii) the unpaid purchase price is in respect of the property, and

(iii) throughout the period that began when the unpaid purchase price became owing by the affiliate and ended when the unpaid purchase price was so paid, the property had been used principally to earn income described in clause (8)(a)(i)(A) or (B).

History: S. 17(8.1) was added by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 10(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998 and, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), any assessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that begins after February 23, 1998 and ends before October 2, 2007 shall be made that is necessary to take subsections 17(8.1) and (8.2) into account.

(8.2) Deemed use. To the extent that this subsection applies in respect of new borrowings, the new borrowings are, for the purpose of subsection (8), deemed to have been used for the purpose for which the proceeds from the previous borrowings were used or were deemed by this subsection to have been used, or to acquire the property in respect of which the unpaid purchase price was payable, as the case may be.

History: S. 17(8.2) was added by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 10(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998 and, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), any assessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that begins after February 23, 1998 and ends before October 2, 2007 shall be made that is necessary to take subsections 17(8.1) and (8.2) into account.

(9) Exception. Subsection (1) does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a non-resident person if

(a) the corporation is not related to the non-resident person throughout the period in the year during which the amount owing is outstanding;

(b) the amount owing arose in respect of goods sold or services provided to the non-resident person by the corporation in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the corporation; and

(c) the terms and conditions in respect of the amount owing are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them at the time that they were entered into.

History: S. 17(9) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(9) provides a further exception to the income inclusion under subsection (1). To qualify for this exception, the following test must be met: (a) the corporation is not related to the non-resident person while the amount owed is outstanding (related is defined in section 251 as modified for purposes of section 17 by subsections 17(10), (11) and (11.1)); (b) the amount owing is for goods or services sold to the non-resident person by the Canadian resident corporation in the ordinary course of its business; and (c) the terms and conditions for the amount owing are those that parties at arm's length would have been willing to enter into.

(10) Determination of whether related and controlled foreign affiliate status. For the purpose of this section, in determining whether persons are related to each other and whether a non-resident corporation is a controlled foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada at any time,

(a) each member of a partnership is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the partnership at that time that

(i) the fair market value of the member's interest in the partnership at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all interests in the partnership at that time; and

(b) each beneficiary of a non-discretionary trust is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the trust at that time that

(i) the fair market value of the beneficiary's interest in the trust at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all the beneficial interests in the trust at that time.

History: S. 17(10) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

► 17(11) ◄

(11) Determination of whether related. For the purpose of this section, in determining whether persons are related to each other at any time, each settlor in respect of a trust, other than a non-discretionary trust, is deemed to own the shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the trust at that time.

History: S. 17(11) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(11.1) Determination of whether persons related. For the purposes of this section, in determining whether persons are related to each other at any time, any rights referred to in subparagraph 251(5)(b)(i) that exist at that time are deemed not to exist at that time to the extent that the exercise of those rights is prohibited at that time under a law of the country under the law of which the corporation was formed or last continued and is governed, that restricts the foreign ownership or control of the corporation.

History: S. 17(11.1) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(11.2) Back-to-back loans. For the purposes of subsection (2) and paragraph (3)(b), where a non-resident person, or a partnership each member of which is non-resident, (in this subsection referred to as the "intermediate lender") makes a loan to a non-resident person, or a partnership each member of which is non-resident, (in this subsection referred to as the "intended borrower") because the intermediate lender received a loan from another non-resident person, or a partnership each member of which is non-resident, (in this subsection referred to as the "initial lender")

(a) the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower is deemed to have been made by the initial lender to the intended borrower (to the extent of the lesser of the amount of the loan made by the initial lender to the intermediate lender and the amount of the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower) under the same terms and conditions and at the same time as it was made by the intermediate lender; and

(b) the loan made by the initial lender to the intermediate lender and the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower are deemed not to have been made to the extent of the amount of the loan deemed to have been made under paragraph (a).

History: S. 17(11.2) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

Editorial Note: Subsection 17(11.2) prevents the use of back-to-back loans to avoid the application of subsection (2). If a non-resident person loans an amount to a non-resident person because the lender received a loan from another non-resident person, subsection 17(11.2) will apply to deem the initial lender to have made the loan directly to the intended borrower for purposes of subsection (2).

(11.3) Determination of whether persons related. For the purpose of applying paragraph (3)(b) in respect of a corporation resident in Canada described in paragraph (2)(b), in determining whether persons described in subparagraph (3)(b)(i) are related to each other at any time, any rights referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) that otherwise exist at that time are deemed not to exist at that time where, if the rights were exercised immediately before that time,

(a) all of those persons would at that time be controlled foreign affiliates of the corporation resident in Canada; and

(b) because of subsection (8), subsection (1) would not apply to the corporation resident in Canada in respect of the amount that would, but for this subsection, have been deemed to have been owing at that time to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person described in subparagraph (3)(b)(i).

History: S. 17(11.3) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(12) Determination of controlled foreign affiliate status. For the purpose of this section, in determining whether a non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada at any time, each settlor in respect of a trust, other than a non-discretionary trust, is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the trust at that time that one is of the number of settlors in respect of the trust at that time.

History: S. 17(12) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(13) Extended definition of controlled foreign affiliate. For the purpose of this section, where, at any time, two corporations resident in Canada are related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)), any corporation that is a controlled foreign affiliate of one of the corporations at that time is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the other corporation at that time.

History: S. 17(13) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(14) Anti-avoidance rule — where rights or shares issued, acquired or disposed of to avoid tax. For the purpose of this section,

(a) where any person or partnership has a right under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation and it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the existence of the right is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that subsection (1) would otherwise require any corporation to include in computing its income for any taxation year, those shares are deemed to be owned by that person or partnership; and

(b) where any person or partnership acquires or disposes of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, either directly or indirectly, and it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the acquisition or disposition of the shares is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that subsection (1) would otherwise require any corporation to include in computing its income for any taxation year, those shares are deemed not to have been acquired or disposed of, as the case may be, and where the shares were unissued by the corporation immediately before the acquisition, those shares are deemed not to have been issued.

History: S. 17(14) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

(15) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"controlled foreign affiliate" — "controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means a corporation that would, at that time, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer within the meaning assigned by the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsection 95(1) if the word "or" were added at the end of paragraph (a) of that definition and

(a) subparagraph (b)(ii) of that definition were read as "all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,"; and

(b) subparagraph (b)(iv) of that definition were read as "all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder;".

Coordinating Amendment

S.C. 2007 c. 35 (Bill C-28) — Coordinating Amendments With Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — December 14, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The following applies if former Bill C-10, introduced in the 2nd session of the 39th Parliament and entitled the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 (referred to as the "other Act"), receives royal assent: If this Act [Bill C-28, S.C. 2007, c. 35] receives royal assent before the other Act receives royal assent, section 4 of the other Act [the amendment to the definition of "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsection 17(15)] is repealed. The definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsection 17(15) of the Income Tax Act as amended by subsection 10(3) of S.C. 2007, c. 35, is replaced by the following:

"controlled foreign affiliate" — "controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means a corporation that would, at that time, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer within the meaning assigned by the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsection 95(1) if the word "or" were added at the end of paragraph (a) of that definition and

(a) subparagraph (b)(ii) of that definition were read as "all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,";

(b) subparagraph (b)(iv) of that definition were read as "all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder;"; and

(c) that definition were read without reference to its paragraph (c).

Applicable: To taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 23, 1998, except that, in applying the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsection 17(15) of the Income Tax Act,

(a) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, that definition is to be read as follows:

"'controlled foreign affiliate' — 'controlled foreign affiliate' has the meaning that would be assigned by the definition 'controlled foreign affiliate' in subsection 95(1) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, if the word 'or' were added at the end of paragraph (a) of that definition and

(a) subparagraph (b)(ii) of that definition were read as 'all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,';

(b) subparagraph (b)(iv) of that definition were read as 'all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder;'; and

(b) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 23, 1998 and before 2003, that definition is to be read as follows:

"'controlled foreign affiliate' — 'controlled foreign affiliate' has the meaning that would be assigned by the definition 'controlled foreign affiliate' in subsection 95(1) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 23, 1998 and before 2003, if subparagraph (b)(iii) of that definition were read as 'each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by the taxpayer and each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by any person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length.'."

History: S. 17(15), the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 10(3), applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 23, 1998, except that, in applying the definition "controlled foreign affiliate", in subsection 17(15)

(a) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, that definition is to be read as follows:

"'controlled foreign affiliate' has the meaning that would be assigned by the definition 'controlled foreign affiliate' in subsection 95(1) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, if the word 'or' were added at the end of paragraph (a) of that definition and

(a) subparagraph (b)(ii) of that definition were read as 'all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,'; and

(b) subparagraph (b)(iv) of that definition were read as 'all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons resident in Canada who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder;'."

(b) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 23, 1998 and before 2003, that definition is to be read as follows:

"'controlled foreign affiliate' has the meaning that would be assigned by the definition 'controlled foreign affiliate' in subsection 95(1) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 23, 1998 and before 2003, if subparagraph (b)(iii) of that definition were read as 'each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by the taxpayer and each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by any person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length.'."

S. 17(15), the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" formerly read:

"'controlled foreign affiliate' — 'controlled foreign affiliate' has the meaning that would be assigned by the definition 'controlled foreign affiliate' in subsection 95(1) if paragraphs (d) and (e) of that definition read as follows:

'(d) one or more persons resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or (e) the taxpayer and one or more persons resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length.'"

S. 17(15), the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

"exempt loan or transfer" — "exempt loan or transfer" means

(a) a loan made by a corporation resident in Canada where the interest rate charged on the loan is not less than the interest rate that a lender and a borrower would have been willing to agree to if they were dealing at arm's length with each other at the time the loan was made;

(b) a transfer of property (other than a transfer of property made for the purpose of acquiring shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of a corporation or a foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length) or payment of an amount owing by a corporation resident in Canada pursuant to an agreement made on terms and conditions that persons who were dealing at arm's length at the time the agreement was entered into would have been willing to agree to;

(c) a dividend paid by a corporation resident in Canada on shares of a class of its capital stock; and

(d) a payment made by a corporation resident in Canada on a reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of shares of a class of its capital stock (not exceeding the total amount of the reduction).

History: S. 17(15), the definition "exempt loan or transfer" was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 8(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998. S. 17(15), the definition "exempt loan or transfer" formerly read:

"'exempt loan or transfer'" — 'exempt loan or transfer' means a loan or transfer of property made by a corporation to a person or a partnership where

(a) at the time of the loan or transfer, the corporation was not related to the person or to any member of the partnership, as the case may be;

(b) the loan or transfer of property was not part of a series of transactions or events at the end of which the corporation was related to the person or to any member of the partnership, as the case may be; and

(c) the terms and conditions of the loan or transfer (determined without reference to any other loan or transfer of property to either a person related to the corporation or a partnership any member of which was related to the corporation) are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them at the time that they were entered into."

S. 17(15), the definition "exempt loan or transfer" was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

"non-discretionary trust" — "non-discretionary trust", at any time, means a trust in which all interests were vested indefeasibly at the beginning of the trust's taxation year that includes that time.

History: S. 17(15), the definition "non-discretionary trust" was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

Extension of Interim Measure on Deductibility of Provincial Payroll and Capital Taxes

[Reproduced below is Department of Finance News Release No. 2004-080, dated December 16, 2004, which extends the interim measure limiting the deductibility of increases in provincial payroll and capital taxes. This interim measure has been in place since March 1993.]

Minister of Finance Ralph Goodale announced today that the interim measure that limits the deductibility of increases in provincial payroll and capital taxes will continue to apply.

Under the interim measure, any existing provincial payroll and capital taxes will remain deductible for federal income tax purposes, but increases in these taxes by way of provincial actions to increase the rate, change the definition of the base or introduce new taxes generally would not be deductible.

The announcement of the extension of the interim measure ensures that all businesses and provinces are informed of the rules that apply to the deductibility of provincial payroll and capital taxes.

Cases: Under a collective agreement, the taxpayer contributed to a contingency fund for employee programs. After previous court decisions held that these obligations were contingent, the documentation was amended specifically to create an absolute liability. Despite the amendment, the unexpended portion of the fund remained a contingent liability that was not deductible by virtue of s. 18(1)(e). The Queen v. General Motors of Canada Limited, 2008 DTC 6381 (F.C.A.), reversing 2007 DTC 272 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer's parent company paid the taxpayer's employees to surrender options to purchase shares of the parent. The taxpayer reimbursed its parent for these payments and was entitled to deduct the amount reimbursed. The reimbursement payments could not be recharacterized as capital expenditures just because they were made in the context of the parent's corporate reorganization. Shoppers Drug Mart Limited v. The Queen, 2008 DTC 2043 (T.C.C.).

Professional fees incurred to reorganize capital structure and to update shareholder agreements were deductible as a current expense since they were incurred to earn income. Truckbase Corporation et al. v. The Queen, 2006 DTC 2930 (T.C.C.).

A lawyer could not deduct legal fees paid to defend himself on criminal charges. Although he argued that he would have lost his license to practice law if convicted, the legal fees were not a business expense, but a non-deductible personal expenditure. Leduc v. The Queen, 2005 DTC 250 (T.C.C.).

Financial and legal expenses incurred in defending against a hostile take-over bid were deductible. The expenses were a cost of doing business, and were so integral to conducting the target corporation's business that they could not be divorced from the corporate activities of gaining and producing income. BJ Services Company Canada v. The Queen, 2004 DTC 2032 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer hired a firm of financial advisors which recommended a share for share exchange arrangement under which taxpayer's shareholders would become shareholders of a third party. The $1.2 million fee paid to the financial advisors was deductible as a current expense. International Colin Energy Corporation v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 2185 (T.C.C.).

Partnership losses with respect to a storage park operation were deductible since it constituted a source of income. Since it was commercial in nature, with no evidence of any personal element, the REOP test did not arise. Although the taxpayers were clearly motivated by tax considerations when purchasing their partnership interests, this does not detract from the commercial nature of the operation or its characterization as a source of income. The Queen v. Walls et al., 2002 DTC 6960 (S.C.C.), affirming 2000 DTC 6025 (F.C.A.), reversing 96 DTC 6142 (F.C.T.D.).

The taxpayer, who purchased condominium units for rental purposes, was able to deduct related losses since the rental activity lacked any personal element and was clearly a commercial activity. REOP was not the appropriate test. The taxpayer's hope of realizing an eventual capital gain with the expectation of deducting interest expenses, did not detract from the commercial nature of his rental operation, or its characterization as a source of income. Stewart v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 6969 (S.C.C.), reversing 2000 DTC 6163 (F.C.A.) and 98 DTC 1600 (T.C.C.).

Employer contributions in respect of vacation pay were deductible in the year the contributions were made even though the vacations were not actually taken until a subsequent year. It is not a non-deductible reserve because the employer's obligation to pay such contributions is "incurred" as soon as the employee's entitlement to the vacation pay has been earned. Fédération des Caisses Populaires Desjardins de Montréal et al. v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 5173 (F.C.A.), reversing 99 DTC 1275 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayers held back a portion of their payments to independent contractors until they received workers' compensation clearance certificates. The taxpayers were entitled to claim a deduction for the holdbacks since the contract price was not a contingent liability. It became an absolute obligation when the contractors had completed their work. Wawang Forest Products Limited et al. v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 5212 (F.C.A.), reversing 99 DTC 759.

The taxpayer was entitled to deduct legal fees in connection with divorce proceedings since the fees were incurred to obtain maintenance payments to which she was entitled under the Divorce Act. Gallien v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 2514 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer sought to deduct notional (but unpaid) rent during a rent-free period provided in its lease. This was calculated in accordance with an amortization formula said to reflect GAAP. It was not deductible for tax purposes because s. 18(1)(a) requires that the "outlay or expense" be "made or incurred" to earn income. Buck Consultants Limited v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6015 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1464 (T.C.C.).

A land developer was entitled to deduct a $2.9 million regional development charge in the year it was paid, even though none of the lands affected by the charge were sold by the taxpayer during that year. Urbandale Realty Corporation Limited v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6118 (F.C.A.), reversing 97 DTC 5353 (F.C.T.D.) and 93 DTC 154 (T.C.C.).

An over-quota levy in relation to the excess production of eggs was deductible since it was incurred as part of the taxpayer's day-to-day operations and was incurred for the purposes of earning income. The characterization of the levy as a "fine or penalty" was of no consequence. 65302 British Columbia Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5799 (S.C.C.), reversing 98 DTC 6002 (F.C.A.), which reversed 96 DTC 2049. (T.C.C.).

Certain UI, RPP, and other employee-related contributions and premiums paid by the taxpayer in respect of its employees, after the end of its taxation year, constituted non-deductible reserves. Federation des Caisses Populaires Desjardins de Montreal et de L'Ouest du Quebec v. The Queen, 99 DTC 1275 (T.C.C.).

The deduction by a "foot and transit" courier of the cost of extra food and water was allowed as a business expense because he was using them as a replacement for automobile fuel. Scott v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6530 (F.C.A.).

The estimated costs of a taxpayer's silviculture obligations under its provincial timber harvesting licence were not deductible since the obligation to pay them had not come into existence in the taxation years in issue. Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd. v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6640 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1104 (T.C.C.).

Tenant inducement payments paid by the taxpayer were not required to be amortized over the course of the lease, and were deductible in the year incurred. Toronto College Park v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6088 (S.C.C.), reversing 96 DTC 6407 (F.C.A.). Canderel Limited v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6100 (S.C.C.), reversing 95 DTC 5101 (F.C.A.).

Although the circulars sent by a taxpayer to outline its position on take-over bids were not financial reports, they were required by securities legislation and their costs were deductible. The Queen v. Boulangerie St-Augustin Inc., 97 DTC 5012 (F.C.A.), affirming 95 DTC 164 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayers' rental losses could not be disallowed, under the reasonable expectation of profit test, without giving their enterprise a reasonable length of time beyond the three start-up years to prove itself capable of yielding profits. Tonn et al. v. The Queen, 96 DTC 6001 (F.C.A.).

(b) Capital outlay or loss — an outlay, loss or replacement of capital, a payment on account of capital or an allowance in respect of depreciation, obsolescence or depletion except as expressly permitted by this Part;

Editorial Note: The deduction (depreciation) of the cost of depreciable property is provided under the capital cost allowance provisions of paragraph 20(1)(a) and the regulations thereunder. The costs of certain intangible capital expenses are deductible under specific provisions (for example, financing costs and similar amounts under paragraphs 20(1)(c) through (f)). Most other intangible capital expenses fall into the "catch-all" category of eligible capital expenditure and are deducted (amortized) under paragraph 20(1)(b).

Considering that the only asset that a taxpayer was trying to maintain and preserve in a libel suit was a capital asset (his professional reputation), his legal expenses were not deductible. Upenieks v. The Queen et al., 94 DTC 6656 (F.C.A.).

When properties had been purchased for less than their normal capital value at that time, the expenditures needed (due to their condition) to restore them to their normal value was capital in nature. Fiore v. The Queen, 93 DTC 5215 (F.C.A.).

The taxpayer was in the business of open pit asbestos mining. As the size of the pit expanded, the taxpayer was required to purchase adjoining land from time to time in order to maintain the stability of the pit walls. The cost of the land purchases was found to be a deductible business expense rather than a capital expenditure. Johns-Manville Canada Inc. v. The Queen, 85 DTC 5373 (S.C.C.), reversing 82 DTC 6054 (F.C.A.), which reversed 79 DTC 5270 (F.C.T.D.).

Cost of a geological survey undertaken by a railway company to place the resulting information with interested members of the public in the hope that it would lead to development of the area and attract business was not a capital expenditure. The result of the survey was not an acquisition of an advantage of an enduring benefit but merely the procurement of some information. *Algoma Central Railway v. Editorial Note: The restriction in the predecessor to paragraph 18(1)(e) was apparently construed by reference to accounting principles; see the Supreme Court of Canada decision in the Time Motors case (69 DTC 5149). Whether the restriction in current paragraph 18(1)(e) is construed by reference to accounting principles or legal principles is explored in the Frankovic article cited below (see "Canadian Tax Foundation", below, at 41-50 of the article). The author concludes that legal principles should apply for the purpose of determining whether an amount is contingent.

Cases: Under a collective agreement, the taxpayer contributed to a contingency fund for employee programs. After previous court decisions held that these obligations were contingent, the documentation was amended specifically to create an absolute liability. Despite the amendment, the unexpended portion of the fund remained a contingent liability that was not deductible by virtue of s. 18(1)(e). The Queen v. General Motors of Canada Limited, 2008 DTC 6381 (F.C.A.), reversing 2007 DTC 272 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer acquired an interest in seismic data for a cash payment and a promissory note. He agreed to pay $85,000 plus 8% interest under the terms of the note and, accordingly, his liability was absolute. The fact that it was a limited-recourse debt and might not be repaid in full did not render the liability contingent. The Queen v. McLarty, 2008 DTC 6354 (S.C.C.), affirming in part 2006 DTC 6340 (F.C.A.), affirming in part 2005 DTC 217 (T.C.C.).

When the taxpayer purchased a property, it assumed whatever liability the vendor might have had for environmental clean up. The taxpayer could not add the "cost" of this assumed liability to the purchase price of the buildings and equipment for CCA purposes since no amount had actually been spent on clean-up and there was no evidence that the vendor actually had any legally enforceable liability. A & D Holdings Inc. v. The Queen, 2006 DTC 2219 (T.C.C.).

Under a collective agreement, the taxpayer established a contingency fund, from which payments were made to certain benefit plans when prescribed thresholds in those plans were reached. Payments were also made to an employee child care program upon acceptance of union requests. Annual allocations to the fund were not deductible since any obligation to make payments out of the fund was contingent. General Motors of Canada Limited v. The Queen, 2004 DTC 6716 (F.C.A.), affirming 2003 DTC 1533 (T.C.C.).

Employer contributions in respect of vacation pay were deductible in the year the contributions were made even though the vacations were not actually taken until a subsequent year. It is not a non-deductible reserve because the employer's obligation to pay such contributions is "incurred" as soon as the employee's entitlement to the vacation pay has been earned. Fédération des Caisses Populaires Desjardins de Montréal et al. v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 5173 (F.C.A.), reversing 99 DTC 1275 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer's Deferred Liability-Workmen's Compensation account was not a contingent account within the meaning of s.18(1)(e). Canadian Pacific Limited v. The Minister of Revenue (Ontario), 99 DTC 5286 (Ont. C.A.).

The estimated costs of a taxpayer's silviculture obligations under its provincial timber harvesting licence were not deductible since the obligation to pay them had not come into existence in the taxation years in issue. Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd. v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6640 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1104 (T.C.C.).

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

The portion of subsection 2(5) before paragraph (a) and 2(7) of An Act to Amend the Income Tax Act (Natural Resources) [S.C. 2003, c. 28, relating to the transitional rules and repeal of paragraph 18(1)(m) of the Income Tax Act] are replaced by the following:

(5) For each taxation year that ends after 2002 and begins before 2008, paragraph 18(1)(m) of the Act applies, notwithstanding paragraph 20(1)(v) of the Act, only to the percentage of each amount described by paragraph 18(1)(m) of the Act that is the total of

(7) Subsection (3) applies to taxation years that begin after 2007.

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note:

Act to Amend the Income Tax Act (Natural Resources)

Subsection 2(5) of the Act to Amend the Income Tax Act (Natural Resources) repealed paragraph 18(1)(m) of the Act effective for taxation years that begin after 2006. Subsection 2(5) is being amended with the result that paragraph 18(1)(m) is now being repealed effective for taxation years that begin after 2007. This amendment is being made to accommodate a reimbursement made in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006 and before 2008 in circumstances where the taxpayer's taxation year does not coincide with the taxation year or fiscal period of the recipient, as would normally be the case where the recipient of the reimbursement is a partnership of which the taxpayer is a member.

History: S. 18(1)(m) was repealed by S.C. 2003, c. 28, s. 2(3), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006. S. 18(1)(m) formerly read:

"(m) Royalties, etc. — any amount (other than a prescribed amount)

(i) that is paid or payable in the year to

(A) Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,

(B) an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, or

(C) a corporation, a commission or an association that is controlled by Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province or by an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, and

(ii) that can reasonably be considered to be a royalty, tax (other than a tax or portion of a tax that can reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax), lease rental or bonus, however described, or to be in respect of the late payment or non-payment of any of those amounts, in relation to

(A) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property, or

(B) the production in Canada

(I) of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) located in Canada, or from an oil or gas well located in Canada,

(II) of sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas located in Canada, from an oil or gas well located in Canada or from a mineral resource located in Canada,

(III) to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent, of metal, minerals (other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons) or coal from a mineral resource located in Canada,

(IV) to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, of iron from a mineral resource located in Canada, or

(V) to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent, of petroleum or related hydrocarbons from a deposit located in Canada of bituminous sands or oil shales;"

S. 18(1)(m) was replaced by S.C. 2003, c. 28, s. 2(2), applicable to amounts that become payable after December 20, 2002.

For each taxation year that ends after 2002 and begins before 2007, paragraph 18(1)(m) applies, notwithstanding paragraph 20(1)(v) of the Act, only to the percentage of each amount described by that paragraph 18(1)(m) that is the total of

(a) that proportion of 100% that the number of days in the taxation year that are before 2003 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(b) that proportion of 90% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2003 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(c) that proportion of 75% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2004 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(d) that proportion of 65% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2005 is of the number of days in the taxation year, and

(e) that proportion of 35% that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2006 is of the number of days in the taxation year.

[The application of paragraph 18(1)(m) for taxation years that end after 2002 and begin before 2007, noted above] does not apply for the purpose of applying any provision of Part XII of the Income Tax Regulations that makes reference to the income of a taxpayer.

S. 18(1)(m) formerly read:

"(m) Royalties, etc. — any amount (other than a prescribed amount) paid or payable by virtue of an obligation imposed by statute or a contractual obligation substituted for an obligation imposed by statute to

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province,

(ii) an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, or

(iii) a corporation, commission or association that is controlled by Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or by an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province

as a royalty, tax (other than a tax or portion of a tax that can reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax), lease rental or bonus or as an amount, however described, that can reasonably be regarded as being in lieu of any such amount, or in respect of the late payment or non-payment of any such amount, and that can reasonably be regarded as being in relation to

(iv) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property, or

(v) the production in Canada

(A) of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) located in Canada or from an oil or gas well located in Canada,

(B) of sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas located in Canada, from an oil or gas well located in Canada or from a mineral resource located in Canada,

(C) to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent, of metal, minerals (other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons) or coal from a mineral resource located in Canada,

(D) to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, of iron from a mineral resource located in Canada, or

(E) to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent, of petroleum or related hydrocarbons from tar sands from a mineral resource located in Canada,"

S. 18(1)(m), the portion after subparagraph (iii), was amended by S.C. 1997, c. 25, s. 4(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1996. That part formerly read:

"as a royalty, tax (other than a tax or portion of a tax that may reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax), lease rental or bonus or as an amount, however described, that may reasonably be regarded as being in lieu of any such amount, and that may reasonably be regarded as being in relation to

(iv) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property, or

(v) the production in Canada of

(A) petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas in Canada, other than a mineral resource, or from an oil or gas well in Canada,

(B) metal, minerals (other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons) or coal from a mineral resource in Canada to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent,

(C) iron from a mineral resource in Canada to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, or

(D) petroleum or related hydrocarbons from tar sands from a mineral resource in Canada to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent;"

S. 18(1)(m)(v)(B) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 13(1), applicable to amounts becoming payable after July 13, 1990. s. 13(1)(m)(v)(B) formerly read:

(ii) the cost to the corporation of any benefit or allowance provided to an incorporated employee in the year,

(iii) any amount expended by the corporation in connection with the selling of property or the negotiating of contracts by the corporation if the amount would have been deductible in computing the income of an incorporated employee for a taxation year from an office or employment if the amount had been expended by the incorporated employee under a contract of employment that required the employee to pay the amount, and

(iv) any amount paid by the corporation in the year as or on account of legal expenses incurred by it in collecting amounts owing to it on account of services rendered that would, if the income of the corporation were from a business other than a personal services business, be deductible in computing its income;

Editorial Note: Paragraph 18(1)(p) severely limits the expenses that can be claimed by a personal services business (essentially an "incorporated employee"). All deductions are disallowed except (i) remuneration paid (not payable) to an incorporated employee including benefits or allowances; (ii) selling expenses and similar expenses that would have been deductible in computing the individual's employment income if he or she had expended them; and (iii) legal expenses incurred in collecting amounts owing for services rendered.

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subsection 18(1) of the Act is amended by striking out the word "and" at the end of paragraph (u), by adding the word "and" at the end of paragraph (v) and by adding the following after paragraph (v):

(w) Underlying payments on qualified securities — except as expressly permitted, an amount that is deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as an amount described in any of paragraphs 260(5.1)(a) to (c).

Applicable: After 2001.

Explanatory Note:

Securities Lending Arrangement Compensation Payments

Section 260 of the Act provides special rules relating to securities lending arrangements. Former subsection 260(6) prohibited a borrower, other than in certain circumstances, from deducting in computing its income an amount paid as a compensation payment pursuant to a securities lending arrangement.

As part of the restructuring of section 260, particularly subsection 260(6), new paragraph 18(1)(w) is enacted to prohibit a borrower from deducting a compensation payment, except where expressly permitted by the Act. This new paragraph, therefore, continues the function of the former subsection 260(6).

This amendment applies after 2001.

(2) Limit on certain interest and property tax. Notwithstanding paragraph 20(1)(c), in computing the taxpayer's income for a particular taxation year from a business or property, no amount shall be deductible in respect of any expense incurred by the taxpayer in the year as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of,

(a) interest on debt relating to the acquisition of land, or

(b) property taxes (not including income or profits taxes or taxes computed by reference to the transfer of property) paid or payable by the taxpayer in respect of land to a province or to a Canadian municipality, unless, having regard to all the circumstances (including the cost to the taxpayer of the land in relation to the taxpayer's gross revenue, if any, from the land for the particular year or any preceding taxation year), the land can reasonably be considered to have been, in the year,

(c) used in the course of a business carried on in the particular year by the taxpayer, other than a business in the ordinary course of which land is held primarily for the purpose of resale or development, or

(d) held primarily for the purpose of gaining or producing income of the taxpayer from the land for the particular year, except to the extent of the total of (e) the amount, if any, by which the taxpayer's gross revenue, if any, from the land for the particular year exceeds the total of all amounts deducted in computing the taxpayer's income from the land for the year, and

(f) in the case of a corporation whose principal business is the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of real property owned by it, to or for a person with whom the corporation is dealing at arm's length, the corporation's base level deduction for the particular year.

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 3 — Amendments Relating to Bijuralism — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 18(2)(f) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(f) in the case of a corporation whose principal business is the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of real or immovable property owned by it, to or for a person with whom the corporation is dealing at arm's length, the corporation's base level deduction for the particular year.

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note: [See the Explanatory Note re amendments related to bijuralism following the amendment to paragraph 12(1)(o).]

Editorial Note: The exceptions in paragraphs 18(2)(c) and (d) are independent of the thresholds in paragraphs (e) and (f); in other words, if a taxpayer falls within one of the exceptions in paragraphs (c) and (d), there is no limitation to the deduction of interest or property taxes under subsection 18(2).

(B) is used, or is intended to be used, for a parking area, driveway, yard, garden or any other similar use, and

(C) is necessary for the use or intended use of the building; and

(b) the amount of such an outlay or expense shall, to the extent that it would otherwise be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, be included in computing the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the building to the taxpayer, to the person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to the corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder or to the partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more, as the case may be.

History: S. 18(3.1)(b) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 9(2), applicable to outlays and expenses made or incurred after December 21, 2000. S. 18(3.1)(b) formerly read:

"(b) the amount of such an outlay or expense shall be included in computing the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the building to the taxpayer, to the person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to the corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder or to the partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more, as the case may be."

S. 18(3.1)(a), the portion preceding subparagraph (i), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 11(1), applicable after 1990 except that, in its application to buildings acquired before 1990, the reference in paragraph 18(3.1)(a) of the Act to "or subsection 20(29)" shall be read as ", subsection 20(29) or section 37 or 37.1". The portion formerly read:

"(a) no deduction shall be made in respect of any outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer (other than an amount deductible under paragraph 20(1)(a), (aa) or (gg) or subsection 20(29)) that can reasonably be regarded as a cost attributable to the period of the construction, renovation or alteration of a building by or on behalf of the taxpayer, a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, a corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder or a partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more and relating to the construction, renovation or alteration, or a cost attributable to that period and relating to the ownership during that period of land"

S. 18(3.1)(a), that portion preceding subparagraph (i), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 13(4), applicable to 1987 and subsequent taxation years except that, in its application with respect to buildings acquired before 1990, the reference in paragraph 18(3.1)(a) to "or subsection 20(29)" shall be read as ", subsection 20(29) or section 37 or 37.1".

S. 18(3.1)(a), that portion preceding subparagraph (i), formerly read:

"(a) no deduction shall be made in respect of any outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer, other than an amount deductible by reason of paragraph 20(1)(a) or (aa), that may reasonably be regarded as a cost attributable to the period of the construction, renovation or alteration of a building and relating to the construction, renovation or alteration or a cost attributable to that period and relating to the ownership during that period, of land"

Editorial Note: The construction-period expenses referred to in subsection 18(3.1) that are required to be capitalized are often referred to as "soft costs", and include the costs listed in subsection 18(3.3). Subsection 20(29) provides an exception to the capitalization of soft costs under subsection 18(3.1), and allows a taxpayer to deduct such costs incurred in a year to the extent of the taxpayer's rental income from the building computed before taking into account any capital cost allowance under subsection 20(28).

(3.2) Included costs. For the purposes of subsection (3.1), costs relating to the construction, renovation or alteration of a building or to the ownership of land include

(a) interest paid or payable by a taxpayer in respect of borrowed money that cannot be identified with a particular building or particular land, but that can reasonably be considered (having regard to all the circumstances) as interest on borrowed money used by the taxpayer in respect of the construction, renovation or alteration of a building or the ownership of land; and

(b) interest paid or payable by a taxpayer in respect of borrowed money that may reasonably be considered (having regard to all the circumstances) to have been used to assist, directly or indirectly,

(i) another person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(ii) a corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder, or

(iii) a partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more, to construct, renovate or alter a building or to purchase land, except where the assistance is in the form of a loan to that other person, corporation or partnership and a reasonable rate of interest on the loan is charged by the taxpayer.

► 18(3.3) ◄

(3.3) Completion. For the purposes of subsection (3.1), the construction, renovation or alteration of a building is completed at the earlier of the day on which the construction, renovation or alteration is actually completed and the day on which all or substantially all of the building is used for the purpose for which it was constructed, renovated or altered.

(3.4) Where s. (3.1) does not apply. Subsection (3.1) does not apply to prohibit a deduction in a taxation year of the specified percentage of any outlay or expense described in that subsection made or incurred before 1992 by

(a) a corporation whose principal business is throughout the year the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of real property owned by it to or for a person with whom the corporation is dealing at arm's length, or

(b) a partnership

(i) each member of which is a corporation described in paragraph (a), and

(ii) the principal business of which is throughout the year the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of real property held by it, to or for a person with whom each member of the partnership is dealing at arm's length,

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraphs 18(3.4)(a) and (b) of the Act are replaced by the following:

(a) a corporation whose principal business is throughout the year the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of real or immovable property owned by it, to or for a person with whom the corporation is dealing at arm's length, or

(b) a partnership

(i) each member of which is a corporation described in paragraph (a), and

(ii) the principal business of which is throughout the year the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of real or immovable property held by it, to or for a person with whom each member of the partnership is dealing at arm's length, and for the purposes of this subsection, "specified percentage" means, in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred in 1988, 80%, in 1989, 60%, in 1990, 40%, and in 1991, 20%.

Applicable: Royal Assent.

► 18(3.5) ◄

(3.5) Idem. Subsection (3.1) does not apply in respect of an outlay or expense in respect of a building or the land described in subparagraph (3.1)(a)(i) or (ii) in respect of the building,

(a) where the construction, renovation or alteration of the building was in progress on November 12, 1981,

(b) where the installation of the footings or other base support of the building commenced after November 12, 1981 and before 1982,

(c) if, in the case of a new building being constructed in Canada or an existing building being renovated or altered in Canada, arrangements, evidenced in writing, for the construction, renovation or alteration were substantially advanced before November 13, 1981 and the installation of footings or other base support for the new building or the renovation or alteration of the existing building, as the case may be, commenced before June 1, 1982, or

(d) if, in the case of a new building being constructed in Canada, the taxpayer was obligated to construct the building under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before November 13, 1981 and arrangements, evidenced in writing, respecting the construction of the building were substantially advanced before June 1, 1982 and the installation of footings or other base support for the building commenced before 1983, and the construction, renovation or alteration, as the case may be, of the building proceeds after 1982 without undue delay (having regard to acts of God, labour disputes, fire, accidents or unusual delay by common carriers or suppliers of materials or equipment).

History: S. 18(3.5), the portion preceding paragraph (a), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 13(5), applicable to outlays and expenses made or incurred after May 9, 1985. S. 18(3.5), the portion preceding paragraph (a), formerly read:

"(3.5) Subsection (3.1) does not apply in respect of an outlay or expense in respect of a building or the land described in subparagraph (3.1)(a)(i) or (ii),"

► 18(3.6) ◄

(3.6) Undue delay. For the purposes of subsection (3.5), where more than one building is being constructed under any of the circumstances described in that subsection on one site or on immediately contiguous sites, no undue delay shall be regarded as occurring in the construction of any such building if construction of at least one such building proceeds after 1982 without undue delay and continuous construction of all other such buildings proceeds after 1983 without undue delay.

► 18(3.7) ◄

(3.7) Commencement of footings. For the purposes of this section, the installation of footings or other base support for a building shall be deemed to commence on the first placement of concrete, pilings or other material that is to provide permanent support for the building.

► 18(4) ◄

(4) Limitation re deduction of interest by certain corporations. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, in computing the income for a taxation year of a corporation resident in Canada from a business or property, no deduction shall be made in respect of that proportion of any amount otherwise deductible in computing its income for the year in respect of interest paid or payable by it on outstanding debts to specified non-residents that

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the average of all amounts each of which is, in respect of a calendar month that ends in the year, the greatest total amount at any time in the month of the corporation's outstanding debts to specified non-residents,

exceeds

(ii) two times the total of

(A) the retained earnings of the corporation at the beginning of the year, except to the extent that those earnings include retained earnings of any other corporation,

(B) the average of all amounts each of which is the corporation's contributed surplus at the beginning of a calendar month that ends in the year, to the extent that it was contributed by a specified non-resident shareholder of the corporation, and

(C) the average of all amounts each of which is the corporation's paid-up capital at the beginning of a calendar month that ends in the year, excluding the paid-up capital in respect of shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation owned by a person other than a specified non-resident shareholder of the corporation,

is of

(b) the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(i) in respect of the corporation for the year.

Department of Finance Press Release

Finance Minister Clarifies Certain Income Tax Measures in the 2000 Budget

[Reproduced below is Department of Finance News Release 2000-039, dated May 9, 2000, concerning certain measures that were proposed in the February 28, 2000 Federal Budget.]

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced several clarifications to measures announced in the 2000 budget. These clarifications will ensure the smooth conduct of business transactions while consultations take place.

Thin Capitalization Rules

The thin capitalization rules in the Income Tax Act prevent foreign-owned corporations resident in Canada from using an excessive amount of debt when they capitalize their Canadian operations.

Minister Martin today announced the deferral of the budget measure that broadened the kind of debt covered by the thin capitalization rules to include loans to a Canadian corporation from a third party that are guaranteed or secured by a specified non-resident. In certain circumstances, including guaranteed debt in the scope of the thin capitalization rules, has raised concerns. Deferring this element of the thin capitalization provision will enable officials to consult broadly with a view to reaching a consensus on how best to define those guarantees that are equivalent to related party debt. Any resulting proposals will be brought forward on a fully prospective basis.

As indicated in the 2000 budget, interested parties will also be consulted on matters related to other business arrangements such as partnerships, trusts, branches and the use of leases.

Cases: Since the mortgage loan of the taxpayer and a corporation it had entered into a partnership agreement with was their debt and not that of the partnership, the thin capitalization rules applied. Wildenburg Holdings Limited v. Minister of Revenue (Ont.), 2001 DTC 5145 (Ont. C.A.).

The thin capitalization rules were used to restrict the corporate taxpayer's deduction of interest which it had paid on funds borrowed from two related U.S. corporations. The Canada–U.S. Tax Treaty does not operate to limit the application of the thin capitalization rules to the taxpayer's situation. Specialty Manufacturing Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5222 (F.C.A.), affirming 97 DTC 1511 (T.C.C.).

Since the mortgage loan the taxpayer and a corporation it had entered into a partnership agreement with was their debt and not that of the partnership, the taxpayer could not use the deeming provisions of s. 96(1) to prevent the application of the thin capitalization rules. *Wildenburg Holdings Ltd. v. "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" — "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" of a corporation at any particular time in a taxation year means

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount outstanding at that time as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount

(i) that was payable by the corporation to a person who was, at any time in the year,

(A) a specified non-resident shareholder of the corporation, or

(B) a non-resident person, or a non-resident-owned investment corporation, who was not dealing at arm's length with a specified shareholder of the corporation, and

(ii) on which any amount in respect of interest paid or payable by the corporation is or would be, but for subsection (4), deductible in computing the corporation's income for the year, but does not include

(b) an amount outstanding at the particular time as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount to

(i) a non-resident insurance corporation to the extent that the obligation was, for the non-resident insurance corporation's taxation year that included the particular time, designated insurance property in respect of an insurance business carried on in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation, or

(ii) an authorized foreign bank, if the bank uses or holds the obligation at the particular time in its Canadian banking business;

History: S. 18(5), paragraph (b) of the definition "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 9(4), applicable after June 27, 1999. S. 18(5), paragraph (b) of the definition "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" formerly read:

"(b) an amount outstanding at the particular time as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount to a non-resident insurance corporation to the extent that the amount was, for the non-resident insurance corporation's taxation year that included the particular time, designated insurance property in respect of an insurance business carried on in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation;"

Paragraph (b) of the definition "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" was amended by S.C. 1997, c. 25, s. 4(3), applicable to the 1997 and subsequent taxation years. That part formerly read:

"(b) any amount outstanding at the particular time as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount to a non-resident insurance corporation where the amount outstanding at the particular time was, in the non-resident insurance corporation's taxation year that included the particular time, included, for the purposes of section 138, as property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on an insurance business through a permanent establishment (within the meaning assigned for the purpose of subsection 112(2)) in Canada,"

Paragraph (b) of the definition "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 8(2), applicable to the 1991 and subsequent taxation years and, where a corporation so elected by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before December 11, 1993, to its 1985 and subsequent taxation years. Paragraph (b) of the definition "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" formerly read:

"(b) where the corporation is controlled by a non-resident insurance corporation, the total of all amounts each of which is an amount outstanding at the particular time as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount to the non-resident insurance corporation where the amount outstanding at the particular time has, in the non-resident insurance corporation's taxation year that included the particular time, been included as property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of (within the meaning assigned by the definition 'property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of' in subsection 138(12)) carrying on an insurance business in Canada;"

Editorial Note: See also subsection 18(9.2) regarding prepaid interest incurred by corporations, trusts and partnerships, and subsection 18(9.1) regarding early repayment penalties, bonuses, and interest-rate reduction payments. The CRA historically applied the matching principle of accounting to amortize or defer the deduction of expenses such as deferred charges that were similar in nature to prepaid expenses but not specifically covered by subsection 18(9). However, the CRA position was cast into doubt as a result of the Supreme Court decisions in Canderel and Toronto College Park cited below; in this regard, see also the lead article in Tax Topics No. 1805, October 12, 2006.

(9.01) Group term life insurance. Where

(a) a taxpayer pays a premium after February 1994 and before 1997 under a group term life insurance policy for insurance on the life of an individual,

(b) the insurance is for the remainder of the individual's lifetime, and

(c) no further premiums will be payable for the insurance, no amount may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business or property in respect of the premium except that there may be so deducted,

(d) where the year is the taxation year in which the premium was paid or a subsequent taxation year and the individual is alive at the end of the year, the lesser of

(i) the amount determined by the formula

and

(ii) 1/3 of the amount determined by the formula

$$\frac{A \times C}{365}$$

where

A is the amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, be deductible in respect of the premium in computing the taxpayer's income,

B is the total amount deductible in respect of the premium in computing the taxpayer's income for preceding taxation years, and

C is the number of days in the year, and (e) where the individual died in the year, the amount determined under subparagraph (d)(i).

History: S. 18(9.01) was added by S.C. 1995, c. 3, s. 6(2), applicable to premiums paid after February 1994 for insurance.

(d) as a penalty or bonus payable by the taxpayer because of the repayment by the taxpayer of all or part of the principal amount of the debt obligation before its maturity, the payment shall, to the extent that it can reasonably be considered to relate to, and does not exceed the value at that time of, an amount that, but for the reduction described in paragraph (c) or the repayment described in paragraph (d), would have been paid or payable by the taxpayer as interest on the debt obligation for a taxation year of the taxpayer ending after that time, be deemed,

(e) for the purposes of this Act, to have been paid by the taxpayer and received by the person or partnership at that time as interest on the debt obligation, and

(f) for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the business or property for the year, to have been paid or payable by the taxpayer in that year as interest pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest,

(i) in the case of a reduction described in paragraph (c), on the debt obligation, and

(ii) in the case of a repayment described in paragraph (d),

(A) where the repayment was in respect of all or part of the principal amount of the debt obligation that was borrowed money, except to the extent that the borrowed money was used by the taxpayer to acquire property, on borrowed money used in the year for the purpose for which the borrowed money that was repaid was used, and

(B) where the repayment was in respect of all or part of the principal amount of the debt obligation that was either borrowed money used to acquire property or an amount payable for property acquired by the taxpayer, on the debt obligation to the extent that the property or property substituted therefor is used by the taxpayer in the year for the purpose of gaining or producing income therefrom or for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business.

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 18(14)(c) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(c) the disposition is not a disposition that is deemed to have occurred by section 70, subsection 104(4), section 128.1, paragraph 132.2(3)(a) or (c) or subsection 138(11.3) or 149(10);

Applicable: To dispositions that occur after 1998.

Explanatory Note:

Losses — Adventurers in Trade

Subsection 18(14) of the Act describes the circumstances in which the loss-deferral rule in subsection 18(15) applies to dispositions of property that is described in an inventory of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade. Paragraph 18(14)(c) excludes from the application of the rule dispositions under specified provisions of the Act. As a consequence of the restructuring of section 132.2 of the Act, the reference in paragraph 18(14)(c) to paragraph 132.2(1)(f) is replaced by references to paragraphs 132.2(3)(a) and (c).

This amendment applies to dispositions that occur after 1998.

(d) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor acquires property (in this subsection and subsection (15) referred to as the "substituted property") that is, or is identical to, the particular property; and

(e) at the end of the period, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor owns the substituted property.

History: S. 18(14) was added by 1998, c. 19, s. 79(2), applicable to dispositions of property that occur after June 20, 1996, other than a disposition that occurred before 1997 to a person or partnership that was obliged on June 20, 1996 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day and, for the purpose of this subsection, a person or partnership shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person or partnership can be excused from performing the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act.

SECTION 18.1: [Matchable Expenditures].

▶ 18.1(1) ◀

(1) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"matchable expenditure" — "matchable expenditure" of a taxpayer means the amount of an expenditure that is made by the taxpayer to

(a) acquire a right to receive production,

(b) fulfil a covenant or obligation arising in circumstances in which it is reasonable to conclude that a relationship exists between the covenant or obligation and a right to receive production, or

(c) preserve or protect a right to receive production, but does not include an amount for which a deduction is provided under section 20 in computing the taxpayer's income.

History: S. 18.1(1), the definition "matchable expenditure", was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

"right to receive production" — "right to receive production" means a right under which a taxpayer is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive an amount all or a portion of which is computed by reference to use of property, production, revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price, cost or value of property or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares where the amount is in respect of another taxpayer's activity, property or business but such a right does not include an income interest in a trust, a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property.

History: S. 18.1(1), the definition "right to receive production", was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

"tax benefit" — "tax benefit" means a reduction, avoidance or deferral of tax or other amount payable under this Act or an increase in a refund of tax or other amount under this Act.

History: S. 18.1(1), the definition "tax benefit", was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

"tax shelter" — "tax shelter" means a property that would be a tax shelter (as defined in subsection 237.1(1)) if

(a) the cost of a right to receive production were the total of all amounts each of which is a matchable expenditure to which the right relates; and

(b) subsections (2) to (13) did not apply for the purpose of computing an amount, or in the case of a partnership a loss, represented to be deductible.

History: S. 18.1(1), the definition "tax shelter", was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

"taxpayer" — "taxpayer" includes a partnership.

History: S. 18.1(1), the definition "taxpayer", was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(2) Limitation on the deductibility of matchable expenditure. In computing a taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, no amount of a matchable expenditure may be deducted except as provided by subsection (3).

History: S. 18.1(2) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(3) Deduction of matchable expenditure. If a taxpayer's matchable expenditure would, but for subsection (2) and this subsection, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income, there may be deducted in respect of the matchable expenditure in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year the amount that is determined under subsection (4) for the year in respect of the expenditure.

History: S. 18.1(3) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(4) Amount of deduction. For the purpose of subsection (3), the amount determined under this subsection for a taxation year in respect of a taxpayer's matchable expenditure is the amount, if any, that is the least of

(a) the total of

(i) the lesser of

(A) 1/5 of the matchable expenditure, and

(B) the amount determined by the formula

$$(A/B) \times C$$

where

A is the number of months that are in the year and after the day on which the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates is acquired,

B is the lesser of 240 and the number of months that are in the period that begins on the day on which the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates is acquired and that ends on the day the right is to terminate, and

C is the amount of the matchable expenditure, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under this paragraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the matchable expenditure exceeds the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year,

(b) the total of

(i) all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of such amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates, and

(ii) the amount by which the amount determined under this paragraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the matchable expenditure exceeds the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of the matchable expenditure that would, but for this section, have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of the matchable expenditure deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

History: S. 18.1(4) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(5) Special rules. For the purpose of this section,

(a) where a taxpayer's matchable expenditure is made before the day on which the related right to receive production is acquired by the taxpayer, the expenditure is deemed to have been made on that day;

(b) where a taxpayer has one or more rights to renew a particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates for one or more additional terms, after the term that includes the time at which the particular right was acquired, the particular right is deemed to terminate on the latest day on which the latest possible such term could terminate if all rights to renew the particular right were exercised;

(c) where a taxpayer has 2 or more rights to receive production that can reasonably be considered to be related to each other, the rights are deemed to be one right; and

(d) where the term of a taxpayer's right to receive production is for an indeterminate period, the right is deemed to terminate 240 months after it is acquired.

History: S. 18.1(5) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

► 18.1(6) ◄

(6) Proceeds of disposition considered income. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes of all or part of a right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates, the proceeds of the disposition shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

History: S. 18.1(6) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(7) Arm's length disposition. Subject to subsections (8) to (10), where in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes (otherwise than in a disposition to which subsection 87(1) or 88(1) applies) of all of the taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to this subsection, be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates, or the taxpayer's right expires, the amount deductible in respect of the expenditure under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year is deemed to be the amount, if any, determined under paragraph (4)(c) for the year in respect of the expenditure.

History: S. 18.1(7) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(8) Non-arm's length disposition. Subsection (10) applies where

(a) a taxpayer's particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to subsections (7) and (10), be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates has expired or the taxpayer has disposed of all of the right (otherwise than in a disposition to which subsection 87(1) or 88(1) applies);

(b) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the disposition or expiry, the taxpayer or a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer acquires a right to receive production (in this subsection and subsection (10) referred to as the "substituted property") that is, or is identical to, the particular right; and

(c) at the end of the period, the taxpayer or a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer owns the substituted property.

History: S. 18.1(8) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

► 18.1(9) ◄

(9) Special case. Subsection (10) applies where

(a) a taxpayer's particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to subsections (7) and (10), be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates has expired or the taxpayer has disposed of all of the right (otherwise than in a disposition to which subsection 87(1) or 88(1) applies); and

(b) during the period that begins at the time of the disposition or expiry and ends 30 days after that time, a taxpayer that had an interest, directly or indirectly, in the right has another interest, directly or indirectly, in another right to receive production, which other interest is a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment (as defined by section 143.2).

History: S. 18.1(9) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

► 18.1(10) ◄

(10) Amount of deduction if non-arm's length disposition. Where this subsection applies because of subsection (8) or (9) to a disposition or expiry in a taxation year or a preceding taxation year of a taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates,

(a) the amount deductible under subsection (3) in respect of the expenditure in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ends at or after the disposition or expiry of the right is the least of the amounts determined under subsection (4) for the year in respect of the expenditure; and

(b) the least of the amounts determined under subsection (4) in respect of the expenditure for a taxation year is deemed to be the amount, if any, determined under paragraph (4)(c) in respect of the expenditure for the year where the year includes the time that is immediately before the first time, after the disposition or expiry,

(i) at which the right would, if it were owned by the taxpayer, be deemed by section 128.1 or subsection 149(10) to have been disposed of by the taxpayer,

(ii) that is immediately before control of the taxpayer is acquired by a person or group of persons, if the taxpayer is a corporation,

(iii) at which winding-up of the taxpayer begins (other than a winding-up to which subsection 88(1) applies), if the taxpayer is a corporation,

(iv) if subsection (8) applies, at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the taxpayer nor a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer owns

(A) the substituted property, or

(B) a property that is identical to the substituted property and that was acquired after the day that is 31 days before the period began, or

(v) if subsection (9) applies, at which a 30-day period begins throughout which no taxpayer who had an interest, directly or indirectly, in the right has an interest, directly or indirectly, in another right to receive production if one or more of those direct or indirect interests in the other right is a tax shelter or tax shelter investment (as defined by section 143.2).

History: S. 18.1(10) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(11) Partnerships. For the purpose of paragraph (10)(b), where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after a disposition or expiry referred to in subsection (10), the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist, and each taxpayer who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this subsection, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership until the time that is immediately after the first of the times described in subparagraphs (10)(b)(i) to (v).

History: S. 18.1(11) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(12) Identical property. For the purposes of subsections (8) and (10), a right to acquire a particular right to receive production (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, hypothec, agreement of sale or similar obligation) is deemed to be a right to receive production that is identical to the particular right.

History: S. 18.1(12) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 202, applicable on Royal Assent, June 14, 2001. S. 18.1(12) formerly read:

"(12) Identical property. For the purposes of subsections (8) and (10), a right to acquire a particular right to receive production (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation) is deemed to be a right to receive production that is identical to the particular right."

S. 18.1(12) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(13) Application of section 143.2. For the purpose of applying section 143.2 to an amount that would, if this section were read without reference to this subsection, be a matchable expenditure any portion of the cost of which is deductible under subsection (3), the expenditure is deemed to be a tax shelter investment and that section shall be read without reference to subparagraph 143.2(6)(b)(ii).

History: S. 18.1(13) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

(14) Debt obligations. Where the rate of return on a taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to this subsection, be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates is reasonably certain at the time the taxpayer acquires the right,

(a) the right is, for the purposes of subsection 12(9) and Part LXX of the Income Tax Regulations, deemed to be a debt obligation in respect of which no interest is stipulated to be payable in respect of its principal amount and the obligation is deemed to be satisfied at the time the right terminates for an amount equal to the total of the return on the obligation and the amount that would otherwise be the matchable expenditure that is related to the right; and

(b) notwithstanding subsection (3), no amount may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of any matchable expenditure that relates to the right.

History: S. 18.1(14) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1), generally applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996. See the history note following s. 18.1(15) for the complete rules on the application of this provision.

► 18.1(15) ◄

(15) Non-applicability of section 18.1. Subject to subsections (1) and (14), this section does not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer and

(i) the taxpayer's expenditure cannot reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or tax shelter investment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 143.2(1)) and none of the main purposes for making the expenditure is that the taxpayer, or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, obtain a tax benefit, or

(ii) before the end of the taxation year in which the expenditure is made, the total of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of such an amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates exceeds 80% of the expenditure; or

(b) the expenditure is in respect of commissions or other expenses related to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer (in this paragraph referred to as the "reinsurer") and both the reinsurer and the person to whom the expenditure is made or is to be made are insurers subject to the supervision of

(i) the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, in the case of an insurer that is required by law to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, or

(ii) in any other case, the Superintendent of Insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province under whose laws the insurer is incorporated.

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subsection 18.1(15) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(15) Non-application — risks ceded between insurers. Subsections (2) to (13) do not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) the expenditure is in respect of commissions, or other expenses, related to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer; and

(b) the taxpayer and the person to whom the expenditure is made, or is to be made, are both insurers who are subject to the supervision of

(i) the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, if the taxpayer or that person, as the case may be, is an insurer who is required by law to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, or

(ii) the Superintendent of Insurance, or other similar officer or authority, of the province under whose laws the insurer is incorporated, in any other case.

(16) Non-application — no rights, tax benefits or shelters. Subsections (2) to (13) do not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) no portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person or partnership with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer;

(b) no portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 143.2(1)); and

(c) none of the main purposes for making the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been to obtain a tax benefit for the taxpayer, a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or a person or partnership that holds, directly or indirectly, an interest in the taxpayer.

(17) Revenue exception. Paragraph (4)(a) does not apply in determining the amount for a taxation year that may be deducted in respect of a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) before the end of the taxation year in which the matchable expenditure is made, the total of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of any of those amounts that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production that relates to the matchable expenditure exceeds 80% of the matchable expenditure; and

(b) no portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person or partnership with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer.

Applicable: [Subject to the application in (3) below, the amendment to subsection 18.1(15) and the addition of subsections 18.1(16) and (17)] apply in respect of expenditures made by a taxpayer on or after September 18, 2001 in respect of a right to receive production, except if

(a) the expenditure was

(i) required to be made under a written agreement made by the taxpayer before September 18, 2001,

(ii) made under, or described in, the terms of a prospectus, preliminary prospectus or registration statement that was, before September 18, 2001, filed with a public authority in Canada in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of a province and, if required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority before September 18, 2001, or

(iii) made under, or described in, the terms of an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities if

(A) the memorandum contains a complete, or substantially complete, description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

(B) the memorandum was distributed before September 18, 2001,

(C) solicitations in respect of a sale of the securities contemplated in the offering were made before September 18, 2001, and

(D) the sale of the securities contemplated in the offering was substantially in accordance with the memorandum;

(b) the expenditure was made before 2002;

(c) the expenditure was made in consideration for services that were rendered in Canada before 2002 in respect of an activity, or a business, all or substantially all of which was carried on in Canada;

(d) there is no agreement, or other arrangement, under which the obligation of any taxpayer in respect of the expenditure can, on or after September 18, 2001, be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to, or an adverse assessment under, the Act;

(e) if the right to receive production is, or is related to, a tax shelter investment, a tax shelter identification number in respect of the tax shelter was obtained before September 18, 2001; and

(f) if the expenditure was made under, or described in, the terms of a document that is a prospectus, a preliminary prospectus, a registration statement or an offering memorandum (and regardless of whether the expenditure was also made under a written agreement)

(i) all of the funds raised pursuant to the document that may reasonably be used to make a matchable expenditure were received by the taxpayer before 2002,

(ii) all or substantially all of the securities distributed pursuant to the document for the purpose of raising the funds described in subparagraph (i) were acquired before 2002 by a person who is not

(A) a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities, other than an agent of the promoter who acquired the security as principal and not for resale,

(B) a vendor of the right to receive production,

(C) a broker or dealer in securities, other than a person who acquired the security as principal and not for resale, or

(D) a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person to whom clause (A) or (B) applies, and

(iii) all or substantially all of the funds raised pursuant to the document before 2002 were used to make expenditures that were required to be made pursuant to agreements in writing made before September 18, 2001.

(3) The amendment to subsection 18.1(15) and the addition of subsections 18.1(16) and (17) do not apply to an expenditure made by a taxpayer in respect of a right to receive production in respect of a particular film or video production if

(a) expenditures in respect of the particular film or video production

(i) were made before September 18, 2001 (as determined, for the purpose of this paragraph, without reference to subsection 143.2(10) of the Act, except if a repaid amount for the purposes of that subsection is paid after 2002), or

(ii) were required to be made by the taxpayer under a written agreement made before September 18, 2001 by the taxpayer;

(b) principal photography of the particular film or video production

(i) began before 2002,

(ii) was primarily completed before April 2002, and

(iii) was conducted primarily in Canada;

(c) the expenditure

(i) was made before April 2002 in the course of the taxpayer's business of providing film production services in respect of the particular film or video production (as determined for the purpose of this subparagraph without reference to subsection 143.2(10), except to the extent that a repaid amount for the purposes of that subsection is paid after 2002),

(ii) was made under, or described in, the terms of

(A) a prospectus, preliminary prospectus or registration statement that was, before September 18, 2001, filed with a public authority in Canada in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of a province and, if required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority before September 18, 2001, or

(B) an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities if

(I) the memorandum contains a complete, or substantially complete, description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

(II) the memorandum was distributed before September 18, 2001,

(III) solicitations in respect of a sale of the securities contemplated in the offering have been made before September 18, 2001, and

(IV) the sale of the securities contemplated in the offering was substantially in accordance with the memorandum, and

(iii) was not an amount in respect of advertising, marketing, promotion or market research;

(d) except where the particular film or video production is a designated production of the taxpayer, at least 75% of the total of all expenditures, each of which is an expenditure made by the taxpayer in the course of the business referred to in subparagraph (c)(i), is an expenditure described for the purpose of that subparagraph made in consideration for the supply of goods or services that are supplied or rendered in Canada before April 2002 by persons that are subject to tax on the expenditure under Part I or XIII of the Act;

(e) there is no agreement, or other arrangement, under which the obligation of any taxpayer to acquire a security distributed pursuant to the prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum can, after September 18, 2001, be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to, or an adverse assessment under, the Act;

(f) if the right to receive production is, or is related to, a tax shelter investment, a tax shelter identification number in respect of the tax shelter was obtained before September 18, 2001;

(g) all of the funds raised pursuant to the prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum that may reasonably be used to make a matchable expenditure before April 2002 in respect of the particular film or video production are received by the taxpayer before 2003;

(h) all of the securities distributed pursuant to the prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum for the purpose of raising the funds described in paragraph (g) were acquired before 2002;

(i) all or substantially all of the securities distributed pursuant to the prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum for the purpose of raising the funds described in paragraph (g) were acquired by a person who is not

(i) a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities, other than an agent of the promoter who acquired the security as principal and not for resale,

(ii) a vendor of the right to receive production,

(iii) a broker or dealer in securities, other than a person who acquired the security as principal and not for resale, or

(iv) a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii); and

(j) except where the particular film or video production is a designated production of the taxpayer, all or substantially all of the matchable expenditures made by the taxpayer that are wholly attributable to the principal photography of the particular film or video production are wholly attributable to principal photography conducted in Canada.

(4) For the purpose of paragraphs (3)(d) and (j) [above], a designated production of a taxpayer is

(a) a film or video production in respect of which

(i) all of the expenditures made by the taxpayer in respect of the particular film or video production were required to be made under a written agreement made by the taxpayer before September 18, 2001,

(ii) if the taxpayer is a partnership,

(A) the taxpayer's expenditures in respect of the particular film or video production were funded, in whole or in part, with funds raised from the initial contribution of capital of members of the taxpayer, pursuant to subscriptions in writing for the issue of units in the taxpayer,

(B) all or substantially all of those written subscriptions were received by the taxpayer on or before September 18, 2001,

(C) at least one member of the taxpayer referred to in subparagraph (i) is a partnership (in this subsection referred to as a "master partnership"),

(D) the subscriptions in writing of all master partnerships for units in the taxpayer were funded, in whole or in part, with funds raised from the initial contribution of capital of members of the master partnerships, pursuant to subscriptions in writing for the issue of units in the master partnerships, and

(E) all or substantially all of the subscriptions in writing referred to in clause (D) were received by the master partnership on or before September 18, 2001,

(iii) if a member of a particular master partnership is a partnership (in this subsection referred to as an "original master partnership"),

(A) the subscriptions in writing of all original master partnerships for units in the particular master partnership were funded, in whole or in part, with funds raised from the initial contribution of capital of members of the original master partnerships, pursuant to subscriptions in writing for the issue of units in the original master partnerships, and

(B) all or substantially all of those written subscriptions were received by the original master partnership on or before September 18, 2001, and

(iv) no member of an original master partnership is a partnership, an interest in which is a tax shelter; or

(b) a film or video production in respect of which

(i) principal photography was all or substantially all complete before September 18, 2001, and

(ii) all or substantially all of the taxpayer's expenditures were made on or before September 18, 2001 (as determined, for the purpose of this paragraph, without reference to subsection 143.2(10), except if a repaid amount for the purposes of that subsection is paid after 2002).

Explanatory Note: Section 18.1 of the Act provides rules that restrict the deductibility of a taxpayer's cost of a "right to receive production", by prorating the deductibility of the amount of the investment over the economic life of the right. In the transactions that are subject to these rules, investors undertake to pay expenditures that would otherwise be expenses payable by the "vendor" (e.g., payroll, selling commissions) in exchange for a right to receive future income (a "right to receive production"), usually from the vendor's business operations. Such an expenditure by the taxpayer, referred to as a "matchable expenditure", is defined in subsection 18.1(1) of the Act.

Subsection 18.1(15) of the Act provides two general exceptions to the application of the matchable expenditure rules. One such exception, in paragraph 18.1(15)(b), generally applies where the matchable expenditure relates to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer. This exception remains unchanged other than changes in numbering.

Paragraph 18.1(15)(a) provides the other exception to the matchable expenditure rules, applicable only if no part of the expenditure of the taxpayer can reasonably considered to have been paid to another person to acquire the right to receive production from that person. If this condition is met, the expenditures must meet one of two further criteria. Subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(i) allows the exception if the taxpayer's expenditure cannot reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter investment and none of the main purposes of making the expenditure is to obtain a tax benefit. Alternatively, subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(ii) allows the exception if, in the same year as the matchable expenditure is made, the total revenues of the taxpayer from the right to receive production exceed 80% of the expenditure. If this 80% revenue threshold is met, the portion of the expenditure that is deductible is limited only by general rules that apply to all business expenditures.

Subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(i) is renumbered as new subsection 18.1(16) and remains unchanged. The alternative exception in subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(ii) (the 80% revenue threshold) is renumbered as new subsection 18.1(17) and no longer provides a general exception to the application of the matchable expenditure rules. This amended rule provides that if any portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment, subsection 18.1(4), which requires the amortization of the expenditure (subject to an income limit), will apply without reference to paragraph 18.1(4)(a). The result is that the cumulative amount deducted in respect of a matchable expenditure may not exceed the taxpayer's cumulative revenue from the associated right to receive production.

The amendments to section 18.1 generally apply in respect of expenditures made by a taxpayer on or after September 18, 2001.

History: S. 18.1(15) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 10(1), applicable to expenditures made after November 17, 1996. S. 18.1(15) formerly read:

"(15) Non-applicability of section 18.1. Subject to subsections (1) and (14), this section does not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer and

(a) the taxpayer's expenditure cannot reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or tax shelter investment (as defined by section 143.2) and none of the main purposes for making the expenditure is that the taxpayer, or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, obtain a tax benefit; or

(b) before the end of the taxation year in which the expenditure is made, the total of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of such an amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates exceeds 80% of the expenditure."

S. 18.1(15) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 80(1). Subsections 18.1(1) to 18.1(15) are applicable to every expenditure made by a taxpayer or a partnership after November 17, 1996 other than, in respect of a particular right to receive production, such an expenditure made

(a) before 1997 under an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer or the partnership before 1997 to acquire the particular right

(i) in return for paying selling commissions incurred before 1997 in connection with the distribution of shares of a mutual fund corporation or units of mutual fund trust, or

(ii) to render production services before 1997 for a film or video production, and, for the purpose of applying this paragraph, the expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made and, if subparagraph (ii) applies, only to the extent the services were rendered at or before that time,

(b) before August 1997 if

(i) the expenditure was made under an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer or the partnership before August 1997 to acquire the particular right in return for paying selling commissions incurred after 1996 and before August 1997 in connection with the distribution of shares of a mutual fund corporation or units of a mutual fund trust that is managed by an administrator of mutual funds,

(ii) the particular right to receive production is identified in an advance income tax ruling request delivered to Revenue Canada before November 18, 1996,

(iii) the total of all such expenditures made by any taxpayer or partnership in respect of all of the rights identified in the advance income tax ruling request does not exceed $30,000,000, and

(iv) all tax shelter investments (as defined in section 143.2 of the Act) that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure were acquired before August 1997, and, for the purpose of applying this paragraph, an expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made,

(c) before August 1997 if

(i) the expenditure is made under an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer or the partnership before August 1997 to acquire the particular right in return for paying selling commissions incurred after 1996 and before August 1997 in connection with the distribution of shares of a mutual fund corporation or units of a mutual fund trust that is managed by an administrator of mutual funds, other than by an administrator of a mutual fund that is or is related to an administrator to which paragraph (b) refers in respect of commissions incurred in connection with the distribution of the shares or units described in paragraph (b),

(ii) the total of all such expenditures made by any taxpayer or partnership to acquire particular rights in return for paying selling commissions in connection with the distribution of shares of the mutual fund corporation or units of the mutual fund trust that is managed by the administrator of mutual funds or any other person that is related to the administrator does not exceed $10,000,000, and

(iii) all tax shelter investments (as defined in section 143.2 of the Act) that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure were acquired before August 1997, and, for the purpose of applying this paragraph, an expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made,

(d) before November 1997 under an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer or the partnership before November 1997 to acquire the particular right and to render production services before November 1997 for a film or video production if

(i) at least 75% of the expenditures made in respect of the film or video production by the taxpayer or partnership pertain to services performed in Canada by residents of Canada, and

(ii) all tax shelter investments (as defined in section 143.2 of the Act) that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure were acquired before November 1997,

and, for the purpose of applying this paragraph, the expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made and only to the extent the services are rendered at or before that time,

(e) before 1998, under an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer or the partnership before November 18, 1996 to acquire the particular right and, for the purpose of this paragraph, if the expenditure relates to service obligations to be fulfilled by the taxpayer or partnership, the expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made and only to the extent the services are rendered at or before that time,

(f) before 1998, pursuant to the terms of a document that is a prospectus, preliminary prospectus or registration statement if

(i) the document was filed before November 18, 1996 with a public authority in Canada in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of any province and, where required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority,

(ii) the particular right is identified in the document, and

(iii) all the funds raised pursuant to the document were raised before 1997 and all tax shelter investments (as defined in section 143.2 of the Act), that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure, were acquired before August 1997,

and, for the purpose of applying this paragraph, if an expenditure relates to service obligations to be fulfilled by the taxpayer or partnership, the expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made and only to the extent the services are rendered at or before that time, or

(g) before 1998, pursuant to the terms of an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities if

(i) the memorandum contained a complete or substantially complete description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

(ii) the memorandum was distributed before November 18, 1996,

(iii) solicitations in respect of the sale of the securities contemplated by the memorandum were made before November 18, 1996,

(iv) the sale of the securities was substantially in accordance with the memorandum,

(v) the particular right is identified in the document, and

(vi) all the funds raised pursuant to the memorandum were raised before 1997 and all tax shelter investments (as defined in section 143.2 of the Act) that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure were acquired before August 1997,

and, for the purpose of applying this paragraph, if an expenditure relates to service obligations to be fulfilled by the taxpayer or partnership, the expenditure is deemed to have been made no earlier than the time and only to the extent it is considered for the purposes of the Act to have been made and only to the extent the services are rendered at or before that time, except that paragraphs (e), (f) and (g) apply to an expenditure only if

(h) there is no agreement or other arrangement under which the obligations of the taxpayer or the partnership with respect to the expenditure can be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act,

(i) where the expenditure is associated with one or more tax shelters sold or offered for sale at a time and in circumstances in which section 237.1 of the Act requires an identification number to have been obtained, the identification number was obtained before that time, and

(j) in the case of an expenditure, including an expenditure to which paragraph (e) applies, made pursuant to a document described in paragraph (f) or (g), a portion of the securities authorized to be sold in 1996 pursuant to the document were after 1995 and before November 18, 1996 sold to, or subscribed for by, a person who was not at the time of sale or subscription

(i) a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities,

(ii) a grantor of the right to receive production to which the expenditure relates,

(iii) a broker or dealer in securities, or

(iv) a person who did not deal at arm's length with a person referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii).

SECTION 18.2: [Double-Dip Financing]. [Repealed by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 6(1).]

Editorial Note: S. 18.2 was enacted following the 2007 Federal Budget applicable in respect of interest and other borrowing costs paid or payable in respect of a period or periods beginning after 2011. Therefore, effective January 1, 2012, section 18.2 would have restricted the deductibility of interest and other borrowing costs incurred by a Canadian corporate taxpayer generally where such borrowing had also given rise to an interest for foreign tax purposes — the so-called "double dip". The 2009 Federal Budget proposed that s. 18.2 be repealed before it became applicable, and the repeal was enacted by S.C. 2009, c. 2. The government cited the recommendations of the Advisory Panel on Canada's System of International Taxation in terms of the potential effects of s. 18.2 on foreign investment by Canadian multinational firms as reason for the repeal.

History: S. 18.2 was repealed by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 6(1), applicable in respect of interest and other borrowing costs paid or payable in respect of a period or periods that begin after 2011. S. 18.2(1) was previously added by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 12(1), applicable in respect of interest and other borrowing costs paid or payable in respect of the same period.

SECTION 19:

▶ 19(1) ◀

(1) Limitation re advertising expense — newspapers. In computing income, no deduction shall be made in respect of an otherwise deductible outlay or expense of a taxpayer for advertising space in an issue of a newspaper for an advertisement directed primarily to a market in Canada unless

(a) the issue is a Canadian issue of a Canadian newspaper; or

(b) the issue is an issue of a newspaper that would be a Canadian issue of a Canadian newspaper except that

(i) its type has been wholly set in the United States or has been partly set in the United States with the remainder having been set in Canada, or

(ii) it has been wholly printed in the United States or has been partly printed in the United States with the remainder having been printed in Canada.

History: S. 19(1), the portion before subparagraph (b)(i) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 11(1), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000. S. 19(1), the portion before subparagraph (b)(i) formerly read:

"S. 19. Limitation re advertising expense.

(1) In computing income, no deduction shall be made in respect of an otherwise deductible outlay or expense of a taxpayer for advertising space in an issue of a newspaper or periodical for an advertisement directed primarily to a market in Canada unless

(a) the issue is a Canadian issue of a Canadian newspaper or periodical dated after 1975; or

(b) the issue is an issue of a newspaper or periodical dated after December 31, 1988 that would be a Canadian issue of a Canadian newspaper or periodical except that"

and, for the purposes of clause (B), where shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this definition to be owned, at any time by another corporation (in this definition referred to as the "holding corporation"), other than a public corporation a class or classes of shares of the capital stock of which are listed on a designated stock exchange in Canada, each shareholder of the holding corporation shall be deemed to own at that time that proportion of the number of such shares of that class that

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation owned at that time by the shareholder

is of

(D) the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation outstanding at that time, and, where at any time shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or are deemed by this definition to be owned, by a partnership, each member of the partnership shall be deemed to own at that time the least proportion of the number of such shares of that class that

(E) the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership from any source for its fiscal period that includes that time

is of

(F) the income or loss of the partnership from that source for its fiscal period that includes that time, and for this purpose, where the income and loss of a partnership from any source for a fiscal period are nil, the partnership shall be deemed to have had income from that source for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

(5.1) Interpretation. In this section, each of the following is deemed to be a Canadian citizen:

(a) a trust or corporation described in paragraph 149(1)(o) or (o.1) formed in connection with a pension plan that exists for the benefit of individuals a majority of whom are Canadian citizens;

(b) a trust described in paragraph 149(1)(r) or (x), the annuitant in respect of which is a Canadian citizen;

(c) a mutual fund trust, within the meaning assigned by subsection 132(6), other than a mutual fund trust the majority of the units of which are held by citizens or subjects of a country other than Canada;

(d) a trust, each beneficiary of which is a person, partnership, association or society described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "Canadian newspaper" in subsection (5); and

(e) a person, association or society described in paragraph (c) or (d) of the definition "Canadian newspaper" in subsection (5).

History: S. 19(5.1) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 11(5), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after June 1996 except that, in applying subsection 19(5.1) to advertisements placed in an issue dated after June 1996 and before June 2000, the references in subsection 19(5.1) to "Canadian newspaper" shall be read as references to "Canadian newspaper or periodical".

► 19(6) ◄

(6) Trust property. Where the right that is held by any person, partnership, association or society described in the definition "Canadian newspaper" in subsection (5) to produce and publish issues of a newspaper is held as property of a trust or estate, the newspaper is not a Canadian newspaper unless each beneficiary under the trust or estate is a person, partnership, association or society described in that definition.

History: S. 19(6) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 11(6), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000. S. 19(6) formerly read:

"(6) Trust property. Where the right that is held by any person, partnership, association or society described in the definition 'Canadian newspaper or periodical' in subsection (5) to produce and publish issues of a newspaper or periodical is held as property of a trust or estate, the newspaper or periodical is not a Canadian newspaper or periodical within the meaning of this section unless each beneficiary under the trust or estate is a person, partnership, association or society so described."

► 19(7) ◄

(7) Grace period. A Canadian newspaper that would, but for this subsection, cease to be a Canadian newspaper, is deemed to continue to be a Canadian newspaper until the end of the 12th month that follows the month in which it would, but for this subsection, have ceased to be a Canadian newspaper.

History: S. 19(7) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 11(6), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000. S. 19(7) formerly read:

"(7) Grace period. Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, where a newspaper or periodical that was at any time after June 30, 1965 a Canadian newspaper or periodical within the meaning of this section subsequently ceases to be such a Canadian newspaper or periodical, the newspaper or periodical shall be deemed to continue to be a Canadian newspaper or periodical within the meaning of this section until the expiration of the 12th month following the month in which it so ceased to be a Canadian newspaper or periodical."

(8) Non-Canadian newspaper. Where at any time one or more persons or partnerships that are not described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "Canadian newspaper" in subsection (5) have any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of a person or partnership that holds a right to produce or publish issues of a newspaper, the newspaper is deemed not to be a Canadian newspaper at that time.

History: S. 19(8) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 11(6), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000. S. 19(8) formerly read:

"(8) Non-Canadian newspaper or periodical. Where at any time one or more persons or partnerships that are not described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition 'Canadian newspaper or periodical' in subsection (5) have any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of a person or partnership that holds a right to produce or publish issues of a newspaper or periodical, the newspaper or periodical is deemed not to be a Canadian newspaper or periodical at that time."

S. 19(8) was added by S.C. 1995, c. 46, s. 5(1), applicable December 15, 1995, except that it does not apply to a newspaper or periodical where the influence that would result in control in fact of a person or partnership that holds the right to produce or publish the newspaper or periodical arose as a consequence of a transaction or series of transactions that was completed before April 1993.

SECTION 19.01:

(1) Definitions. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"advertisement directed at the Canadian market" — "advertisement directed at the Canadian market" has the same meaning as the expression "directed at the Canadian market" in section 2 of the Foreign Publishers Advertising Services Act and includes a reference to that expression made by or under that Act.

History: S. 19.01(1), the definition "advertisement directed at the Canadian market" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 12(1), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000.

"original editorial content" — "original editorial content" in respect of an issue of a periodical means non-advertising content

(a) the author of which is a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada within the meaning assigned by the Immigration Act and, for this purpose, "author" includes a writer, a journalist, an illustrator and a photographer; or

(b) that is created for the Canadian market and has not been published in any other edition of that issue of the periodical published outside Canada.

History: S. 19.01(1), the definition "original editorial content" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 12(1), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000.

"periodical" — "periodical" has the meaning assigned by section 2 of the Foreign Publishers Advertising Services Act.

History: S. 19.01(1), the definition "periodical" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 12(1), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000.

► 19.01(2) ◄

(2) Limitation re advertising expenses — periodicals. Subject to subsections (3) and (4), in computing income, no deduction shall be made by a taxpayer in respect of an otherwise deductible outlay or expense for advertising space in an issue of a periodical for an advertisement directed at the Canadian market.

History: S. 19.01(2) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 12(1), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000.

History: S. 19.01(6) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 12(1), applicable in respect of advertisements placed in an issue dated after May 2000.

SECTION 19.1:

► 19.1(1) ◄

(1) Limitation re advertising expense on broadcasting undertaking. Subject to subsection (2), in computing income, no deduction shall be made in respect of an otherwise deductible outlay or expense of a taxpayer made or incurred after September 21, 1976 for an advertisement directed primarily to a market in Canada and broadcast by a foreign broadcasting undertaking.

► 19.1(2) ◄

(2) Exception. In computing income, a deduction may be made in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred before September 22, 1977 for an advertisement directed primarily to a market in Canada and broadcast by a foreign broadcasting undertaking pursuant to

(a) a written agreement entered into on or before January 23, 1975; or

(b) a written agreement entered into after January 23, 1975 and before September 22, 1976 if the agreement is for a term of one year or less and by its express terms is not capable of being extended or renewed.

► 19.1(3) ◄

(3) Limitation to exception in paragraph (2)(a). [Repealed by 1977-78, c. 1, s. 13(2).]

► 19.1(4) ◄

(4) Definitions. In this section,

"foreign broadcasting undertaking" — "foreign broadcasting undertaking" means a network operation or a broadcasting transmitting undertaking located outside Canada or on a ship or aircraft not registered in Canada;

"network" — "network" includes any operation involving two or more broadcasting undertakings whereby control over all or any part of the programs or program schedules of any of the broadcasting undertakings involved in the operation is delegated to a network operator.

Cases: When the taxpayer purchased a property, it assumed whatever liability the vendor might have had for environmental clean up. The taxpayer could not add the "cost" of this assumed liability to the purchase price of the buildings and equipment for CCA purposes since no amount had actually been spent on clean-up and there was no evidence that the vendor actually had any legally enforceable liability. A & D Holdings Inc. v. The Queen, 2006 DTC 2219 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer purchased equipment and circuitously leased it back to the vendor, while using prepayment arrangements and bonds to minimize financial risk. The Court rejected the Minister's argument that, without real financial risk or economic cost, GAAR should be used to deny CCA claims. There is nothing in GAAR or the object of the CCA provisions that permits "cost" to be interpreted as "amount economically at risk". The Queen v. Canada Trustco

Federal Budget Extract
Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses

[Reproduced below is an excerpt from the February 23, 2005 Federal Budget that sets out an update from the Department of Finance on the proposals that were released on October 31, 2003. See proposed section 3.1. There have been no more recent updates on these proposals.]

In October 2003, the Department of Finance released for public consultation a package of legislative proposals regarding the deductibility, for income tax purposes, of interest and other expenses. The proposals responded to certain court decisions that departed significantly from what had been the accepted understanding of the law in this area.

In computing income from a business or property, a taxpayer can deduct many kinds of expenses, provided they were incurred in order to earn the income. A familiar example is interest on borrowed money, which is deductible only if the borrowed money is used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property.

In this context, "income" had been understood to be a net amount comparable to profit, and to exclude capital gains. The court decisions, however, took a different view: income was read as the equivalent of gross revenue, and the distinction between income and capital gains was blurred.

The 2003 proposals were intended to restore the law on these points to its more familiar and more appropriate state.

An extended period of public consultation on the proposals ended in August 2004. Many commentators expressed concerns with the proposals' structure: in particular, that the proposals' codification of an objective "reasonable expectation of profit" test might inadvertently limit the deductibility of a wide variety of ordinary commercial expenses. The Department of Finance has sought to respond by developing a more modest legislative initiative that would respond to those concerns while still achieving the Government's objectives. The Department will, at an early opportunity, release that alternative proposal for comment. This will be combined with a Canada Revenue Agency publication that addresses, in the context of the alternative proposal, certain administrative questions relating to deductibility.

Department of Finance Comfort Letter
[Reserve for Premium on Bond Issue]

October 24, 2001

Dear XXXX

I am writing in response to your letter dated October 17, 2001 concerning the income tax treatment of a premium received by a taxpayer upon the re-opening of a bond issue where the bond's interest rate is higher than the market rate of interest for similar debt instruments at the time of such re-opening.

You have requested that we consider recommending a provision that would permit a taxpayer to claim a reserve in respect of such a premium with the intended effect that the income tax treatment would follow the accounting treatment. This would avoid having the premium included in income at the outset, only to be offset by increased interest expense over the remaining term of the debt.

We are sympathetic to your request. Consequently it will be recommended to the Minister of Finance that an amendment be introduced to the Act that will have the effect of matching the premium income and the enhanced interest expense that gives rise to the premium. Our recommendation regarding the timing of the effective date will likely depend on the exact nature of our recommendation, however, we would, at a minimum, recommend that a taxpayer be able to elect to have the amendment apply to debts issued after 2000.

While I can, as you know, offer no assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will accept our recommendation, I have no reason to believe that this would be controversial.

We trust that this letter addresses your concerns.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director
Tax Legislation Division
Tax Policy Branch

History: S. 20(1)(c)(iv) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 15(1), applicable to contracts last acquired after 1989, S. 20(1)(c)(iv) formerly read:

"(iv) borrowed money used to acquire an interest in an annuity contract to which section 12.2 applies, except that, where annuity payments have commenced under the contract in a preceding taxation year, the amount of interest paid or payable in the year shall not be deducted to the extent that it exceeds the amount included under that section or under paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year with respect to the taxpayer's interest in the contract,"

Editorial Note: A specific provision is required to permit the deduction of interest, as the courts have held that interest expense is generally on account of capital and therefore not otherwise deductible. However, for financial institutions and other taxpayers in the business of lending money, interest expense is apparently not on account of capital, so that it may be deducted under general principles in the computation of profit under section 9. See the Supreme Court of Canada decision in Gifford (see "Cases", below).

In the Stewart and Ludco decisions (see "Cases", below), the Supreme Court held, respectively, that a "reasonable expectation of profit" test is not an appropriate source test for income tax purposes, and that the term "income" in paragraph 20(1)(c) refers to gross income rather than net income. Thus, the taxpayers in those cases were allowed to deduct significant interest expense even though they were not reporting net income or profit from the underlying sources. In response to these decisions, the Department of Finance introduced draft legislation on October 31, 2003, which proposed to restrict the deductibility of interest expense by denying losses from a business or property that did not have a reasonable expectation of profit ("REOP") (draft section 3.1). The draft legislation was scheduled to take effect in taxation years ending after 2004. However, in the 2005 Federal Budget, the Department responded to criticisms of the REOP draft legislation by announcing that it would replace it with a more modest legislative initiative (see "Federal Budget Extract", above). Further, at the September 2005 Annual Tax Conference held by the Canadian Tax Foundation, the Department stated that it intended to replace the REOP concept with a more modest "net income" concept. No mention was made of the issue in the 2006, 2007, 2008, or 2009 Federal Budget, and at the time of writing, the Department had not yet acted in amending or revoking the REOP draft legislation.

Draft legislation dealing with interest deductibility was released in December 1991 but was never enacted. Since the 1991 proposals are not expected to be acted on, they have not been reproduced in the text of the Act.

Cases: The taxpayer's wife obtained a bank loan to purchase shares of a family corporation from him. He used the proceeds to buy a new house. They then took out a mortgage on the house and used it to pay off the bank loan. The mortgage interest was deducted from her dividend income and the resulting loss was attributed to him under s. 74.1(1). This was not an abuse of s. 20(1)(c) or 20(3). However, it was an abuse of the attribution rules and GAAR was used to disallow deduction of the mortgage interest. Lipson et al. v. The Queen, 2009 DTC 5015 (S.C.C.), affirming 2007 DTC 5172 (F.C.A.), affirming 2006 DTC 2687 (T.C.C.).

Days before emigrating from Canada, the taxpayers executed a departure trade designed to create a $1.7 million interest deduction. The deduction was disallowed under s. 114(c) since the phrase, "any other deduction permitted for the purpose of computing taxable income" is restricted to Division C deductions, which excludes a s. 20(1)(c) interest deduction. Grant et al. v. The Queen, 2007 DTC 5351 (F.C.A.), affirming 2006 DTC 3071 (T.C.C.).

Paragraph 20(1)(c) does not require compliance with GAAP. The only requirement to be taken from the plain meaning of the provision is that interest be accounted for on a consistent basis: either cash or accrual. Crown Forest Industries Ltd. v. The Queen, 2006 DTC 2321 (T.C.C.).

Sections 8(1)(j) and 20(1)(c) do not provide a complete code dealing with interest deductibility. In circumstances where interest is not a payment on account of capital, it may be deducted as long as it meets the other requirements, such as those set out in s. 8(1)(f) or s. 18(1)(a), and is not precluded by some other section of the Act. Gifford v. The Queen et al., 2004 DTC 6120 (S.C.C.), affirming 2002 DTC 7197 (F.C.A.), reversing 2001 DTC 168 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer entered into a series of transactions designed to create an interest deduction. The direct use of the borrowed funds was to purchase shares in a company to earn dividend income. While this met the requirements of s. 20(1)(c), the deduction was denied because it artificially reduced the taxpayer's income, contrary to the 1987 version of s. 245(1). Novopharm Limited v. The Queen, 2003 DTC 5195 (F.C.A.), affirming 2002 DTC 1307 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer issued a promissory note to dissatisfied shareholders to redeem their shares in settling a dispute. Interest on the note was deductible since the note replaced paid-up capital and retained earnings that were being used in the business and was therefore an acquisition of property. Penn Ventilator Canada Limited v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 1498 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer and others purchased land which they immediately sold and leased back. They borrowed funds from the purchaser to construct an office building on the land. Cash flow above a certain amount was paid to the owner as either interest or rent based on a formula. Such "excess interest" payments were deductible. Hill v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 1749 (T.C.C.).

Interest relating to a highly leveraged condominium purchase fell within the scope of s. 20(1)(c). The rental activity lacked any personal element and was clearly a commercial activity. REOP was not the appropriate test. S. 20(1)(c) is not a tax avoidance mechanism and the taxpayer's hope of realizing an eventual capital gain with the expectation of deducting interest expenses, did not detract from the commercial nature of his rental operation, or its characterization as a source of income. Stewart v. The Queen, 2002 DTC 6969 (S.C.C.), reversing 2000 DTC 6163 (F.C.A.) and 98 DTC 1600 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer borrowed funds which it loaned on an interest-free basis to a holding corporation, to enable the latter's parent to purchase V corporation. The interest was deductible because of "exceptional circumstances", namely that the taxpayer expected to earn business income from management fees and the take-over of some of V's operations. The Queen v. Canadian Helicopters Limited, 2002 DTC 6805 (F.C.A.), affirming 2001 DTC 339 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayers borrowed money to acquire the shares of two Panamanian corporations. Although the dividends they received were significantly less than the interest on the borrowed money, the bulk of the return being in capital gains, the interest was deductible since one of the purposes of the borrowed funds was to earn (dividend) income. It was not necessary to establish a prime or dominant purpose, and "income" means gross, not net income. Ludco Enterprises Ltd. et al. v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 5505 (S.C.C.), reversing 99 DTC 5153 (F.C.A.), 98 DTC 6045 (F.C.T.D.) and 93 DTC 1351 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer withdrew funds from his law firm capital account and used this amount to assist in the purchase of a house. Later on the same day, he borrowed funds from a bank which he used to refinance his capital account. Interest on the loan was deductible because the transactions were viewed independently and the proceeds from the loan were used to earn income. The Queen v. Singleton, 2001 DTC 5533 (S.C.C.), affirming 99 DTC 5362 (F.C.A.) which reversed 96 DTC 1850 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer invested in units of a limited partnership carrying on the business of renting apartments. Almost all of the purchase price was financed by arm's length borrowings. The Minister had argued that the taxpayer had no reasonable expectation of profit because his interest payments exceeded his income from the partnership. However, the partnership was a viable business with a reasonable expectation of profit and therefore the interest was deductible. The Queen v. Milewski, 2000 DTC 6559 (F.C.A.), affirming 99 DTC 968 (T.C.C.).

Interest was not deductible where the corporate taxpayer borrowed funds from a bank for the purpose of financing the purchase by a third party of the corporations which owned the taxpayer's issued and outstanding shares. C.R.B. Logging Co. Ltd. v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6547 (F.C.A.), affirming 99 DTC 840 (T.C.C.).

A bank advanced $36 million to its subsidiary which then paid the bank a $45 million dividend. The subsidiary was denied a deduction for interest paid on the advanced funds because the direct use of the funds was to pay a dividend, which was an ineligible use. The Chase Manhattan Bank of Canada v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6018 (F.C.A.), affirming 97 DTC 349 (T.C.C.).

Rather than borrowing in Canadian funds, the taxpayer borrowed foreign funds, converted these to Canadian funds, and entered into foreign exchange swap agreements to meet foreign currency interest and principal payments. Based on the S.C.C. decision in The Queen v. Shell Canada Limited, the interest paid on the foreign currency loans was deductible. Canadian Pacific Limited v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6174 (F.C.A.), reversing 99 DTC 5132 (F.C.A.) and 98 DTC 2021 (T.C.C.).

Rather than borrowing in U.S. dollars at 9.1%, the taxpayer borrowed in New Zealand dollars at 15.4%, converted the funds into U.S. dollars (which it required for operations) and concurrently entered into a forward foreign exchange contract to hedge its N.Z. dollar obligations. The 15.4% interest was deductible because, between Shell and the lenders, the payments were consideration for the use of the N.Z. dollars that Shell had borrowed. The 15.4% rate was the N.Z. market rate between arm's length parties and therefore a reasonable rate. Shell Canada Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5669 (S.C.C.), reversing 98 DTC 6177 (F.C.A.) which reversed in part 97 DTC 395 (T.C.C.).

Construction period interest may be treated as an expense, deductible under s. 20(1)(c), or may be capitalized under s. 21(1), but not otherwise. Capitalized interest is not part of the capital cost for ITC purposes. Alberta Wheat Pool et al. v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5198 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1795 (T.C.C.).

The corporate taxpayer purchased its own debentures in the open market at a discounted purchase price which included accrued interest. The taxpayer was entitled to interest deductions in respect of the accrued interest. Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 5269 (F.C.A.), reversing 96 DTC 1246 (T.C.C.).

Corporate taxpayer used proceeds of a bank loan to pay off a guarantee which it had given, and thereby acquired control of two corporations which held lands relevant to a certain development project in which the taxpayer was interested. Interest on the loan was deductible. Lewisporte Holdings Limited v. The Queen, 99 DTC 253 (T.C.C.)

When the agreement reached during the course of a trial made no reference to a debenture held by the taxpayer's bank against all of its assets, the deduction by the taxpayer of interest on the debenture was disallowed on the ground that it had been "settled". Central City Financial Services Ltd. v. The Queen, 98 DTC 6645 (F.C.A.), affirming 98 DTC 1021 (T.C.C.).

In keeping with the new commercial realities, participating interest paid on the taxpayer's long-term bonds was deductible both as interest under s. 20(1)(c and as an expense incurred in the course of borrowing money under s. 20(1)(e). The Queen v. Sherway Centre Limited, 98 DTC 6121 (F.C.A.), affirming 96 DTC 1640 (T.C.C.).

Where property is exchanged for property acquired with a loan, the deduction under s. 20(1)(c) is based not on the value of the replacement property, but on the amount of the original loan. Accordingly, where a taxpayer acquired property worth $1,000 in exchange for a rollover of property purchased with a $1 million loan, he was entitled to continue to claim an interest deduction on the basis of the amount of that loan. Tennant v. The Queen, 96 DTC 6121 (S.C.C.), reversing 94 DTC 6505 (F.C.A.) and 93 DTC 5067 (F.C.T.D.).

A trust wanted to make capital allocations to the beneficiary but it did not want to liquidate any assets in order to do so. Instead, the trust borrowed the money and claimed a deduction for the interest paid on the borrowed money. The S.C.C. held that the interest was not deductible. Despite the fact that the borrowing could be characterized as indirectly preserving income, the trust in fact borrowed money for an ineligible direct purpose (i.e., making capital allocations to the beneficiary) and the deduction was therefore prohibited. The Queen v. Bronfman Trust, 87 DTC 5059 (S.C.C.), reversing 83 DTC 5243 (F.C.A.) and 79 DTC 5438 (F.C.T.D.), which reversed 78 DTC 1752 (T.R.B.).

(d) Compound interest — an amount paid in the year pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on an amount that would be deductible under paragraph

(c) if it were paid in the year or payable in respect of the year;

(e) Expenses re financing — such part of an amount (other than an excluded amount) that is not otherwise deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer and that is an expense incurred in the year or a preceding taxation year

(i) in the course of an issuance or sale of units of the taxpayer where the taxpayer is a unit trust, of interests in a partnership or syndicate by the partnership or syndicate, as the case may be, or of shares of the capital stock of the taxpayer,

(ii) in the course of a borrowing of money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a business or property (other than money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of acquiring property the income from which would be exempt),

(ii.1) in the course of incurring indebtedness that is an amount payable for property acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income therefrom or for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business (other than property the income from which would be exempt or property that is an interest in a life insurance policy), or

(ii.2) in the course of a rescheduling or restructuring of a debt obligation of the taxpayer or an assumption of a debt obligation by the taxpayer, where the debt obligation is

(A) in respect of a borrowing described in subparagraph (ii), or

(B) in respect of an amount payable described in subparagraph (ii.1), and, in the case of a rescheduling or restructuring, the rescheduling or restructuring, as the case may be, provides for the modification of the terms or conditions of the debt obligation or the conversion or substitution of the debt obligation to or with a share or another debt obligation,

(including a commission, fee, or other amount paid or payable for or on account of services rendered by a person as a salesperson, agent or dealer in securities in the course of the issuance, sale or borrowing) that is the lesser of

(iii) that proportion of 20% of the expense that the number of days in the year is of 365 and

(iv) the amount, if any, by which the expense exceeds the total of all amounts deductible by the taxpayer in respect of the expense in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, and, for the purposes of this paragraph,

(iv.1) "excluded amount" means

(A) an amount paid or payable as or on account of the principal amount of a debt obligation or interest in respect of a debt obligation,

(B) an amount that is contingent or dependent on the use of, or production from, property, or

(C) an amount that is computed by reference to revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation,

(v) where in a taxation year all debt obligations in respect of a borrowing described in subparagraph (ii) or in respect of indebtedness described in subparagraph (ii.1) are settled or extinguished (otherwise than in a transaction made as part of a series of borrowings or other transactions and repayments), by the taxpayer for consideration that does not include any unit, interest, share or debt obligation of the taxpayer or any person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length or any partnership or trust of which the taxpayer or any person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length is a member or beneficiary, this paragraph shall be read without reference to the words "the lesser of" and to subparagraph (iii), and

(vi) where a partnership has ceased to exist at any particular time in a fiscal period of the partnership,

(A) no amount may be deducted by the partnership under this paragraph in computing its income for the period, and

(B) there may be deducted for a taxation year ending at or after that time by any person or partnership that was a member of the partnership immediately before that time, that proportion of the amount that would, but for this subparagraph, have been deductible under this paragraph by the partnership in the fiscal period ending in the year had it continued to exist and had the partnership interest not been redeemed, acquired or cancelled, that the fair market value of the member's interest in the partnership immediately before that time is of the fair market value of all the interests in the partnership immediately before that time;

(e.1) Annual fees, etc. — an amount payable by the taxpayer (other than a payment that is contingent or dependent on the use of, or production from, property or is computed by reference to revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation) as a standby charge, guarantee fee, registrar fee, transfer agent fee, filing fee, service fee or any similar fee, that can reasonably be considered to relate solely to the year and that is incurred by the taxpayer

(i) for the purpose of borrowing money to be used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a business or property (other than borrowed money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of acquiring property the income from which would be exempt income),

(ii) in the course of incurring indebtedness that is an amount payable for property acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income therefrom or for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business (other than property the income from which would be exempt or property that is an interest in a life insurance policy), or

(iii) for the purpose of rescheduling or restructuring a debt obligation of the taxpayer or an assumption of a debt obligation by the taxpayer, where the debt obligation is

(A) in respect of a borrowing described in subparagraph (i), or

(B) in respect of an amount payable described in subparagraph (ii),

(i) the premiums payable by the taxpayer under a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract) in respect of the year, where

(A) an interest in the policy is assigned to a restricted financial institution in the course of a borrowing from the institution,

(B) the interest payable in respect of the borrowing is or would, but for subsections 18(2) and (3.1) and sections 21 and 28, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, and

(C) the assignment referred to in clause (A) is required by the institution as collateral for the borrowing

and

(ii) the net cost of pure insurance in respect of the year, as determined in accordance with the regulations, in respect of the interest in the policy referred to in clause (i)(A),

as can reasonably be considered to relate to the amount owing from time to time during the year by the taxpayer to the institution under the borrowing;

History: S. 20(1)(e.2) was added by S.C. 1994, c.7, Sched. II, s. 15(2), applicable to premiums payable after 1989.

Editorial Note: It is not necessary that the person claiming the deduction under paragraph 20(1)(e.2) be the person whose life is insured under the policy. Thus, for example, a corporation with a life insurance policy on the life of one of its executives may claim the deduction.

(f) Discount on certain obligations — an amount paid in the year in satisfaction of the principal amount of any bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or similar obligation issued by the taxpayer after June 18, 1971 on which interest was stipulated to be payable, to the extent that the amount so paid does not exceed,

S. 20(1)(f)(ii) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 13(5), by replacing the reference to the fraction "3/4" with a reference to the fraction "1/2", applicable in respect of amounts that become payable after February 27, 2000 except that, for amounts that became payable after February 27, 2000 and before October 18, 2000, the reference to the fraction "1/2" in subparagraph 20(1)(f)(ii) of the Act shall be read as a reference to the fraction "2/3".

Editorial Note: Paragraph 20(1)(f) only applies if the discount is part of the principal amount of the debt obligation, so that it does not apply, for example, to a discount that is considered interest.

Editorial Note: The paragraph 20(1)(m) reserve does not apply to receipts of prepaid rent that is (or will be) income from property, nor does it apply to receipts of prepaid interest or prepayments for the sale of land (land is apparently not a "good"). However, in the past, the CRA has indicated that the inclusion of prepaid rent that is income from property can be deferred to the year to which it relates, in accordance with financial accounting principles; see Interpretation Bulletin IT-261R. The Ellis Vision decision (2004 DTC 2024 (T.C.C.)) (see "Cases", below) indicates that the reserve can apply to amounts included under section 9 profit, as long as they are amounts described in paragraph 12(1)(a).

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-6 Vendor reacquires business assets following default by purchaser.

Cases: Loans made by the taxpayer were made in the ordinary course of a moneylending business and associated bad debts were deductible. The taxpayer typically lent money for terms of two to three years and he kept track of interest payment due dates and outstanding balances, so that there was a "continuity or system" in his lending activities. He had even purchased certain bonds in the course of the carrying on of that business. Langhammer v. The Queen, 2001 DTC 45 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer advanced funds to a related corporation and the loan later became uncollectible. Although the advance was clearly a loan, the taxpayer was not entitled to bad debt deductions because the taxpayer was not in the money-lending business and the loan was not made as part of the taxpayer's ordinary business. Loman Warehousing Ltd. v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 6610 (F.C.A.), affirming 99 DTC 1113 (T.C.C.).

The taxpayer supplied the labour of its own employees to a related corporation but recorded the accounts receivable as a reduction of its own expenses, rather than as revenue from the supply of services. The related company later became insolvent and the taxpayer treated the amounts owing as bad debts. Although the taxpayer's accounting records did not show that the amounts had been included in the taxpayer's income prior to the deduction, they were no less revenue just because they were improperly recorded. Therefore the bad debts deduction was allowed. Williams Gold Refining Co. of Canada Limited v. The Queen, 2000 DTC 1829 (T.C.C.).

Department of Finance Comfort Letter
[Deduction of Investment Counsel and Custodial Fees Paid to a Partnership]

December 21, 2005

Dear XXXX,

I am writing in response to your June 30, 2005 letter to me requesting an amendment to paragraph 20(1)(bb) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In particular, you have requested that we extend the deduction for investment counsel and custodial fees paid to a person to also include such fees paid to a partnership.

In general, paragraph 20(1)(bb) allows a taxpayer to deduct fees, other than commissions, paid for advice on buying or selling a specific share or security by the taxpayer or for the administration or the management of the shares or securities of the taxpayer. The fees must be paid to a person whose principal business includes the administration or management of shares or securities. A person is defined in subsection 248(1) of the Act to include any corporation and any entity exempt, because of subsection 149(1), from tax under Part I on all or part of the entity's taxable income. A person, therefore, does not include a partnership. However, certain provisions of the Act specify that for specific purposes a person includes a partnership. This is not the case with paragraph 20(1)(bb).

In the situation you describe, XXXX carries on an investment management business and is registered as investment counsel and portfolio manager under applicable securities legislation. XXXX has received an offer to purchase its business. The proposed transaction involves transferring the business to a limited partnership in which the majority interest will indirectly be held by members of the public. The partnership has applied for registration as investment counsel and portfolio manager and its principal business will consist of providing advice regarding the buying and selling of securities to both tax-exempt and taxable clients. Because the paragraph 20(1)(bb) deduction does not apply to investment counsel fees paid to a partnership, there is a concern that the partnership may be at a competitive disadvantage with respect to providing advice to taxable clients. You acknowledge that this issue could be addressed by transferring the taxable client business to a wholly-owned subsidiary of the partnership, however, this would result in additional administrative costs and complexity. In addition, it is your understanding that the securities regulators have expressed reservations regarding the "dual registrant" alternative, and would prefer a single registrant.

Paragraph 20(1)(bb) of the Act is an exception to the general rule that expenses on capital account are not deductible. As an exception, the rule is intentionally narrowly drafted. The rule contains several restrictions including an ownership requirement, and the requirement that the payment must be to a person whose principal business is investment counsel, management or administration services in respect of shares or securities. However, we can discern no tax policy reason for excluding the deduction of investment counsel and custodial fees paid to a partnership. As such, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to allow the deduction of investment counsel and custodial fees paid to a partnership, assuming the other conditions in 20(1)(bb) are otherwise met. In addition, we will recommend that the amendment be effective after June 30, 2005, the day that you brought this issue to our attention.

We cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Department of Finance Comfort Letter
[Proposed Repeal of Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) — Reinsurance Commissions]

December 21, 2005

Dear XXXX,

I am writing in response to your correspondence of October 19, 2005, requesting that paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") be repealed because of the introduction of subsection 18(9.02)of the Act.

Subsection 18(9.02) of the Act, introduced in 2001, generally applies to taxation years that begin after 1999. This provision was introduced to ensure that the acquisition costs (i.e. commissions paid to a broker) that are incurred by an insurer or a reinsurer in respect of a policy are deducted as if they were incurred as consideration for services to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. The deduction of acquisition costs over the term of the policy results in a matching of acquisition costs with the premium income over the period of coverage under the policy.

Prior to the introduction of subsection 18(9.02) of the Act, a different mechanism existed for matching acquisition costs with premium income. In the case of reinsurance, where the insurer cedes to a reinsurer all or part of the risk under a policy issued by the insurer, it receives a reinsurance commission from the reinsurer and is entitled to claim a reserve for unearned premiums. Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Act apply to the reinsurer in the taxation year in which it pays the reinsurance commission and in subsequent taxation years. Essentially, paragraph 12(1)(s) requires the reinsurer to include in computing its income for a particular taxation year the amount the insurer was entitled to claim as a reserve for unearned premiums in respect of the re-insurance premium paid to the insurer by the reinsurer. Paragraph 20(1)(jj) then permits the reinsurer to deduct in computing its income for the following year the amount included in computing its income for the particular taxation year under paragraph 12(1)(s). The effect of this mechanism is to ensure that the acquisition costs of the re-insurer are matched with premium income under the policy. This mechanism also requires the reinsurer to deduct the reinsurance commission, as it is included in the income of the insurer.

With the introduction of subsection 18(9.02), both the insurer and the re-insurer must treat the acquisition costs incurred by the insurer in respect of the policy or reinsurance commission paid by the reinsurer in respect of the reinsurance policy as if they were incurred as consideration for services that are to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. Consequently, there is no need to have paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) apply to the reinsurer. The premium income of the reinsurer from the reinsurance policy will be matched with the reinsurance commission expense of the reinsurer over the period of coverage of the reinsurance policy. In fact, the existence of paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) can cause tax anomalies in the above situation by requiring an inclusion in income to offset a deduction that can no longer be claimed because of subsection 18(9.02).

Given this unintended result, it would seem appropriate to repeal paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Act. We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance such a change for taxation years that begin after 1999. If this recommendation is acted upon, it will be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

(2) Borrowed money. For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c), where a person has borrowed money in consideration of a promise by the person to pay a larger amount and to pay interest on the larger amount,

(a) the larger amount shall be deemed to be the amount borrowed; and

(b) where the amount actually borrowed has been used in whole or in part for the purpose of earning income from a business or property, the proportion of the larger amount that the amount actually so used is of the amount actually borrowed shall be deemed to be the amount so used.

Editorial Note: The CRA takes the position that a discount on a debt obligation that pays stipulated interest cannot be considered interest, because paragraph 20(2)(a) provides that the discount is deemed to be part of the amount borrowed for the purposes of paragraph 20(1)(c) (see paragraph 37 of IT-533). (2.3) Sectoral reserve. For the purpose of clause (1)(l)(ii)(D), a sectoral reserve is a reserve or an allowance for impairment for a loan that is determined on a sector-by-sector basis (including a geographic sector, an industrial sector or a sector of any other nature) and not on a property-by-property basis.

History: S. 20(2.3) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 81(7), applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after September 1997; and

(b) to a taxpayer's taxation years that end after 1995 and before October 1997 where the taxpayer elects in writing to have subsection (4) apply to the year and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue by September 30, 1998.

► 20(2.4) ◄

(2.4) Specified percentage. For the purpose of clause (1)(l)(ii)(D), a taxpayer's specified percentage for a taxation year is

(a) where the taxpayer has a prescribed reserve amount for the year, the percentage that is the percentage of the prescribed reserve amount of the taxpayer for the year claimed by the taxpayer under clause (1)(l)(ii)(C) for the year, and

(b) in any other case, 100%.

History: S. 20(2.4) was added by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 81(7), applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after September 1997; and

(b) to a taxpayer's taxation years that end after 1995 and before October 1997 where the taxpayer elects in writing to have subsection (4) apply to the year and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue by September 30, 1998.

(3) Borrowed money. For greater certainty, if a taxpayer uses borrowed money to repay money previously borrowed, or to pay an amount payable for property described in subparagraph (1)(c)(ii) previously acquired (which previously borrowed money or amount payable in respect of previously acquired property is, in this subsection, referred to as the "previous indebtedness"), subject to subsection 20.1(6), for the purposes of paragraphs (1)(c), (e) and (e.1), subsections 20.1(1) and (2), section 21 and subparagraph 95(2)(a)(ii), and for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(k) of the Income Tax Act, Chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, the borrowed money is deemed to be used for the purpose for which the previous indebtedness was used or incurred, or was deemed by this subsection to have been used or incurred.

History: S. 20(3) was replaced by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 7(1), applicable in respect of interest paid or payable in respect of a period or periods that begin after January 27, 2009. S. 20(3) was replaced by S.C. 2007, c. 35, s. 14(2), applicable in respect of interest paid or payable in respect of a period or periods that begin after 2011, to read as above except for a reference to s. 18.2 included. However, as a result of the repeal of s. 18.2, the reference to s. 18.2 was deleted in the amendment to s. 20(3) by S.C. 2009, c. 2, for interest paid or payable in respect of a period or periods that begin after January 27, 2009. S. 20(3) formerly read:

"(3) Borrowed money. For greater certainty, it is hereby declared that where a taxpayer has used borrowed money

(a) to repay money previously borrowed, or

(b) to pay an amount payable for property described in subparagraph (1)(c)(ii) previously acquired, subject to subsection 20.1(6), the borrowed money shall, for the purposes of paragraphs (1)(c), (e) and (e.1), subsections 20.1(1) and (2), section 21 and subparagraph 95(2)(a)(ii) and for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(k) of the Income Tax Act, Chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, be deemed to have been used for the purpose for which the money previously borrowed was used or was deemed by this subsection to have been used, or to acquire the property in respect of which the amount was payable, as the case may be."

S. 20(3), the portion after paragraph (b) was amended by S.C. 1995, c. 21, s. 45(1), applicable to expenses incurred in taxation years that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the portion of subsection 20(3) after paragraph (b) applies to expenses incurred in taxation years of the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation year of such foreign affiliate.

S. 20(3), the portion after paragraph (b), formerly read:

"subject to subsection 20.1(6), the borrowed money shall, for the purposes of paragraphs (1)(c), (e) and (e.1), subsections 20.1(1) and (2) and section 21, and for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(k) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, be deemed to have been used for the purpose for which the money previously borrowed was used or was deemed by this subsection to have been used, or to acquire the property in respect of which the amount was payable, as the case may be."

S. 20(3), the portion following paragraph (b), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 12(6), applicable to expenses incurred after 1987 except that, in its application to such expenses incurred before 1994, the portion of subsection 20(3) of the Act after paragraph (b) shall be read without reference to the expressions "subject to subsection 20.1(6)" and "subsections 20.1(1) and (2)".

S. 20(3), the portion following paragraph (b), formerly read:

"the borrowed money shall, for the purposes of paragraph (1)(c) (or 20(1)(k) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952) and section 21, be deemed to have been used for the purpose for which the money previously borrowed was used or was deemed by this subsection to have been used, or to acquire the property in respect of which the said amount was so payable, as the case may be."

Where, in respect of one or more dispositions of eligible capital property by a taxpayer, an amount that is described in paragraph (a) of the description of E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of the taxpayer is established by the taxpayer to have become a bad debt in a taxation year, the taxpayer is deemed to have an allowable capital loss from a disposition of capital property in the year equal to the lesser of

(a) the total of the value determined for A and 2/3 of the value determined for B in the formula in subsection (4.2) in respect of the taxpayer for the year; and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the value determined for C or paragraph (a) of the description of F in the formula in subsection (4.2) in respect of the taxpayer for the year,

(ii) 3/4 of the value determined for D or paragraph (b) of the description of F in the formula in subsection (4.2) in respect of the taxpayer for the year, or

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 2 — Technical Amendments — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Subsection 20(8) of the Act is amended by striking out the word "or" at the end of paragraph (a) and by adding the following after paragraph (b):

(c) the purchaser of the property sold was a corporation that, immediately after the sale,

(i) was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by the taxpayer,

(ii) was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons that controlled the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, or

(iii) controlled the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever; or

(d) the purchaser of the property sold was a partnership in which the taxpayer was, immediately after the sale, a majority interest partner.

Applicable: In respect of property sold by a taxpayer after December 20, 2002. However, if a property so sold pursuant to an agreement in writing made before December 21, 2002 is transferred to the purchaser before 2004

(a) subsection 20(8), as it read immediately before [the addition of paragraphs (c) and (d)], applies in respect of the property; and

(b) for the purpose of applying paragraph 20(1)(n) to the taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of the property, a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of an amount not due in respect of the sale may not exceed the amount that would be reasonable if the proceeds from any subsequent disposition of the property that the purchaser receives before the end of the taxation year were received by the taxpayer.

Explanatory Note:

Reserve Not Available

Paragraph 20(1)(n) of the Act allows a taxpayer to claim a reserve in respect of the taxpayer's profit from the sale of certain property, where all or part of the proceeds of the sale are not due until at least two years after the time of sale. However, subsection 20(8) of the Act provides that this reserve is limited to taxation years that end less than 36 months after the time of the sale. For example, where the taxation year is 12 months, the reserve is available in the taxation year in which the sale occurred and the two subsequent taxation years.

New paragraphs 20(8)(c) and (d) generally apply, in respect of dispositions of property that occur after December 20, 2002, to provide that the reserve under paragraph 20(1)(n) is not available to a taxpayer where the purchaser of the property is a corporation controlled by the taxpayer or is a partnership of which the taxpayer is a majority interest partner.

Paragraph 20(16)(a) of the Act is replaced by the following:

(a) the total of all amounts used to determine A to D.1 in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21) in respect of a taxpayer's depreciable property of a particular class exceeds the total of all amounts used to determine E to K in that definition in respect of that property, and

Applicable: To taxation years that end after February 23, 1998.

Explanatory Note:

Terminal Loss

Subsection 20(16) of the Act permits a taxpayer to deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income for a year, the terminal loss of the taxpayer in respect of a class of depreciable property at the end of the year. That subsection is amended to add a reference to the new descriptions of D.1 and K of the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21) of the Act. For information about those new descriptions, see the commentary to subsection 13(1).

This amendment applies to taxation years that end after February 23, 1998, and corrects a technical deficiency.

(b) the taxpayer no longer owns any property of that class, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year

(c) there shall be deducted the amount of the excess determined under paragraph (a), and

(d) no amount shall be deducted for the year under paragraph (1)(a) in respect of property of that class.

History: S. 20(16), that part following paragraph (d), was repealed by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 15(8), applicable to taxation years beginning after July 13, 1990. That part formerly read:

"and the amount of the excess determined under paragraph (a) shall be deemed to have been deducted under paragraph (1)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from a business or property."

Editorial Note: In general terms, a terminal loss occurs when there is no property left in a class of depreciable property and the undepreciated capital cost (UCC) balance of the class is positive at the end of a taxation year. The loss is fully deductible in computing income in the year. Despite the positive UCC balance, capital cost allowance is not deductible in the year under paragraph 20(1)(a). Unlike capital cost allowance, which is a permissive deduction, a terminal loss must be deducted in the year it occurs.

(a) in respect of a passenger vehicle of a taxpayer that has a cost to the taxpayer in excess of $20,000 or any other amount that is prescribed; and

(b) in respect of a taxation year in respect of a property that was a former property deemed by paragraph 13(4.3)(a) or (b) to be owned by the taxpayer, if

(i) within 24 months after the taxpayer last owned the former property, the taxpayer or a person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property applied, and

(ii) at the end of the taxation year, the taxpayer or the person owns the similar property or another similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property applied.

Applicable: In respect of taxation years that end after December 20, 2002.

Explanatory Note:

Non-Application of Subsection (16)

Subsection 20(16.1) of the Act provides that a terminal loss under subsection 20(16) in respect of a depreciable property that is a "passenger vehicle" costing more than a prescribed amount (currently set at $30,000) is not deductible in computing income. That rule is renumbered as paragraph 20(16.1)(a) and new paragraph 20(16.1)(b) is added, applicable to taxation years that end after December 20, 2002. These amendments are made concurrently with the addition of subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) of the Act and with the amendment of the definition "former business property" in subsection 248(1) of the Act.

New paragraph 20(16.1)(b) provides that a terminal loss is not available in respect of another person's former business property that was deemed under paragraph 13(4.3)(a) or (b) (as the result of a joint election under subsection 13(4.2) by the taxpayer and the other person) to be owned by the taxpayer. For further information, refer to the commentary to subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3).

History: S. 20(16.1) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 9(4), applicable to the taxation years and fiscal periods beginning after June 17, 1987 that end after 1987. S. 20(16.1) formerly read:

"(16.1) Idem. Notwithstanding paragraph (16)(c), where an excess amount is determined under paragraph (16)(a) at the end of a taxation year in respect of a passenger vehicle having a cost to a taxpayer in excess of $20,000 or such other amount as may be prescribed, that excess amount shall not be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year."

(16.2) Reference to "taxation year" and "year" of individual. Where a taxpayer is an individual and the taxpayer's income for a taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, if depreciable property acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the business has been disposed of, each reference in subsections (16) and (16.1) to a "taxation year" and "year" shall, for greater certainty, be read as a reference to a "fiscal period".

(17) Reduction of inventory allowance deduction. Notwithstanding paragraph 20(1)(gg) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, the deduction allowed under that paragraph to a taxpayer for a taxation year shall be reduced by 3% of that proportion of the lesser of

(a) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's qualifying inventory that was disposed of during the year by the taxpayer in a specified transaction to a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, and that the number of days in the year and after the date of disposition is of 365.

(b) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's qualifying inventory at the beginning of the year,

Sec. 144, Chap. 12, S.C. 2000

144. [Transitional Provision.] Where a taxpayer and a person who would have been the taxpayer's common-law partner in the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, if sections 130 to 142 [of S.C. 2000, c. 12] applied to the applicable year, jointly elect in respect of that year by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in prescribed manner on or before their filing due date for the year in which this Act receives royal assent, those sections apply to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

S. 20.01(2) was added by S.C. 1999, c. 22, s. 10(1), applicable to amounts that become payable after 1997.

(3) Equivalent coverage. For the purpose of subsection (2), an amount payable in respect of an individual under a private health services plan in relation to a period does not exceed the individual's cost of equivalent coverage under the plan in respect of another person in relation to the period to the extent that, in relation to the period, the amount does not exceed the product obtained when

(a) the amount that would be the individual's cost of coverage under the plan if the benefits and coverage in respect of the individual, the individual's spouse or common-law partner and the members of the individual's household were identical to the benefits and coverage made available in respect of the other person, the other person's spouse or common-law partner and the members of the other person's household is multiplied by

(b) the percentage of the cost of coverage under the plan in respect of the other person that is payable by the individual or a partnership of which the individual is a member.

History: S. 20.01(3)(a) was amended by S.C. 2000, c. 12, Sched. 2, s. 1(c), applicable January 1, 2001, coming into force on July 31, 2000. S. 20.01(3)(a) formerly read:

"(a) the amount that would be the individual's cost of coverage under the plan if the benefits and coverage in respect of the individual, the individual's spouse and the members of the individual's household were identical to the benefits and coverage made available in respect of the other person, the other person's spouse and the members of the other person's household"

Sec. 144, Chap. 12, S.C. 2000

144. [Transitional Provision.] Where a taxpayer and a person who would have been the taxpayer's common-law partner in the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, if sections 130 to 142 [of S.C. 2000, c. 12] applied to the applicable year, jointly elect in respect of that year by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in prescribed manner on or before their filing due date for the year in which this Act receives royal assent, those sections apply to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

(1) Borrowed money used to earn income from property. Where

(a) at any time after 1993 borrowed money ceases to be used by a taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a capital property (other than real property or depreciable property), and

Pending Amendment

Former Bill C-10 — Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006 — Part 3 — Amendments Relating to Bijuralism — October 29, 2007

[Former Bill C-10 ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008 and has not yet been reintroduced.]

Paragraph 20.1(1)(a) of the English version of the Act is replaced by the following:

(a) at any time after 1993 borrowed money ceases to be used by a taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a capital property (other than real or immovable property or depreciable property), and

Applicable: Royal Assent.

Explanatory Note: [See the Explanatory Note re amendments related to bijuralism following the amendment to paragraph 12(1)(o).]

(b) the amount of the borrowed money that was so used by the taxpayer immediately before that time exceeds the total of

(i) where the taxpayer disposed of the property at that time for an amount of consideration that is not less than the fair market value of the property at that time, the amount of the borrowed money used to acquire the consideration,

(ii) where the taxpayer disposed of the property at that time and subparagraph (i) does not apply, the amount of the borrowed money that, if the taxpayer had received as consideration an amount of money equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the amount included in the total by reason of subparagraph (iii), would be considered to be used to acquire the consideration,

(iii) where the taxpayer disposed of the property at that time for consideration that includes a reduction in the amount of the borrowed money, the amount of the reduction, and

(iv) where the taxpayer did not dispose of the property at that time, the amount of the borrowed money that, if the taxpayer had disposed of the property at that time and received as consideration an amount of money equal to the fair market value of the property at that time, would be considered to be used to acquire the consideration, an amount of the borrowed money equal to the excess shall, to the extent that the amount is outstanding after that time, be deemed to be used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from the property.

History: S. 20.1(1) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 13(1), applicable after 1993.

Editorial Note: Section 20.1 effectively overrules the decision in Emerson v. The Queen, 86 DTC 6184 (F.C.A.), which held that interest on borrowed money ceased to be deductible under paragraph 20(1)(c) when the source of income to which the interest related no longer existed, unless the borrowed money could be traced to another income-producing use.

(2) Borrowed money used to earn income from business. Where at any particular time after 1993 a taxpayer ceases to carry on a business and, as a consequence, borrowed money ceases to be used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from the business, the following rules apply:

(a) where, at any time (in this paragraph referred to as the "time of disposition") at or after the particular time, the taxpayer disposes of property that was last used by the taxpayer in the business, an amount of the borrowed money equal to the lesser of

(i) the fair market value of the property at the time of disposition, and

(ii) the amount of the borrowed money outstanding at the time of disposition that is not deemed by this paragraph to have been used before the time of disposition to acquire any other property shall be deemed to have been used by the taxpayer immediately before the time of disposition to acquire the property;

(b) subject to paragraph (a), the borrowed money shall, after the particular time, be deemed not to have been used to acquire property that was used by the taxpayer in the business;

(c) the portion of the borrowed money outstanding at any time after the particular time that is not deemed by paragraph (a) to have been used before that subsequent time to acquire property shall be deemed to be used by the taxpayer at that subsequent time for the purpose of earning income from the business; and

(d) the business shall be deemed to have fiscal periods after the particular time that coincide with the taxation years of the taxpayer, except that the first such fiscal period shall be deemed to begin at the end of the business's last fiscal period that began before the particular time.

History: S. 20.1(2) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 21, s. 13(1), applicable after 1993.

(3) Deemed dispositions. For the purpose of paragraph (2)(a),

(a) where a property was used by a taxpayer in a business that the taxpayer has ceased to carry on, the taxpayer shall be deemed to dispose of the property at the time at which the taxpayer begins to use the property in another business or for any other purpose;

(b) where a taxpayer, who has at any time ceased to carry on a business, regularly used a property in part in the business and in part for some other purpose,

(i) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed of the property at that time, and

(ii) the fair market value of the property at that time shall be deemed to equal the proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the use regularly made of the property in the business was of the whole use regularly made of the property; and

(c) where the taxpayer is a trust, subsections 104(4) to (5.2) do not apply.

SECTION 20.2:

(1) Interest — authorized foreign bank — interpretation. The following definitions apply in this section.

"branch advance" — "branch advance" of an authorized foreign bank means an amount allocated or provided by, or on behalf of, the bank to, or for the benefit of, its Canadian banking business under terms that were documented, before the amount was so allocated or provided, to the same extent as, and in a form similar to the form in which, the bank would ordinarily document a loan by it to a person with whom it deals at arm's length.

History: S. 20.2(1), the definition "branch advance" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable After June 27, 1999 except that in its application to amounts allocated or provided before the day that is 14 days after August 8, 2000, the definition "branch advance" in subsection 20.2(1) shall be read as follows:

" 'branch advance' of an authorized foreign bank at a particular time means an amount allocated or provided by, or on behalf of, the bank to, or for the benefit of, its Canadian banking business under terms that were documented, on or before December 31, 2000, to the same extent as, and in a form similar to the form in which, the bank would ordinarily document a loan by it to a person with whom it deals at arm's length."

"branch financial statements" — "branch financial statements" of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year means the unconsolidated statements of assets and liabilities and of income and expenses for the year, in respect of its Canadian banking business,

(a) that form part of the bank's annual report for the year filed with the Superintendent of Financial Institutions as required under section 601 of the Bank Act, and accepted by the Superintendent, and

(b) if no filing is so required for the taxation year, that are prepared in a manner consistent with the statements in the annual report or reports so filed and accepted for the period or periods in which the taxation year falls, except if the Minister demonstrates that the statements are not prepared in accordance with generally-accepted accounting principles in Canada as modified by any specifications applicable to the bank made by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions under subsection 308(4) of the Bank Act (in this definition referred to as "modified GAAP"), in which case it means the statements subject to such modifications as are required to make them comply with modified GAAP.

History: S. 20.2(1), the definition "branch financial statements" was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable after June 27, 1999.

"calculation period" — "calculation period" of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year means any one of a series of regular periods into which the year is divided in a designation by the bank in its return of income for the year or, in the absence of such a designation, by the Minister,

(a) none of which is longer than 31 days;

(b) the first of which commences at the beginning of the year and the last of which ends at the end of the year; and

(c) that are, unless the Minister otherwise agrees in writing, consistent with the calculation periods designated for the bank's preceding taxation year.

History: S. 20.2(1), the definition "calculation period" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable after June 27, 1999.

► 20.2(2) ◄

(2) Formula elements. The following descriptions apply for the purposes of the formulae in subsection (3) for any calculation period in a taxation year of an authorized foreign bank:

A is the amount of the bank's assets at the end of the period;

BA is the amount of the bank's branch advances at the end of the period;

IBA is the total of all amounts each of which is a reasonable amount on account of notional interest for the period, in respect of a branch advance, that would be deductible in computing the bank's income for the year if it were interest payable by, and the advance were indebtedness of, the bank to another person and if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 18(1)(v) and this section;

IL is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount on account of interest for the period in respect of a liability of the bank to another person or partnership that would be deductible in computing the bank's income for the year if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 18(1)(v) and this section; and

L is the amount of the bank's liabilities to other persons and partnerships at the end of the period.

History: S. 20.2(2) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable after June 27, 1999.

► 20.2(3) ◄

(3) Interest deduction. In computing the income of an authorized foreign bank from its Canadian banking business for a taxation year, there may be deducted on account of interest for each calculation period of the bank for the year,

(a) where the total amount at the end of the period of its liabilities to other persons and partnerships and branch advances is 95% or more of the amount of its assets at that time, an amount not exceeding

(i) if the amount of liabilities to other persons and partnerships at that time is less than 95% of the amount of its assets at that time, the amount determined by the formula

$$IL + IBA \times (0.95 \times A - L)/BA$$

and

(ii) if the amount of those liabilities at that time is greater than or equal to 95% of the amount of its assets at that time, the amount determined by the formula

$$IL \times (0.95 \times A)/L$$

and

(b) in any other case, the total of

(i) the amount determined by the formula

$$IL + IBA$$

and

(ii) the product of

(A) the amount claimed by the bank, in its return of income for the year, not exceeding the amount determined by the formula

$$(0.95 \times A) - (L + BA)$$

and

(B) the average, based on daily observations, of the Bank of Canada bank rate for the period.

History: S. 20.2(3) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable after June 27, 1999.

► 20.2(4) ◄

(4) Branch amounts. Only amounts that are in respect of an authorized foreign bank's Canadian banking business, and that are recorded in the books of account of the business in a manner consistent with the manner in which they are required to be treated for the purposes of the branch financial statements, shall be used to determine

(a) the amounts in subsection (2); and

(b) the amounts in subsection (3) of an authorized foreign bank's assets, liabilities to other persons and partnerships, and branch advances.

History: S. 20.2(4) was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable after June 27, 1999.

(5) Notional interest. For the purposes of the description of IBA in subsection (2), a reasonable amount on account of notional interest for a calculation period in respect of a branch advance is the amount that would be payable on account of interest for the period by a notional borrower, having regard to the duration of the advance, the currency in which repayment is required and all other terms, as adjusted by paragraph (c), of the advance, if

(a) the borrower were a person that dealt at arm's length with the bank, that carried on the bank's Canadian banking business and that had the same credit-worthiness and borrowing capacity as the bank;

(b) the advance were a loan by the bank to the borrower; and

(c) any of the terms of the advance (excluding the rate of interest, but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating and the choice of any reference rate referred to) that are not terms that would be made between the bank as lender and the borrower, having regard to all the circumstances, including the nature of the Canadian banking business, the use of the advanced funds in the business and normal risk management practices for banks, were instead terms that would be agreed to by the bank and the borrower.

SECTION 20.3:

► 20.3(1) ◄

(1) Weak currency debt — interpretation. The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"exchange date" — "exchange date" in respect of a debt of a taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt means, if the debt is incurred or assumed by the taxpayer

(a) in respect of borrowed money that is denominated in the final currency, the day that the debt is incurred or assumed by the taxpayer; and

(b) in respect of borrowed money that is not denominated in the final currency, or in respect of the acquisition of property, the day on which the taxpayer uses the borrowed money or the acquired property, directly or indirectly, to acquire funds that are, or to settle an obligation that is, denominated in the final currency.

History: S. 20.3(1), the definition "exchange date", was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000.

"hedge" — "hedge" in respect of a debt of a taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt means any agreement made by the taxpayer

(a) that can reasonably be regarded as having been made by the taxpayer primarily to reduce the taxpayer's risk, with respect to payments of principal or interest in respect of the debt, of fluctuations in the value of the weak currency, and

(b) that is identified by the taxpayer as a hedge in respect of the debt in a designation in prescribed form filed with the Minister on or before the 30th day after the day the taxpayer enters into the agreement.

History: S. 20.3(1), the definition "hedge" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000.

Sec. 14(4), Chap. 17, S.C. 2001

(4) A designation described in paragraph (b) of the definition "hedge" in subsection 20.3(1) of the Act is deemed to have been filed in a timely manner if it is filed on or before the later of July 31, 2000 and the 30th day after the day the taxpayer agrees to the hedge.

"weak currency debt" — "weak currency debt" of a taxpayer at a particular time means a particular debt in a foreign currency (in this section referred to as the "weak currency"), incurred or assumed by the taxpayer at a time (in this section referred to as the "commitment time") after February 27, 2000, in respect of a borrowing of money or an acquisition of property, where

(a) any of the following applies, namely,

(i) the borrowed money is denominated in a currency (in this section referred to as the "final currency") other than the weak currency, is used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and is not used to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency,

(ii) the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to acquire funds that are denominated in a currency (in this section referred to as the "final currency") other than the weak currency, that are used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and that are not used to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency,

(iii) the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to settle an obligation that is denominated in a currency (in this section referred to as the "final currency") other than the weak currency, that is incurred or assumed for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and that is not incurred or assumed to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency, or

(iv) the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to settle another debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt in respect of which the final currency (which is deemed to be the final currency in respect of the particular debt) is a currency other than the currency of the particular debt;

(b) the amount of the particular debt (together with any other debt that would, but for this paragraph, be at any time a weak currency debt, and that can reasonably be regarded as having been incurred or assumed by the taxpayer as part of a series of transactions that includes the incurring or assumption of the particular debt) exceeds $500,000; and

(c) either of the following applies, namely,

(i) if the rate at which interest is payable at the particular time in the weak currency in respect of the particular debt is determined under a formula based on the value from time to time of a reference rate (other than a reference rate the value of which is established or materially influenced by the taxpayer), the interest rate at the commitment time, as determined under the formula as though interest were then payable, exceeds by more than two percentage points the rate at which interest would have been payable at the commitment time in the final currency if

(A) the taxpayer had, at the commitment time, instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt (excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating) with those modifications that the difference in currency requires, and

(B) interest on the equivalent amount of debt referred to in clause (A) was payable at the commitment time, or

(ii) in any other case, the rate at which interest is payable at the particular time in the weak currency in respect of the particular debt exceeds by more than two percentage points the rate at which interest would have been payable at the particular time in the final currency if at the commitment time the taxpayer had instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt (excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating), with those modifications that the difference in currency requires.

History: S. 20.3(1), the definition "weak currency debt" was added by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 14(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000.

(2) Interest and gain. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the following rules apply in respect of a particular debt of a taxpayer (other than a corporation described in one or more of paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (e) of the definition "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1)) that is at any time a weak currency debt:

(a) no deduction on account of interest that accrues on the debt for any period that begins after the day that is the later of June 30, 2000 and the exchange date during which it is a weak currency debt shall exceed the amount of interest that would, if at the commitment time the taxpayer had instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt, the principal and interest in respect of which were denominated in the final currency, on the same terms as the particular debt (excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating) have accrued on the equivalent debt during that period, with those modifications that the difference in currency requires;

(b) the amount, if any, of the taxpayer's gain or loss (in this section referred to as a "foreign exchange gain or loss") for a taxation year on the settlement or extinguishment of the debt that arises because of the fluctuation in the value of any currency shall be included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from the business or the property to which the debt relates; and

(c) the amount of any interest on the debt that was, because of this subsection, not deductible is deemed, for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's foreign exchange gain or loss on the settlement or extinguishment of the debt, to be an amount paid by the taxpayer to settle or extinguish the debt.

(3) Hedges. In applying subsection (2) in circumstances where a taxpayer has entered into a hedge in respect of a debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt, the amount paid or payable in the weak currency for a taxation year on account of interest on the debt, or paid in the weak currency in the year on account of the debt's principal, shall be decreased by the amount of any foreign exchange gain, or increased by the amount of any foreign exchange loss, on the hedge in respect of the amount so paid or payable.

$$A \times B/1825$$

where

A is the amount included under subsection 12.5(2) in computing the insurer's income for the transition year from that insurance business; and

B is the number of days in the particular taxation year that are before the day that is 1825 days after the first day of the transition year.

(4) Ceasing to carry on business. If at any time an insurer ceases to carry on all or substantially all of an insurance business (referred to in this subsection as the "discontinued business"), and none of subsections 12.5(4) to (6) apply, there shall be deducted in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for the insurer's taxation year that includes the time that is immediately before that time, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is any amount included under subsection 12.5(2) in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for its transition year; and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under subsection (3) in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for a taxation year that began before that time.

History: S. 20.4(4) was added by S.C. 2009, c. 2, s. 8(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

SECTION 21:

► 21(1) ◄

(1) Cost of borrowed money. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer has acquired depreciable property, if the taxpayer elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year,

(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year and for such of the 3 immediately preceding taxation years as the taxpayer had, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) and (e.1) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified in the taxpayer's election that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for any such year in respect of borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property; and

(b) the amount or the part of the amount, as the case may be, described in paragraph (a) shall be added to the capital cost to the taxpayer of the depreciable property so acquired by the taxpayer.

History: S. 21(1)(a) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 16(1), applicable after 1987. S. 21(1)(a) formerly read:

"(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year and for such of the 3 immediately preceding taxation years as the taxpayer had, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d) and (e) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified by the taxpayer in the election that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for any such year in respect of borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer; and"

(2) Borrowed money used for exploration or development. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer has used borrowed money for the purpose of exploration, development or the acquisition of property and the expenses incurred by the taxpayer in respect of those activities are Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses, Canadian oil and gas property expenses, foreign resource expenses in respect of a country, or foreign exploration and development expenses, as the case may be, if the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income for the year,

(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year and for such of the three immediately preceding taxation years as the taxpayer had, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) and (e.1) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified in the taxpayer's election that, but for that election, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income or income that is exempt from tax under this Part) for any such year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, as the case may be; and

(b) the amount or the part of the amount, as the case may be, described in paragraph (a) is deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses, Canadian oil and gas property expenses, foreign resource expenses in respect of a country, or foreign exploration and development expenses, as the case may be, incurred by the taxpayer in the year.

History: S. 21(2) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 15(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000. S. 21(2) formerly read:

"(2) Borrowed money used for exploration or development. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer has used borrowed money for the purpose of exploration, development or the acquisition of property and the expenses incurred by the taxpayer in respect thereof are Canadian exploration and development expenses, foreign exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses, as the case may be, if the taxpayer elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year,

► 21(3) ◄

(3) Borrowing for depreciable property. In computing the income of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year, where the taxpayer

(a) in any preceding taxation year

(i) made an election under subsection (1) in respect of borrowed money used to acquire depreciable property or an amount payable for depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer, or

(ii) was, by virtue of subsection 18(3.1), required to include an amount in respect of the construction of a depreciable property in computing the capital cost to the taxpayer of the depreciable property, and

(b) in each taxation year, if any, after that preceding taxation year and before the particular year, made an election under this subsection covering the total amount that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for each such year in respect of the borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer, if an election under this subsection is made in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the particular year, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) and (e.1) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified in the election that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for the particular year in respect of the borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer, and the amount or part of the amount, as the case may be, shall be added to the capital cost to the taxpayer of the depreciable property.

History: S. 21(3), all that portion following paragraph (b), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 16(3), applicable after 1987. That portion formerly read:

"if the taxpayer elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the particular year, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d) and (e) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified by the taxpayer in the election that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for the particular year in respect of the borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer, and the said amount or part of the amount, as the case may be, shall be added to the capital cost to the taxpayer of the depreciable property so acquired by him."

(4) Borrowing for exploration, etc. In computing the income of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year, where the taxpayer

(a) in any preceding taxation year made an election under subsection (2) in respect of borrowed money used for the purpose of exploration, development or acquisition of property,

(b) in each taxation year, if any, after that preceding taxation year and before the particular year, made an election under this subsection covering the total amount that, but for that election, would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income or income that is exempt from tax under this Part) for each such year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, as the case may be, and the following rules apply:

(c) so elects in the taxpayer's return of income for the particular year,

(d) paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) and (e.1) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified in the election that, but for the election, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income or income that is exempt from tax under this Part) for the particular year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, and

(e) the amount or part of the amount, as the case may be, is deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses, Canadian oil and gas property expenses, foreign resource expenses in respect of a country, or foreign exploration and development expenses, as the case may be, incurred by the taxpayer in the particular year.

History: S. 21(4)(b) was amended, and paragraphs (c), (d) and (e) were added, by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 15(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000. S. 21(4)(b) formerly read:

"(b) in each taxation year, if any, after that preceding taxation year and before the particular year, made an election under this subsection covering the total amount that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for each such year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, as the case may be,

if an election under this subsection is made in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the particular year, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) and (e.1) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified in the election that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for the particular year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, and the amount or part of the amount, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses, foreign exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses, as the case may be, incurred by the taxpayer in the particular year."

S. 21(4), all that portion following paragraph (b), was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 16(4), applicable after 1987. That portion formerly read:

"if the taxpayer elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the particular year, paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d) and (e) do not apply to the amount or to the part of the amount specified by the taxpayer in the election that, but for an election under this subsection in respect thereof would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income (other than exempt income) for the particular year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, and the said amount or part of the amount, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses, foreign exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses, as the case may be, incurred by the taxpayer in the particular year."

Ceasing to carry on business

SECTION 22:

► 22(1) ◄

(1) Sale of accounts receivable. Where a person who has been carrying on a business has, in a taxation year, sold all or substantially all the property used in carrying on the business, including the debts that have been or will be included in computing the person's income for that year or a previous year and that are still outstanding, and including the debts arising from loans made in the ordinary course of the person's business if part of the person's ordinary business was the lending of money and that are still outstanding, to a purchaser who proposes to continue the business which the vendor has been carrying on, if the vendor and the purchaser have executed jointly an election in prescribed form to have this section apply, the following rules are applicable:

(a) there may be deducted in computing the vendor's income for the taxation year an amount equal to the difference between the face value of the debts so sold (other than debts in respect of which the vendor has made deductions under paragraph 20(1)(p)), and the consideration paid by the purchaser to the vendor for the debts so sold;

(b) an amount equal to the difference described in paragraph (a) shall be included in computing the purchaser's income for the taxation year;

(c) the debts so sold shall be deemed, for the purposes of paragraphs 20(1)(l) and (p), to have been included in computing the purchaser's income for the taxation year or a previous year but no deduction may be made by the purchaser under paragraph 20(1)(p) in respect of a debt in respect of which the vendor has previously made a deduction; and

(d) each amount deducted by the vendor in computing income for a previous year under paragraph 20(1)(p) in respect of any of the debts so sold shall be deemed, for the purpose of paragraph 12(1)(i), to have been so deducted by the purchaser.

Editorial Note: In the absence of the section 22 election, a loss incurred by the vendor on the sale of the accounts receivable would likely be on capital account. Section 22 does not specify the time period for filing the election, although the CRA indicates that the election should be filed with the tax return of either party for the year of sale (see Form T2022).

SECTION 24:

► 24(1) ◄

(1) Ceasing to carry on business. Notwithstanding paragraph 18(1)(b), where at any time after a taxpayer ceases to carry on a business the taxpayer no longer owns any property that was eligible capital property in respect of the business and that has value, in computing the taxpayer's income for taxation years ending after that time,

(a) there shall be deducted, for the first such taxation year, the amount of the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business at that time;

(b) no amount may be deducted under paragraph 20(1)(b) in respect of the business;

(c) for the purposes of determining the value of P in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5), the amount deducted by the taxpayer under paragraph (a) shall be deemed to be an amount deducted under paragraph 20(1)(b) in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the taxation year that included that time; and

(d) for the purposes of subsection 14(1), section 14 shall be read without reference to subsection 14(4).

History: S. 24(1) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 17(1), applicable after July 13, 1990. S. 24(1) formerly read:

"(1) Notwithstanding paragraph 18(1)(b), where a taxpayer has ceased to carry on a business, in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the taxpayer so ceased to carry on the business,

(a) there shall be deducted the amount of the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business at the time the taxpayer so ceased to carry on the business;

(b) no amount is deductible by virtue of paragraph 20(1)(b) in respect of the business;

(c) notwithstanding the definition 'cumulative eligible capital' in subsection 14(5), the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business immediately after the time the taxpayer so ceased to carry on the business shall be deemed to be nil; and

(d) for the purposes of subsection 14(1), section 14 shall be read without reference to subsection 14(4)."

Editorial Note: Subsection 70(5.1), rather than subsection 24(1), applies upon an individual's death where the eligible capital property in respect of the individual's business is acquired by a beneficiary as a consequence of the individual's death. Subsection 24(2) generally applies if the eligible capital property in respect of an individual's business is acquired by the individual's spouse or common-law partner or a corporation controlled by the individual that carries on the business. In either case, the individual is not allowed the terminal allowance deduction under paragraph 24(1)(a); rather, the eligible capital property is effectively rolled over to the person who acquires the property. See also the stop-loss rule in subsection 14(12), which can apply if the taxpayer is a corporation, trust or partnership and an affiliated person acquires the eligible capital property.

(2) Business carried on by spouse or controlled corporation. Notwithstanding subsection (1), where at any time an individual ceases to carry on a business and thereafter the individual's spouse or common-law partner, or a corporation controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever by the individual, carries on the business and acquires all of the property that was eligible capital property in respect of the business owned by the individual before that time and that had value at that time,

(a) in computing the individual's income for the individual's first taxation year ending after that time, subsection (1) shall be read without reference to paragraph (1)(a) and the reference in paragraph (1)(c) to "the amount deducted by the taxpayer under paragraph (a)" shall be read as a reference to "an amount equal to the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business immediately before that time";

(b) in computing the cumulative eligible capital of the spouse or common-law partner or the corporation, as the case may be, in respect of the business, the spouse or common-law partner or corporation shall be deemed to have acquired an eligible capital property and to have made an eligible capital expenditure at that time at a cost equal to 4/3 of the total of

(i) the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business immediately before that time, and

(ii) the amount, if any, determined for F in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of the business of the individual at that time;

(c) for the purposes of determining the cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business of the spouse or common-law partner or corporation after that time, an amount equal to the amount determined under subparagraph (b)(ii) shall be added to the amount otherwise determined in respect thereof for P in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5); and

(d) for the purpose of determining after that time the amount required to be included under paragraph 14(1)(b) in computing the income of the spouse, the common-law partner or the corporation in respect of any subsequent disposition of property of the business, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) the amount, if any, determined for Q in that definition in respect of the business of the individual immediately before the individual ceased to carry on business.

History: S. 24(2)(d) was amended by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 16(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000. S. 24(2)(d) formerly read:

"(d) for the purposes of determining after that time

(i) the amount deemed by subparagraph 14(1)(a)(v) to be the spouse's or common-law partner's taxable capital gain, and

(ii) the amount to be included under subparagraph 14(1)(a)(v) or paragraph 14(1)(b) in computing the income of the spouse or common-law partner or corporation in respect of any subsequent disposition of property of the business, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for Q in the second formula in the definition 'cumulative eligible capital' in subsection 14(5) the amount, if any, determined for Q in that formula in respect of the business of the individual immediately before the individual ceased to carry on the business."

Sec. 144, Chap. 12, S.C. 2000

144. [Transitional Provision.] Where a taxpayer and a person who would have been the taxpayer's common-law partner in the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, if sections 130 to 142 [of S.C. 2000, c. 12] applied to the applicable year, jointly elect in respect of that year by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in prescribed manner on or before their filing due date for the year in which this Act receives royal assent, those sections apply to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

S. 24(2)(d)(ii) was amended by S.C. 1995, c. 3, s. 8(1), applicable to fiscal periods that end after February 22, 1994. S. 24(2)(d)(ii) formerly read:

S. 24(2)(a) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 10(1), applicable after July 13, 1990. S. 24(2)(a) formerly read:

"(a) in computing the individual's income for the individual's first taxation year ending after that time, subsection (1) shall be read without reference to paragraph (1)(a) and the reference in paragraph (1)(c) to 'the amount deducted by the taxpayer under paragraph (a)' shall be read as a reference to 'an amount equal to the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital in respect of property immediately before that time';"

S. 24(2)(d) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 10(2), applicable after July 13, 1990.

S. 24(2) was amended by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. II, s. 17(1), applicable after July 13, 1990. S. 24(2) formerly read:

"(2) Where business carried on by spouse or controlled corporation. Notwithstanding subsection (1), where an individual has ceased to carry on a business and thereafter the individual's spouse, or a corporation controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever by the individual, has carried on the business,

(a) in computing the individual's income for the individual's taxation year in which the individual so ceased to carry on the business, the provisions of subsection (1) shall be read without reference to paragraph (1)(a) and as if the reference in paragraph (1)(c) to 'the time the taxpayer so ceased to carry on the business' were read as a reference to 'the end of the taxation year in which the taxpayer so ceased to carry on the business'; and

(b) in computing the cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business of the spouse or the corporation, as the case may be, at any time after the end of the taxation year in which the individual so ceased to carry on the business, there shall be included the amount of the individual's cumulative eligible capital in respect thereof at the end of that taxation year."

Editorial Note: The rollover under subsection 24(2) effectively results in the acquiring spouse or common-law partner or controlled corporation assuming the individual's former eligible capital property pool. The individual is not allowed the terminal allowance deduction under paragraph 24(1)(a). Note that subsection 24(2) takes precedence over the rollover under subsection 70(5.1) upon an individual's death.

(3) Where partnership has ceased to exist. Notwithstanding subsection (1), where at any time a partnership ceases to exist in circumstances to which neither subsection 98(3) nor subsection 98(5) applies, there may be deducted, in computing the income for the first taxation year beginning after that time of a taxpayer who was a member of the partnership immediately before that time, an amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount that would, had the partnership continued to exist, have been deductible under subsection (1) in computing its income;

B is the fair market value of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership immediately before that time; and

C is the fair market value of all interests in the partnership immediately before that time.

History: S. 24(3) was added by S.C. 1994, c. 7, Sched. VIII, s. 10(3), applicable after July 13, 1990.

SECTION 24.1: Judges. [Repealed by S.C. 1996, c. 21, s. 6(1).]

History: S. 24.1 was repealed by S.C. 1996, c. 21, s. 6(1), applicable to appointments made after 1995. S. 24.1 formerly read:

"S. 24.1. Judges. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer has been appointed a judge by the Governor General or the Governor in Council or by the lieutenant governor in council of a province and the taxpayer elects in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year to have this section apply to the computation of the taxpayer's income,

(a) the taxpayer's income from a professional practice for a fiscal period ending in that taxation year and commencing in the preceding taxation year shall be deemed to be that proportion of that income that the number of months in the taxation year during which the taxpayer was not a judge is of the number of months in the fiscal period; and

(b) the amount by which the taxpayer's income for that taxation year from the taxpayer's professional practice, computed without reference to this section, exceeds the amount that is deemed by paragraph (a) to be the taxpayer's income for the fiscal period shall be deemed to be income of the taxpayer in the immediately following taxation year."

Special Cases

SECTION 26:

► 26(1) ◄

(1) Banks — inclusions in income. There shall be included in computing the income of a bank for its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987 the total of

(a) the total of the specific provisions of the bank, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, as at the end of its immediately preceding taxation year,

(b) the total of the general provisions of the bank, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, as at the end of its immediately preceding taxation year,

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount of the special provision for losses on trans-border claims of the bank, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, that was deductible by the bank under subsection (2) in computing its income for its immediately preceding taxation year

exceeds

(ii) that part of the amount determined under subparagraph (i) that was a realized loss of the bank for that immediately preceding taxation year, and

(d) the amount, if any, of the tax allowable appropriations account of the bank, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, at the end of its immediately preceding taxation year.

Related Sections: S. 248(1), "amount".

(2) Banks — deductions from income. In computing the income for a taxation year of a bank, there may be deducted an amount not exceeding the total of

(a) that part of the total of the amounts of the five-year average loan loss experiences of the bank, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, for all taxation years before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987 that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year,

(b) that part of the total of the amounts transferred by the bank to its tax allowable appropriations account, as permitted under the Minister's rules, for all taxation years before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987 that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year,

(c) that part of the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount of the special provision for losses on trans-border claims, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, that was deductible by the bank under this subsection in computing its income for its last taxation year before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987

exceeds

(ii) that part of the amount determined under subparagraph (i) that was a realized loss of the bank for that last taxation year

that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year,

(d) where the tax allowable appropriations account of the bank at the end of its last taxation year before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987, as determined, or as would be determined if such a determination were required, under the Minister's rules, is a negative amount, that part of such amount expressed as a positive number that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year, and

(e) that part of the total of the amounts calculated in respect of the bank for the purposes of the Minister's rules, or that would be calculated for the purposes of those rules if such a calculation were required, under Procedure 8 of the Procedures for the Determination of the Provision for Loan Losses as set out in Appendix 1 of those rules, for all taxation years before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987 that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year.

(3) Write-offs and recoveries. In computing the income of a bank, the following rules apply:

(a) any amount that was recorded by the bank as a realized loss or a write-off of an asset that was included by the bank in the calculation of an amount deductible under the Minister's rules, or would have been included in the calculation of such an amount if such a calculation had been required, for any taxation year before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987, shall, for the purposes of paragraph 12(1)(i) and section 12.4, be deemed to have been deducted by the bank under paragraph 20(1)(p) in computing its income for the year for which it was so recorded; and

(b) any amount that was recorded by the bank as a recovery of a realized loss or a write-off of an asset that was included by the bank in the calculation of an amount deductible under the Minister's rules, or would have been included in the calculation of such an amount if such a calculation had been required, for any taxation year before its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987 shall, for the purposes of section 12.4, be deemed to have been included by the bank under paragraph 12(1)(i) in computing its income for the year for which it was so recorded.

► 26(4) ◄

(4) Definition of "Minister's rules". For the purposes of this section, "Minister's rules" means the Rules for the Determination of the Appropriations for Contingencies of a Bank issued under the authority of the Minister of Finance pursuant to section 308 of the Bank Act for the purposes of subsections (1) and (2) of this section.

SECTION 27:

► 27(1) ◄

(1) Application of Part I to Crown corporation. This Part applies to a federal Crown corporation as if

(a) any income or loss from a business carried on by the corporation as agent of Her Majesty, or from a property of Her Majesty administered by the corporation, were an income or loss of the corporation from the business or the property, as the case may be; and

(b) any property, obligation or debt of any kind whatever held, administered, entered into or incurred by the corporation as agent of Her Majesty were a property, obligation or debt, as the case may be, of the corporation.

History: S. 27(1) was amended by S.C. 1998, c. 19, s. 82(1), applicable
(a) for the purpose of section 181.71 of the Act, to taxation years that end after June 1989;
(b) for the purposes of section 187.61 of the Act, and subsection 191.4(3) of the Act, after 1987;
(c) for the purpose of section 190.211 of the Act, after May 23, 1985; and (d) for all other purposes, after April 26, 1995.
S. 27(1) formerly read:
"S. 27. Application of Part to Crown corporations.
(1) This Part applies to a prescribed federal Crown corporation as if any income or loss from (a) a business carried on by the corporation as agent of Her Majesty, and (b) a property of Her Majesty administered by the corporation, were an income or loss, as the case may be, of the corporation therefrom."

SECTION 28:

► 28(1) ◄

(1) Farming or fishing business. For the purpose of computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from a farming or fishing business, the income from the business for that year may, if the taxpayer so elects, be computed in accordance with a method (in this section referred to as the "cash method") whereby the income therefrom for that year shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the total of

(a) all amounts that

(i) were received in the year, or are deemed by this Act to have been received in the year, in the course of carrying on the business, and

(ii) were in payment of or on account of an amount that would, if the income from the business were not computed in accordance with the cash method, be included in computing income therefrom for that or any other year, and

(b) with respect to a farming business, such amount, if any, as is specified by the taxpayer in respect of the business in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year, not exceeding the amount, if any, by which

(i) the fair market value at the end of the year of inventory owned by the taxpayer in connection with the business at that time

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined under paragraph (c) for the year,

(c) with respect to a farming business, the amount, if any, that is the lesser of

(i) the taxpayer's loss from the business for the year computed without reference to this paragraph and to paragraph (b), and

(ii) the value of inventory purchased by the taxpayer that was owned by the taxpayer in connection with the business at the end of the year, and

(d) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from the business because of subsection 13(1), 14(1), 80(13) or 80.3(3) or (5), minus the total of

(e) all amounts, other than amounts described in section 30, that

(i) were paid in the year, or are deemed by this Act to have been paid in the year, in the course of carrying on the business,

(ii) in the case of amounts paid, or deemed by this Act to have been paid, for inventory, were in payment of or on account of an amount that would be deductible in computing the income from the business for the year or any other taxation year if that income were not computed in accordance with the cash method, and

(iii) in any other case, were in payment of or on account of an amount that would be deductible in computing the income from the business for a preceding taxation year, the year or the following taxation year if that income were not computed in accordance with the cash method,

(e.1) all amounts, other than amounts described in section 30, that

(i) would be deductible in computing the income from the business for the year if that income were not computed in accordance with the cash method,

(ii) are not deductible in computing the income from the business for any other taxation year, and

(iii) were paid in a preceding taxation year in the course of carrying on the business,

(f) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, included under paragraph (b) or (c) in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the immediately preceding taxation year, and

(g) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted for the year under paragraph 20(1)(a), (b) or (uu), subsection 20(16) or 24(1), section 30 or subsection 80.3(2) or (4) in respect of the business,
